MONTANA WESTERN PROFESSOR RECEIVES GRANT TO RECONSTRUCT CLIMATE HISTORY

University of Montana Western Assistant Professor of Geology, Geochemistry and Climate, Spruce Schoenemann has been awarded a research grant from the Montana NASA Space Grant Consortium titled "Precipitation Isotope Ratios and Tree-ring based Snowpack Relationships to inform Paleoclimate Reconstructions from Lake Sediment Cores."

This twelve-month research project aims to create a climate reconstruction based on isotope data collected from lake sediments, cross-referenced with tree ring records to provide an idea of the past climate and snowpack in Southwestern Montana going back up to 10,000 years.

"This is an exciting opportunity to create a reconstruction of the snowpack and climate of the area, potentially going back all the way to the Early Holocene epoch, a time when temperatures were similar to the present day," said Schoenemann.

The existing data of tree rings goes back approximately 1,000 years. Schoenemann and his collaborators, Dr. Greg Pederson (USGS) and Dr. Dave McWethy and Justin Martin (Montana State University), as well as students from the University of Montana Western, will assist in the collection of core samples taken from alpine lakes in Southwestern Montana. They will then analyze the sediment samples for oxygen isotopes ($\delta^{18}O$), which record variations in the lake water driven by runoff from snowpack over decadal timespans. The colder the winter and the more snowpack that was present in a year, the more negative the oxygen isotope values, which are then precipitated as calcite in the sediments of the lakes. The isotopes remain in the lakebed sediments for thousands of years, and will be cross referenced with snowpack histories from the tree ring database, allowing for a viable snowpack and climate reconstruction to be generated covering multiple millenniums.

Montana Western Assistant Professor Spruce Schoenemann has received a research grant from the Montana NASA Space Grant Consortium which will include collecting core samples from alpine lakes in Southwestern Montana.

The data from the study will also be used to determine how a warming climate can affect future snowpack levels and regional water balance.

Future studies can also look at specific elements in the core samples, to further correlate the findings to known historical events and to learn about events that happened before recorded history. This includes looking for the presence of charcoal to learn more about fire seasons, pollen grains to track the prevalence of plant and tree species, and trace minerals that can indicate erosion, based on the lake's location and the area's geologic composition.

"One of the reasons that NASA is interested in this research is because it can help them to fine-tune their remote sensing technology," said Schoenemann. Current satellite technology is limited in the effectiveness of accurately measuring snowpack from earth's orbit. Eventually, modern snowpack data from the study can be compared to satellite and airborne data, which in turn will help to improve future remote sensing technology.

For more information about the grant and research, please contact Professor Schoenemann by email at spruce.schoenemann@umwestern.edu.

Beaverhead River Channel Migration Zone Mapping Presentation

Wednesday, January 31, 2018 When: 10:00 am- Noon, 01/31/2018

Where: USDA Conference Room, 420 Barrett St, Dillon
(Forest Service Building)

What: Join the Beaverhead Watershed Committee to see the final version of the Channel Migration Zone Maps of the Beaverhead River presented by Tony Thatcher and Karin Boyd.

Channel Migration Zone (CMZ) mapping is based on the understanding that rivers are dynamic and move laterally across their floodplains through time. As such, over a given time period, rivers occupy a corridor area whose width is dependent on rates of channel shift. The processes associated with channel movement include lateral channel migration and more rapid channel avulsion. The fundamental concept of CMZ mapping is to identify the corridor area that a stream channel or series of stream channels can be expected to occupy over a given timeframe. A 100-year CMZ is a typical timeframe used as a corridor defining a century of anticipated channel movement. This timeframe allows for riparian forest maturation within the dynamic river corridor and provides a practical compromise compared to the entire river valley bottom. Channel migration zone mapping serves as a science-based tool to help the public, landowners, and decision makers develop an understanding of river dynamics, along with the inherent risks and benefits associated with those processes. Need help filling out forms for public assistance

With the closure of the Office of Public Assistance in Dillon the Dillon Public Library has stepped up. We have added a workstation for those seeking help filling out forms for public assistance. Both case managers from the OPA office in Dillon are donating their time to assist community members in filling out their applications or renewals. Kendra and Amber will be in the library on Friday's from 1-4:30 pm. Both have said that if we need to add more time they will be willing to accommodate.

Tickets are now on sale for the Dillon Rotary Club annual Ice Melt Contest

Each ticket will grant its purchaser a chance to guess the exact date and time the ice will melt on Logan Pond, a small body of water that sits on private property just west of Dillon.

Comes closest to predicting the time of the thaw will win $500, while the second place finisher takes home $250 and the third-place predictor pockets $100. All proceeds from ticket sales will go to the Dillon Rotary Club local charity projects and scholarship fund.

Tickets can be purchased from a local Rotary member or one of the following sponsor locations; Womack's Printing, Pioneer Federal Savings & Loan, Bank of Commerce, Stockman Bank, Beaverhead Motors and Beaverhead Brewery.

DO NOT REMOVE THE RIBBONS

City owned trees included in the upcoming pruning contract are marked with blue ribbon. The Dillon Tree Board requests that folks please do not remove the ribbons from trees around the city. When ribbons are removed, someone from the Tree Board has to go back out and re-mark them for the arborist to find. Questions concerning trees marked for pruning may be directed to Tim or Jason at the DNRC office 683-6305.

Red Carpet Premiere of The Ballad of Lefty Brown

The Big Sky Cinema, located in Dillon, Montana proudly presents their red carpet premiere of The Ballad of Lefty Brown. Filmed in the Dillon area in the fall of 2016 and featuring dozens of locals as extras and cast. Manager Stan Smith will accompany special guests for a reception before the presentation Monday, January 29th at 6:30 pm, feature at 7:00 pm. Smith assisted in the casting and also appears in the feature.

While Stan's roots run deep in Beaverhead Co. coming from a longtime area ranch family he has an extensive history in the film industry as well as operating the Big Sky Cinema for nearly 34 years. Stan began his film career in 1979 as a background extra in Xanadu and has been performing as a stunt player and actor ever since. In 2011 he began successfully producing features and short films. His reputation as a multitasking, "get it done" independent film producer is very well known and it has benefited the Dillon area greatly.

Since his work on 'Lefty Brown' and 'The Big Muddy Western Series' Smith has been a producer on a variety of projects. The horror film, 'Devil In Me', a Sci Fi feature, 'Tellurian', an animated film, 'Pilgrims Progress', a web series, 'Tales of Synthina' and the up coming feature, 'Useless' being shot in Kalispell. While his work is mostly western genre he has proven his ability in other genres with his recent work.

With a recent flurry of offers Stan has appeared in a Halliday Quist music video, the Costner series, 'Yellowstone', SciFi feature, 'Black Flowers', comedy, 'The TinderBox', and Sundance fav, 'Wild Life'. Smith has performed lead roles in 3 westerns, 'Jack Slade', 'Much Abide' and the recently wrapped 'Snow Blind'. He has also been involved in several episodes of 'Ghost Adventures' and 'Expedition Unknown' for the Travel Channel. Many of these productions have utilized locations in the Dillon area as well as local talent. Some having appeared in 'The Ballad of Lefty Brown' partly filmed in Bannack.

Through the Montana Film Festival Roadshow Stan has brought the film to his theatre for a one time showing to celebrate the long hours and hard work of all the area's local residents that appear in the film. The reception and presentation with live music and art show is sponsored by Smith's Skypainter Productions, Rollin'Bytes Pizza, Twig Carlin Trucking and Polson Theatres. Regular admission prices at the box office go on sale starting at 6:30pm. A group photo of all the cast members in attendance will be taken to commemorate this special occasion. All cast and family and friends are invited to join us!!

Do you like your job?

by: Joe Barnhart

Late on Friday you'd like to stay after work and accomplish more. Like fudge you would! Often, Friday afternoons offer employees a time to reflect on a job's pros and cons while cleaning food crumbs and saliva from a keyboard. If, on this Friday, your job opinion index is teetering between euphoria and heavy drinking, don't despair. Here's a job satisfaction survey to help you gauge your current job rating -- possibly legitimizing the time-honored adage, "My job sucks!"

Answer True or False

1. I fervently pray for a total power outage every Monday morning.
2. I can do whatever I want at work but my boss threatens to fire me.
3. I have no energy each day because stupid people surround me.
4. I could do more work but I'll be damned if my boss will find out.
5. I feel appreciated because my desk is in the same place every morning.
6. I'm engaged in meaningful work that 3rd grade North Koreans could easily do.
7. I feel free to be who I am at work -- which is why I lost my last job.
8. I take risks even though my prescription bottle says I shouldn't.
9. My boss is all about image, not reality, which is why I love him/her so.
10. I feel my input is sought out, respected, and led to the copier's new location.
11. My creativity is appreciated -- who do you think last unclogged the toilet?
12. I'm informed at work, Elvis lives, and aliens stole my neighbor's cat.
13. I know what's expected of me and it's really ticking me off.
14. My boss doesn't have a clue what I do and supports me 100%.
15. I'm encouraged to explore additional job training with another company.
16. My coworkers are committed to doing quality work -- thank goodness!
17. My boss reviews my progress by nosing around in everything I do.
18. I'm compensated fairly -- heaven knows I'd just squander a raise anyway.

To tally, count the True and False answers, multiply the totals together, subtract your yearly gross pay, divide by the days you called in sick but had a hangover, and subtract column 4G from your 1032 long form. A score of 120-80 = you despise your job, 79-45 = you're unemployed, 44-32 = you want your neighbor's job, 31-10 = you hate math, or 9-0 = you're independently wealthy. Use your results to chart a path to a healthier job horizon. You'll be glad you did.
