Superb musicianship, haunting harmonies and chilling tales from three men who spent their lives in the most rugged of all places-the wilderness of Canada's mountain national parks.

Protecting grizzly bears, rescuing stranded hikers and lonely nights on the pack trail, these mountain men share a special blend of music and storytelling from Canada's richest wilderness.

Montana Retired Educators' Day

Thursday, March 8, 2018 has been designated as Montana Retired Educators' Day. This day is set aside annually to honor the work performed by retired educators toward helping Montana's youth become well rounded, educated citizens.

As retired educators, we know education doesn't start or end in the classroom. Everyone involved in the educational process plays an important role in the education of students. We realize it takes a "team" of additional support people to assist in the education of our youth.

This team should be recognized as playing a significant role in reinforcing the skills and values emphasized by practicing teachers. These important roles not only include classroom teachers but para-professionals, coaches, counselors, administrators, secretaries, cooks and cafeteria workers, custodians, bus drivers, parents, and school board members working together for the benefit of children.

As retired educators, one of our goals is to reinforce the good work being performed by "Dillon's Educational Team" on a daily basis so students may learn academic and thinking skills with the ability to establish goals.

March 8 is an excellent time to reflect on the good work that has been done by retired educators as well as the work being performed by practicing teachers. Collectively, our goal is to make students productive citizens with great empathy for their fellow Americans.

Honoring Others

By: MJ

When people are elected to public offices they take an oath to represent protect and defend the constitution of the United States, and the constitution of the state of Montana, and discharge the duties of the office they are elected to with fidelity. Fidelity is the quality of faithfulness or loyalty. The natural tendencies of humans are to represent themselves, their friends, their supporters, and not the whole.

What has happened to Decorum, Dignity, Collegiality, and Propriety today. In coffee shops, on the streets, and other places you will hear negative talk, humans pointing fingers that may or may not destroy people. We hear a lot about the #metoo part of society today. Truly, is thinking about ourselves only, our wants, our desires, our money, the most productive avenue to take?

Decorum is the behavior of keeping with good taste and propriety. Propriety is the customary code of polite behavior in society or among members of a profession or group. Note: Etiquette is the code of behavior that delineates expectations for social behavior according to contemporary conventional norms within a society, social class, or group.

Dignity is the state of being worthy of honor or respect.

Collegiality is relating to or involving shared responsibility amongst a group.

"Wise as an Owl" was an adage that was part of the everyday talk in yester years and rarely echoed in today's world. Could it be that the ability of the owl to turn its head in a manner that allowed for seeing in all directions be the reason for the saying? Question: Could this thought of been a way of telling people they needed to look beyond their needs, their wants, their desires...?

Facts: When we work with the facts at meetings we see Decorum, Dignity, Collegiality, Propriety honored. Without the facts we see Disturbance, Commotion and Unsettled meetings.

Is it time we quite spinning words to make the "Bad" a good thing and "Good" a bad thing and let reality prevail over emotions? Is it time we take the rose-colored glasses off. Note: The zone change for the 700 block on Atlantic street is an example where the rose-colored glasses needed to be taken off.

Letter to the Editor

The Conservative Case for the CSKT Water Compact

In 2015, the Montana Legislature ratified the Confederated Salish and Kootenai Tribes (CSKT) -Water Compact with Montana, which settled all water rights claimed by the CSKT under the 1855 Hellgate Treaty. This was the culmination of a multi-year negotiation process between Montana's Reserved Water Rights Compact Commission and the CSKT. The final step in the implementation of the CSKT Compact is ratification by the United States Congress.

The federal ratification debate has inevitably turned political, and now many of the arguments over this Compact which raged in 2014-2015 have returned. I was heavily involved in the final efforts to finalize the Compact and to ensure its passage through the Montana Legislature, working as Deputy Attorney General in the Montana Department of Justice. Many of the inaccurate claims of Compact opponents, which we disproved in 2015, have been exhumed from the grave in an effort to defeat Congressional ratification.

I joined Attorney General Fox's administration at DOJ in 2013 as an opponent to the Compact. In my years in private practice, I had worked as the attorney for the Montana Republican Party, took on radical environmentalists, strongly supported multiple-use recreation on federal lands, and had gone to court against Tribal over-reach over non-Tribal members. I therefore viewed the Compact as a water grab that was being foisted upon non-Tribal water users in the waning days of the Schweitzer Administration.

Facts and reality changed my mind because I realized this Compact gave water users on the Flathead Reservation a better deal than they could ever achieve through litigation. It gave irrigators on the Flathead Reservation, whether Tribal or non-Tribal, better protections against being "called" off to ensure instream flows for fisheries than they could ever obtain in a court battle. It established a better measurement and management system for this massive irrigation network. And it provided a funding framework to complete much-neglected maintenance on a ditch system that was literally leaking like a sieve.

Just as importantly, the Compact prevented the CSKT from asserting ancient fishing-based water rights secured by the Hellgate Treaty across half of Montana, which would have paralyzed the already-delayed state-wide water adjudication. Without a Compact, most water basins in the western half of Montana would be currently in the midst of re-opening the objection and claims process, even in the few places where the Montana Water Court has entered a final decree. This would be done to deal with the CSKT's Treaty claims to instream flow water rights with a priority date of "time immemorial" and therefore senior to all other claims.

The CSKT Compact is not perfect, as few negotiated agreements are, but it is much better than the decades of court battles that promised to take its place. For comparison, consider Montana's litigation against the State of Wyoming over the Tongue River water rights. That case began under Attorney General Mike McGrath, and is still not complete. I was one of the lead attorneys when we finally took this case to trial for 12 weeks in late 2013. At my last count, Montana had spent over $6 million over the life of that case, and has taken two trips to the United States Supreme Court to settle inter-state legal issues.

The Salish-Kootenai water litigation would be orders of magnitude larger, more complex and more expensive than the Tongue litigation. In the Tongue, we dealt with one simple drainage, whose only complexity was a State boundary intersecting its middle. The hydrology, terrain, water use systems, fisheries and history in a Salish-Kootenai lawsuit are in every way more complex. It presents unique issues of treaty interpretation, Tribal history, Congressional action, fish biology, hydrology, interaction with the Endangered Species Act, interests of downstream States, and interests of off-Reservation users affected by on-Reservation claimants. This would bog down the water court, state district court and federal court, and would pass through the liberal Ninth Circuit on its likely multiple trips to the United States Supreme Court.

Only the lawyers will win a case like that.

For those conservatives who oppose ratification of the CSKT Compact, you owe the rest of us an answer to two essential questions:

First, are you going to foot the bill for re-opening the state-wide Water Court adjudication? Are you prepared to tell off-Reservation water users across all of Western Montana that they need to pay their water lawyers twice and gamble that they can prove the Salish and Kootenai Tribes did not fish along a certain tributary in 1839?

Second, if you are a conservative and you believe in Federalism, as I do, why should a Congressman or Senator sent to Washington reject a Compact that was negotiated by a committee of citizens, passed by a Republican-majority Legislature and signed by a Democrat Governor? I can't think of any other situation where conservatives would say our Congressman or Senator should override the wisdom of our citizens, the will of the Legislature, and the authority of the Governor. In the conservative, federalist world I grew up in, the voice of the State mattered in its own affairs.

The voices crying against this Compact are only telling you part of the story. They have omitted the part where they want the entire State to take the risk for no reward. The Legislature did the right thing in 2015 by passing the Compact, and Congress should respect the State's decision by ratifying it.

Cory Swanson is the Broadwater County Attorney.

Bible Truth...How the Bible was written (Part 2)

---We believe the following: (1) the Bible was given by the inspiration of God, 2 Timothy 3:16-17; (2) all statements made in this and any ensuing articles will be based on what the Bible says; (3) the Bible only is the reliable source of spiritual & doctrinal truth; (4) all beliefs in conflict with the Bible are false.

2 Timothy 3:16 states, "All scripture is given by inspiration of God". 'Inspiration' means "divinely breathed" and is defined as "divine influence directly and immediately exerted on the mind." As we inhale air when we breathe, those who wrote the scriptures wrote as God breathed His word into their minds. Each of the men God used as his instruments wrote what He inspired them to write in a manner that fit his profession and education.

The writers sometimes did not understand what God had moved them to write. Daniel wrote some prophecies regarding the end time and asked, "...O my Lord, what shall be the end of these things?" God said, "...go thy way, Daniel: for the words are closed up and sealed till the time of the end," Daniel 12:9.

Another phrase, "holy men spoke as they were moved by the Holy Ghost," is in 2 Peter 1:21. 'Moved' means "to carry or to be conveyed (transported or conducted)." An illustration of this meaning is that of one being transported as a passenger in a ship. As a passenger goes only where the ship goes, so the writers only wrote what God moved them to write.

A few examples of Bible writers are: Moses was born in slavery, raised as a prince, became a fugitive, a shepherd, then a national leader by divine appointment and a writer of scripture by inspiration. David was the youngest most insignificant son in his family, a shepherd, a warrior, a king and a writer of Scripture by inspiration. Daniel was a slave in Babylonian captivity, then a prophet and writer of scripture by inspiration. Matthew was a despised tax collector. Luke was called "the beloved physician". Peter was a fisherman. Paul was a lawyer, a tent maker, and a radical Jewish zealot.

Conclusion: The inspiration of the scriptures is our assurance that God's promises are all true.

The Clinical Support Services Representative shares responsibility for preparing morning, noon, or evening meal trays for patients and customers. This position delivers trays to patients, and serves meals to customers in the River Café. As part of an integral team, the Clinical Support Service Representative also ensures that kitchen work areas and restaurant equipment are maintained, cleaned and in orderly condition. Incumbents must have a passion for team work, customer service excellence and enjoy working with the public. Minimum Qualifications: High school diploma or equivalent; one to three months related experience or equivalent combination of education and experience. This is a PRN, or as-needed position, and is not eligible for benefits.

To apply go to www.barrethospital.org, and complete an online application. For more information, please email careers@barrethospital.org. Barrett Hospital is proud to be an Equal Opportunity Employer.
