Merrill Wayne Fitzwater

Wayne was born Nov. 9, 1918 at Greenville, Ohio the youngest son of Jasper and Elsie (Bretz) Fitzwater. The parents were basically farmers until the father went to work for the Pennsylvania Railroad, first at Bradford, Ohio and then out of Columbus, Ohio. In the early 1930's Jasper lost the greatest part of his left hand and with the compensation of $12,000 received from the Railroad the family moved to a small farm near Greenville.

Because of bad association with certain persons involved with "bootleggin" on the part of Jasper. The parents divorced with the only daughter Annabelle, staying with the mother and Wayne went back to the Bretz grandparents farm where he had previously lived, along with older brother Stanley, from 1921 through 1934. The reasoning was that boys should be brought up on a farm. Wayne and Stanley worked studiously at farm chores and work and had intense interest in the Western U.S. During those lingering depression years with little pay and few jobs, both boys trapped furbearers which in about 1934 enabled them each to buy Harley-Davidson motorcycles, with Stanley first riding west and then Wayne. Both boys found the west fascinating, but Stanley worked at tree trimming in Ohio and during WWII he went to India as a hydraulic specialist at an airfield.

Wayne went to Montana in 1936 and worked on the Huntley irrigation project in Yellowstone County. From that location the Beartooth Mountains could be seen on a clear day and with the mountains calling he went to the Gallatin Canyon area and worked for the U.S.F.S. until going into the Army in 1941. Wayne was assigned to the First Infantry Division known as "The Big Red One" and went to England for additional training. He saw combat action in the European Theater and received gunshot wounds to the chest, left side and a serious wound to his left leg. Wayne received the Purple Heart, Bronze Star and Combat Infantry Badge. After his military discharge Wayne worked with his brother in a tree-trimming business for a while, was married in 1944 and fathered twin daughters, Bette Lou and Sandra Sue. That marriage ended in divorce with Wayne getting full custody of the daughters. With the difficulty of caring for the very young daughters and securing no reliable baby-sitter and working regularly at tree-trimming Wayne's sister, who was married but childless, asked to take the daughters for rearing. Not too long afterward Wayne was offered a Montana job with the U.S.F. Service. Again, in the Gallatin Canyon area, and moved there in 1948. In 1949 Wayne was offered advancement with the Forest Service on the job as a Montana Game Warden. Having always had an interest in the outdoors and wildlife he was hired as a game warden and worked as such until his retirement in 1978.

In 1952 Wayne married again and a daughter Lorri Anne

Barrett Hospital & HealthCare Expands Sexual Assault
Nurse Examiners (SANE) Services

Together, the Women's Resource/Community Support Center and Barrett Hospital & HealthCare announce their newest member to the sexual assault response team, Karson Sutton, RN. Ms. Sutton joins Becky Deboer, RN, as a Sexual Assault Nurse Examiner (SANE) in delivering compassionate, supportive, and professional care to survivors of sexual violence.

A SANE is a registered nurse who has completed specialized education and clinical preparation to provide comprehensive health care to survivors of sexual violence. SANE's are trained specifically to gather appropriate medical history that lays a foundation to offer the patient suitable options in care, which may include forensic evidence collection, testing and treatment or prevention of sexually transmitted infections, immediate and follow-up services with community based sexual assault advocacy teams, and connection with medical and law enforcement partners.

Barrett Hospital & HealthCare in collaboration with the Women's Resource/Community Support Center began a search to train an additional SANE to provide this much needed service to our community. Sexual violence is historically an underreported event. According to Brylee Zumpf, Victim Advocate with the Women's Resource/Community Support Center, "We know that with compassionate, professional care survivors are more willing to come forward to obtain the necessary medical treatment as a part of their recovery process. Survivors may also be more likely to come forward for medical treatment when they know they do not have to report to law enforcement as a part of the SANE examination." This collaboration between the Women's Resource/Community Support Center and Barrett Hospital & HealthCare provides southwest Montana with much needed survivor recovery services, combining the emotional support from an advocate and a medical professional.

Funding to provide Karson Sutton with SANE training was secured through a grant obtained by the Women's Resource/Community Support Center. With the addition of Ms. Sutton, Barrett Hospital & HealthCare now employs two SANE nurses to provide up-to-date services to sexual assault patients. Although the Women's Resource/Community Support Center provides round-the-clock advocacy services for survivors of domestic and sexual violence, SANE nurse services will still be limited by staff availability. These two organizations together provide the individual with holistic recovery amenities through advocacy and medical intervention. According to Valerie Coulter, Victim Services Coordinator with Women's Resource/Community Support Center, "The SANE examination can be re-traumatizing for the survivor. It is important to deliver immediate, compassionate, comprehensive medical evaluation and treatment by a specially trained medical professional who has the experience to anticipate the patient's needs during this time of crisis." This collaboration between Barrett Hospital & Healthcare and the Women's Resource/Community Support Center provides the necessary compassion and professionalism to help a victim in their recovery to transition to a survivor.

Becky DeBoer started a career in rural nursing after graduating from St. Patrick's School of Nursing in 1975. Becky has worked in small rural medical facilities as an ER nurse throughout the course of her career. This experience has given her the opportunity to work with domestic violence and sexual assault patients. In 2007, Becky was certified as a SANE-A and now provides care and collection of evidence for adult and adolescent sexual assault patients in Beaverhead and Madison Counties. Becky DeBoer states, "As a SANE nurse, I have the privilege of caring for someone on one of the worst days of their life and am able to offer compassion and care so they can begin the process of healing."

Karson Sutton was born and raised in Dillon, Montana. In 2015, Karson graduated from MSU Northern with a Bachelor of Science in Nursing. After graduating college, she started working at Barrett Hospital & HealthCare as a registered nurse. In April of 2018, Karson became certified as a Sexual Assault Nurse Examiner. Karson Sutton says, "I am very excited about this new training and honored to be one of just two nurses to offer this service to our community."

Montana Department of Justice Investigator to Speak at Special Olympics USA National Games Opening Ceremonies

An investigator from the Montana Department of Justice (DOJ) has been selected to speak at the opening ceremonies of the Special Olympics USA National Games in Seattle on Sunday. The event will be televised live from Husky Stadium starting at 3:30 pm Eastern Time on ABC and ESPN.

Jason Johnson, Western District Supervisor/Investigator for DOJ's Gambling Control Division, will also be a team leader for one of six teams of the Final Leg Team of the Law Enforcement Torch Run (LETR), which raises funds for and awareness about Special Olympics worldwide. Teams are comprised of officers and athletes from all over the country who will run the torch throughout the state of Washington leading up to the opening ceremonies. Johnson was selected to speak in light of his many years of experience with LETR and previous leadership on multiple final legs, including those in Japan, Greece, and Korea. He'll be accompanied at the podium by John Sherbert from Special Olympics Nebraska. A long-time supporter of the Montana LETR, Attorney General Tim Fox said, "I'm very proud Officer Jason Johnson is representing not only our agency, but Montana's extended law enforcement family at the National Games. As someone who has been involved in LETR and Special Olympics for nearly his entire law enforcement career, Officer Johnson understands how important it is to further the cause of the Special Olympics movement by championing love, acceptance, and inclusion for individuals with intellectual disabilities."

"Law enforcement is a very tough career that takes its toll, but the people I've met through Special Olympics have counter-balanced the negative things I've seen from the 'bad guys' in our society," Officer Jason Johnson said. "Special Olympics athletes and their families are some of the most inspiring people you could ever hope to know. My involvement in the Law Enforcement Torch Run and in Special Olympics has made me a better officer, husband, and father," Johnson added. Last year, the National Association of Attorneys General (NAAG), with its membership of 56 state and territory attorneys general, announced a partnership
