Karen Steinbach

It is with love and sadness that we wish to announce the death of Karen R. Steinbach on Sunday, June 17, 2018. Karen was born in Indiana on April 8, 1941, to parents Margaret and Erwin Criswell. After her parent's divorced, Karen and her mother made a blended family with Nelson Holmes and his children, Linda, Terry and Danny. This family moved to Yuma, Ariz., where Karen graduated from high school and attended Northern Arizona University. She married Allen (Scooter) Steinbach and soon moved to northern California with daughters Lutitia and Julia. Karen loved the vineyards and farms in the area. She worked as a respiratory therapist in a local hospital and travelled extensively with friends around the area. Karen returned to school and earned a counseling degree. She finished her career as a marriage and family counselor with Jewish Family Services in the Phoenix area and USMC base in Yuma.

Upon retirement, Karen next fell in love with Montana when she followed daughter Julia to West Yellowstone. Karen helped Julia feed the community and tourists with several dining ventures in that area. One of her great nieces introduced her to a dating site for seniors where Karen met and fell in love with Bill Murphy, his community and the residents.

It was clear that Karen wanted to remain at home during this recent illness and savor the friendships she had formed. She was home except for the times she was travelling the state or jumping out of an airplane just three weeks ago! That was made possible with the help of Amanda, Chris, and several local residents. I am forever grateful to all of them and the loving care of the hospice professionals and staff at Barrett Hospital.

Karen's wish was to be cremated and her ashes spread with those of her daughters in the Montana mountains she could see from her kitchen window. You are invited to look out those same windows on Saturday, June 23, for a celebration of Karen's life. We will serve light refreshments and drinks at her home, 147 Grandview Ranch Ln. Please come at 2 p.m. and bring a story of love and fun.

by Dr. Curry, D.D.S. for four years then moved to the First National Bank for two stints of work that covered sixteen years. In 1974, Maggie moved to the court house and served as Beaverhead County Treasurer for seventeen years. Her abilities were recognized every four years by the voters of Beaverhead County. She retired from her long and distinguished work life in 1991.

Lee and Maggie enjoyed both working hard throughout the week and recreating with friends on weekends. They spent their time skiing and hunting in the winter and fishing and boating in the summer months. They had a special fondness for Flathead Lake and spent many weekends and summer vacations with family and friends at their lake home. They eventually moved to the lake living there for 14 years before returning back to Dillon to be near family.

Maggie had a passion for music and could play many instruments from the violin and accordion to her favorite, the piano. In 1972 a band was formed with Maggie, co-worker Ron Johnson, Bob James, Sandy James, Dr. Allan Riddles and Charlie Lansing, originally called "The Overdrafts." They played at parties for Organizations such as The Danish Brotherhood, SW Stock Growers, Beaverhead Republicans and many wedding receptions and anniversary parties. Dr. Iddles frequently played recordings of their music during surgeries.

Margret was preceded in death by her parents and her husband in 2011. She is survived by her daughter Sandy (Doug) Briggs, grandchildren Brendan (Jenna) Briggs and Brittany (Tyrel) Munday, great grandchildren Finley and Elise Briggs, Chloe and Aason Munday, numerous relatives and friends.

Services will be held at the Brundage Funeral Home on Tuesday, June 26, 2018. The visitation will start at 10:00 with the service at 11:00.

College National Finals Rodeo

Montana Western bareback rider Tristan Hansen placed third at the College National Finals Rodeo (CNFR) after a 73.5 point ride gave him a score of 305.0 on 4 rides.

Hansen, who was tied for first after his first ride of 78.0, scored 75.5 in the second go-round and a 78.0 on his third ride. He went into Saturday's short-go tied for third in the nation. He drew Golden Girl and scored 73.5 to finish third overall just 15 points behind the cowboy from Tarleton State College.

"Tristan had three solid rides and did not draw a strong horse in the short-go," said head coach Olie Else, "He gave it everything he had."

Hansen, a senior from Victor, Idaho and a natural horsemanship major, has now placed in the top ten at the CNFR three times in his career with Bulldogs. In 2016 He placed eighth in the nation and in 2017 took second.

"It has been my honor to have Tristan on the team," said Olie, "He has been a team leader and a force in the bareback riding."

CNFR Recap

Marlee Mussmann had two great runs in the breakaway roping but missed her second calf. (2.3, NS, 2.4) she just missed advancing to the short fo and finished 19th in the nation

Brothers Kelly Murnion (NS, 69.5, NS) and Connor Murnion (NS, NS, NS) had tough luck in the bull riding, Kelly finished 14th in the nation and Connor tied for 19th.

Anna Hasper had three quick runs in the barrels (14.97, 15.80, 14.84, 45.61 on 3) she finished 29th in the nation, missing the short-go by a mere 1.2 seconds.

In the goat tying, Torri Lewis (7.2, 8.1, 7.2, 22.5 on 3) finished 20th in the nation, just missing the cut by 1.6 seconds. Tess Turk (7.3, 9.2, 6.7, 23.2 on 3) finished 26th overall, 2.3 seconds behind the last qualifying spot.

Overall the Bulldog Women's Team finished 18th in the nation ahead of Montana State who was the Big Sky Region Champions.

Legendary coach Iola 'Olie' Else was named 2018 NIRA Coach of the Year for the second time in her 31 year career. She first won the award in 2004 and is the only women to ever received the honor.

Attorney General Fox Defends Montana's Mining Laws in Federal Court

DEQ: Montana's mining laws are "robust"; further regulation unnecessary

Attorney General Tim Fox joined a coalition of thirteen states intervening in a lawsuit to defend state mining laws against federal overreach.

In January 2017, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) proposed a draft rule that would establish nationwide minimum reclamation bonding requirements for hard rock mining under the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act (CERCLA). The Montana Department of Environmental Quality currently regulates bonding requirements for mining operations in the state. If the EPA enacted the rule, it would replace Montana's regulations.

In a comment letter filed with the United States Environmental Protection Agency in July 2017, the Montana Department of Environmental Quality voiced strong opposition to additional federal regulation of hard rock mining.

The letter, sent by DEQ's Air, Energy and Mining Division, stated that Montana has "robust financial assurance programs," and that federal regulation of mining bonding requirements are unnecessary as, "Montana's state programs...provide incentives for operators to implement sound practices at hard rock mining facilities."

DEQ's comments to the EPA also state that Montana's existing environmental regulation of hard rock mining adequately addresses long-term impacts of mining operations.

"The EPA rightly deferred to the states to implement strong environmental protections for hard rock mining—just as Montana has done," said Attorney General Tim Fox.

In February 2018, EPA sided with Montana's DEQ and opted not to issue the rule mandating national bonding limits for hard rock mining operations. The Sierra Club and the Idaho Conservation League filed suit in federal court, challenging EPA's decision not to establish national minimum bonding requirements.

Montana is joined by New Mexico, Nevada, Arizona, Alaska, Arkansas, Louisiana, Wyoming, Colorado, Wisconsin, Utah, South Dakota, South Carolina and Michigan in defending the EPA's decision not to issue the proposed rule.

Forest Service provides bear-resistant containers to the public!

Visitors to the Beaverhead-Deerlodge National Forest (BDNF) and the greater Yellowstone area have been advised for years that odorous items attract bears and must be properly stored out of reach of IMG_0114 animals. Attractant storage is generally a simple process while car camping but can become difficult on bicycle, motorcycle, backpacking or horse packing trips.

The BDNF has a bear-resistant container loaner program to help forest visitors comply with food storage regulations. Forest visitors can check out bear-resistant horse panniers, backpacking "bear barrels" and the popular yet cost-prohibitive bear-resistant coolers for their planned outings.

This popular loaner program has these containers at offices in: Dillon, Wisdom, Wise River, Philipsburg, and Butte. Each office has a limited number of containers—and as this program grows, more containers will become available. The goal is to eliminate bear habituation (bears becoming too accustomed to living or feeding in human areas) while helping the public access containers they would use too infrequently to justify the cost. Visitors are encouraged to check out a bear resistant container for their next outing and help prevent dangerous, food-conditioned bears in our backyards!

For more information about being safe in bear country go online to <https://go.usa.gov/xQBQS>.
