Can Your Family Handle A Day Without Complaints?

Tyrades! by Danny Tyree

Did you notice that Thomas Lickona recently adapted a portion of his book "How to Raise Kind Kids" into the online "Time Magazine" article "How to Raise Grateful Kids in An Era of Thankless People"?

My own son Gideon is a gentle, cheerful, kindhearted lad; but I set aside the time to read the essay because I realize he is still a work in progress.

Even though Gideon has mostly outgrown the "This is the worst day of my life" tantrums, he is still prone to swiping my French fries, neglecting "thank you" notes, delivering perfunctory prayers ("Thank you for our food and our beds. Amen"), procrastinating about his burdensome chores (which require half a hand of fingers to count) and whining about clothes shopping trips that last longer than unlacing the left shoe.

Among the suggestions in Lickona's essay was to take "the no-complaints challenge." In this exercise, everyone in the family must agree to go 24 hours without complaining about ANYTHING.

Raising the issue of going COLD TURKEY on negative vibes can stir up a storm of discord all by itself. ("Did someone say something about 'cold turkey'? Is the microwave busted again? Didn't that thing come from the Pilrgrims' yard sale? The neighbors have a new kitchen and a new car and probably Paula Deen and Dale Earnhardt Jr. to manage those necessities for them...")

Yes, if you're going to PLUNGE into smiley faces and fortitude instead of slowly weaning your family from self-centered habits, you need to find ways to lessen the shock. You might want to set the mood by streaming something like "Don't Worry, Be Happy" or "Man, they said we better accentuate the positive, eliminate the negative, latch onto the affirmative and don't mess with Mr. In-Between."

Your little cherubs will probably gush an enthusiastic pronouncement such as, "I'm so GLAD that Bobby McFerrin and Johnny Mercer aren't here to get their feelings hurt when I crank up Black Sabbath to drown out their music!"

Break out all those uplifting posters, such as "If you can't say something nice about suppertime telemarketing calls, the Washington, D.C. swamp, Fluffy's hairballs and the creepy neighbor boy with the binoculars, don't say anything at all."

Of course, a little common sense is required if a family is to go all-positive. Or when the kids laugh about the 24-hour "ordeal" afterwards, they'll say something like, "Ha! Ha! I wanted to complain about suspicious-looking mosquito crawling up your arm, but I just zipped my lip and went to my happy place."

Classmates and teachers will notice a changed attitude in youngsters who have learned to eliminate their egocentric bellyaching. ("What do you want to be, Johnny - the class president or the captain of the football team?" "Nah, I wanna be a Stepford Wife.")

I just hope that complaint-free days can be the beginning of a lifetime of putting things into perspective. If, instead, they become like Lent, followed by an outpouring of pent-up desire, things could get nasty.

"Why does the Sun have to come up so early? Why does it have to be 93 million miles away? Why does it have to possess a mass 330,000 times that of Earth? Why does it have be a nearly perfect sphere of hot plasma, with internal convective motion that generates a magnetic field via a dynamo process???"

PRESS RELEASE

Documentary Sneak Preview – Dillon, MT

June 10, 2018

Contact: Beverly Penninger, Naka Productions, Inc., 704-621-7236
email: beverly@nakatv.com

IN GOOD FAITH is a documentary that centers around the work of Dr. Orlan Svingen, professor of history at Washington State University (WSU), and his ongoing work with the Mixed Bands of Shoshone, Bannock and Sheepeater Indians at the Fort Hall reservation in Pocatello, Idaho. Through his decades of work with Indian tribes across the U.S., Dr. Svingen has developed strong relationships at Fort Hall and forged the creation of Indian history field schools that are conducted in Central Idaho and Southwestern Montana.

Since 2010, Dr. Svingen and his students have researched The Virginia City Treaty of 1868, negotiated and signed almost 150 years ago by Chief Tendoy. It was signed, in good faith, by the US government and tribal members, but never ratified.

Though never ratified, the US took all that was promised to them and, in return, granted the tribe an Executive Order reservation, a far cry from the terms of the treaty.

Dr. Svingen, researching National Archives microfilm, found the "Holy Grail." It was the signed and sealed Cession Document that clearly laid out the parameters of the treaty and the boundaries of the lands the tribe gave up - over 12,000 square miles of territory in Wyoming and Montana.

With these findings, the Mixed Bands have started the legal process to right the wrong and proceed IN GOOD FAITH.

PIONEER CARE AND REHAB
(previously Parkview Acres)
2nd ANNUAL SPRING CLEAN UP
June 9 & 10
9 am to 4 pm
BBQ LUNCH PROVIDED

Join us at Pioneer Care and Rehab this Saturday and Sunday June 9th & 10th

WHY?: you may ask yourself should I volunteer my time to a private facility owned by a corporation?

BECAUSE our community elderly, infirm, memory impaired, and mentally ill neighbors, family and friends live here. They are cared for by some of the most caring and hardworking caregivers imaginable. This caregiving work is physically and emotionally among the most challenging in healthcare today. This caregiving work is among one of the most rewarding and amazing in healthcare today.

The finances of long term care are complicated and making ends meet is a challenge in providing long term skilled nursing day to day care to those most in need and with the least resources. We are fortunate as a community to have Pioneer Care and Rehab for our families, our neighbors, our friends. The corporation is keeping the doors open. Our volunteer work is much appreciated by the residents and staff who live and work at Pioneer and by the new owners who are motivated to keep our facility vibrant.

Join us to clean, garden, plant, haul dirt and debris, paint and generally spruce the place up. BRING YOUR WHEELBARROWS, GARDEN TOOLS AND GLOVES, CLEANING GLOVES AND BUCKETS. It's a spring clean up! Join us to clean up the home of so many who may have loved to do their own spring clean up but are no longer able. It matters. It's what community is all about.

If you have questions, if you just want to let us know you'll be coming—please call Deb Johnson or Rhenda Goins at Pioneer 683 5105

Thank you!
