Dillon Tree Board Offers 2018 Tree/Cost Share Program

If you have a location in need of a tree, the Dillon Tree Board can help.

The Tree Board cost/share program provides the opportunity for private homeowners to participate in enhancing the beauty of Dillon. Homeowners can purchase a tree for just $75. The city and Tree Board cover the remaining portion of the purchase price. Trees can be planted on city owned land which includes the boulevards, city parks, schools or Mountainview Cemetery. The program is first come, first served and limited to funds available.

Several species of trees are available, including Amur Chokecherry, Northern Acclaim Honey locust, Japanese Tree Lilac and Bur Oak. You can pick up an application, or find out more information about the program at City Hall, the MT DNRC office, or the Tree Board website at www.dillontrees.org. The trees will be planted by Tree Board members and volunteers in mid-May.

The funding for the project is derived in full or in part from a federal award of the U.S. Forest Service, Department of Agriculture, sub-awarded by the Montana Department of Natural Resources and Conservation (DNRC), Forestry Division. The City matches the grant funding at 100% to accomplish project work.

Since 2008, the Dillon Tree Board has secured over $91,000 in funding to enhance Dillon's urban forest. The mission of the Tree Board is to preserve, enhance, and expand our community forest through educating the public and promoting community involvement and individual dedication.

Attorney General Tim Fox Urges Congress to Preserve States' Authority to Enforce Data Breach & Data Security Laws

Montana Attorney General Tim Fox joined a coalition of 32 state attorneys general in a letter to Congress Monday, urging lawmakers not to preempt state data breach and data security laws. The coalition specifically focused on laws requiring notice to consumers and state attorneys general of data breaches.

In their letter, the attorneys general argue that any federal law must not diminish the important role of states in addressing data breaches and identity theft, especially in states like Montana, which have laws providing greater protections than federal counterparts.

"Protecting consumers from the harm of a data breach becomes more important every day," said Attorney General Tim Fox. "State consumer protection offices are on the front lines of notifying consumers when their information may be compromised, as well as taking action against companies that don't adequately safeguard customer data. The states' vital role in this arena must be protected."

The letter urges Congress to preserve existing protections in state law, ensure that states can continue to enforce breach notification requirements under their own state laws and enact new laws to respond to new data security threats.

In part, the letter states:

"States have proven themselves to be active, agile, and experienced enforcers of their consumers' data security and privacy. With the increasing threat and ever-evolving nature of data security risks, the state consumer protection laws that our Offices enforce provide vital flexibility and a vehicle by which the States can rapidly and effectively respond to protect their consumers."

The attorneys general point out several concerns with the proposed Data Acquisition and Technology Accountability and Security Act, including:

Reduced transparency to consumers: The bill allows entities suffering data breaches to determine whether to notify consumers of a breach based on their own judgment. The attorneys general argue that when a data breach occurs, impacted consumers should be informed as soon as possible.

Narrow focus on large-scale data breaches: The bill fails to acknowledge that most breaches are either local or regional in nature. The bill only addresses large, national breaches affecting 5,000 or more consumers and prevents state attorneys general from learning of or addressing breaches that are smaller but still cause great harm to consumers.

FWP RELEASES LATEST ELK BRUCELLOSIS TEST RESULTS ONE SEROPOSITIVE ANIMAL FOUND IN TENDOYS OUTSIDE DSA

Results of brucellosis surveillance from 2018 elk capture operations in the Tendoy Mountains and eastern side of the Madison Valley are being evaluated by Montana Fish, Wildlife and Parks and the Montana Department of Livestock.

Of the 100 elk sampled in the Tendoy Mountains, one was found to have been exposed to brucellosis (seropositive). This is the first time an elk has tested positive for exposure in the Tendoy. The Tendoy is currently outside of the Designated Surveillance Area (DSA), an area in which livestock brucellosis testing and traceability requirements exist.

Thirty elk in the Tendoy were outfitted with radio collars to learn more about movement patterns and understand how the disease may spread.

In the south eastern Madison Valley, an area within the DSA, six elk tested positive for exposure out of the 41 sampled there. Forty of the animals were outfitted with

"The discovery of an exposed elk in the Tendoy's emphasizes the importance of elk surveillance near the boundary of the DSA," said Montana State Veterinarian Martin Zaluski, "We appreciated this partnership with FWP which helps us continue to identify livestock potentially at risk."

The goal of brucellosis surveillance operations is to evaluate the presence and understand the movement of brucellosis in Montana's elk populations. The research helps understanding of the overlap between elk and livestock on the landscape.

Brucellosis is a bacterial disease that infects cattle, bison and elk and can result in abortion or the birth of weak calves. The disease is primarily transmitted through contact with infected birth tissues and fluids.

Animals that test positive for brucellosis were exposed to the bacteria at one time and have developed antibodies that can be measured with blood tests.

More information about brucellosis and the Targeted Elk Brucellosis Surveillance project can be found online at: <http://fwp.mt.gov/fishAndWildlife/diseasesAndResearch/healthPrograms/brucellosis/>.

Montana Department of Livestock regulations can be found online at: <http://liv.mt.gov>.

Red Hat Society News

The Red Hat Belles celebrated the first day of Spring, March 20th at Papa T's with twenty ladies attending. This included Amy Scott, who was welcomed as a guest.

Alyce Wassall gave the report on the Dillon backpack Program and another collection was taken for this worthwhile cause.

Door prizes of small clutch purses went to Louise Volkening and Marion Williams. Congratulations.

Thank you to Papa T's for their delicious food and fine service. Special thanks to our co-hostesses, Sydney Tiedgen and Mary Staples. Mary is our newest member with Sydney, this activity turned out to be very enjoyable for everyone.

Barrett Hospital & HealthCare's Personal Finance Advocates

WHO ARE THEY

The Personal Finance Advocates are intelligent, caring, helpful, talented and always watching out for the best interests of the patient. One has a love of animals, has transformed her loving home into a mini ranch, and is a master chocolatier. Another is raising an amazing family, is bilingual and a home improvement specialist who also builds furniture. They are both very involved with family, friends and advocating for the patients; they are very dedicated to Barrett Hospital & HealthCare and the community.

WHAT IS YOUR FAVORITE PART OF YOUR JOB?

"I love that my job challenges me every day and, in every way, possible. I love to interact with the patients; listening to their needs and being able to find a solution that works best for them. Telling patients that they qualify for financial assistance and we are going to take care of their bill is wonderful because I have been able to take one thing off their mind and put them at ease. I also love working with the women in my department. Everyone is so supportive, and we work together to find solutions that have the best possible outcome for the patient's benefit. We are always trying to find new ways to help the patient." – Anita

"Whether it is financial assistance, OB services, or simply setting up a payment plan getting to work with patients through the entire process from beginning to end and finding the resolution that best benefits the patient is what I enjoy most about my job." – Anabel

WHAT DO THEY DO

The Personal Finance Advocates wear many hats and must be great problem solvers. They have the privilege of meeting with many different types of patients and they especially enjoy working with expectant parents to help them understand their insurance, create a financial plan, and be a constant resource for the length of the pregnancy and resolution of the account. Personal Finance Advocates understand that medical expenses are not typically bills that anyone expects to have. They screen patients for financial assistance and work tirelessly to champion the patient through the process. When financial assistance isn't an option, Personal Finance Advocates work to set up budget friendly payment options based on the unique needs of each patient. They are the last step in the process, so they can research any potential concerns, from the time the patient arrives for services through the account resolution. Personal Finance Advocates must adhere to many federal regulations and ensure strict compliance. The Personal Finance Advocates are empathetic to patient's needs and try to alleviate financial worries, so the patient can concentrate on their medical needs without adding financial stress. They can identify many different resources both in and out of Barrett Hospital & HealthCare to assist patients. The Personal Finance Advocate position centers around the patient and they advocate for the best resolution possible with a positive overall patient experience.
