Dave Hagerman

1957-2018

Dave is pictured above with Shiva, his best friend and constant companion during the nine years he was foreman for the West Riverside Canal Company in the 1980's, running water for the farms and ranches of Southern California. Over the last year, Dave dealt with diminishing health and would say that if he should leave us, he'd be waiting at the 'Rainbow Bridge', where all the dogs we've ever loved are happy and romping around beautiful green fields under sunny skies.

Dave was born on April 16, 1957. Looking ahead to continued physical decline, Dave chose to gently pass over to the Rainbow Bridge on July 7, 2018. We honor his choice and we honor his life.

Dave lived his life with exuberance; proud of his service in the US Marine Corps, riding his Harley Davidsons on the wide, open highways, taking pride in his hard work and always ready to stand up for people he met who were bullied or disadvantaged.

Dave felt so lucky that when he came to Montana, he was able to return to the open spaces and work he loved, running water for the East Bench Irrigation District. He would call his mom to describe the eagles, the fox kits, the clouds and the feeling of freedom and peace his job gave him. Dave felt a deep appreciation for his boss and his work colleagues on the Bench.

Dave is survived by his mother, Carol V. Higgins; his sister, Cynthia McCulloh; most gratefully, his loving and caring partner, Sharon Andersen, and her grandson, Troy Andersen, who gave Dave the honor of being his 'grandpa' and brought him enormous joy. He is also survived by his special chosen brothers, Mercer, and Flip.

A memorial service will be held at the First Presbyterian Church on July 14, 2018 at 11 a.m.

"Hellgate Tourney" {Medieval Tournament}

The Society of Creative Anachronism held its first annual "Hellgate Tourney" {Medieval Tournament} at its new location on Smith Park along the banks of the Beaverhead River west of Dillon after many years of events in Missoula, MT. The Renaissance group chose Dillon as its new location after looking at several venues around Montana to replace the Missoula location.

Smith Park Stables owner, Stan Smith, worked with organizers to bring this annual event to Dillon that celebrates with competition in archery and throwing weapons, armored and rapier melees. The Barony of Sentinel's Keep Archery Championship and Viking Boat Races were a popular event. The event also had children's games, banner painting, and period games

History Event at Tendoy Fine Art Gallery

"The Meade Hotel", Watercolor by Jessica Glen.

During the week leading up to Bannack Days at Bannack State Park, the Tendoy Fine Art Gallery in Dillon is arranging a special collection of artwork done by gallery members. The artists will display works from July 16th through the 21st that were inspired by Southwestern Montana history. The exhibit will include some artifacts from members as well.

There is well established precedence for the link between history and art. In prehistoric times, artists were painting on cave walls to inform others of events past and present. This early form of communication tells us, thousands of years later, much about the people who lived then. Greek and Roman Architecture and figurative sculpture is a benchmark for art today, but also helps us glimpse life in ancient times. In the middle ages, paintings, sculptures and stained glass windows were a way of communicating the life of Christ and religious concepts to congregations, many of whom could not read. Beyond depiction of events, however, art has the capacity to illuminate and shape our perceptions of those events. Featuring Bannack City views, pioneer clothing and artifacts, and Native American inspired subjects, the artists at the Tendoy Fine Art Gallery hope that this exhibit will provide

Marcus Payne, a 2018 Montana Western graduate, is working for NASA on several projects including research, marketing, and partnership opportunities during his summer internship.

The highly competitive internships have an acceptance rate of only about 450 out of thousands of applicants.

This summer, two Montana Western students, including Business Administration major Marcus Payne and Business Administration and Mathematics double major Baleigh Doyle are participating in summer internships at NASA's Goddard Space Flight Center (GSFC) in Maryland.

The Montana University System (MUS) is committed to providing students at all Montana campuses with hands-on research experiences, while preparing them to compete nationally for research internships that will allow them to gain exposure to cutting-edge techniques and ideas.

One of the cutting-edge projects Payne has been assigned at NASA is the creation of a marketing campaign that showcases successful licensing agreements and partnerships that connect external companies to technologies, which are developed at GSFC.

"After completing two years at a university with a traditional schedule, I'm thankful for finishing my university career at Montana Western. The hands-on, team-oriented nature of Experience One translates well to the work environment at NASA. I work with a collaborative group of people on projects everyday and that's what Montana Western prepared me for," said Payne about UMW's unique block scheduling program.

NASA frequently patents new technologies in software, hardware, and processes. Part of NASA's obligation is to make these innovations available to the private sector through the Strategic Partnerships Office (SPO), where Payne, a native of Livingston, Mont., is working this summer. According to NASA's SPO website, the technologies are available from three different core program areas.

The first area is through technology transfer, which promotes the transfer of GSFC-developed technology to the private sector.

The Small Business Innovation Research (SBIR) and Small Business Technology Transfer (STTR) programs, which manages the award of R&D contracts to small businesses and university partners consistent with NASA-wide and GSFC-specific directives form the second area.

Lastly, partnerships, which encourage creative collaborations between GSFC researchers and external parties for mutual benefit, make up the third program area.

Payne is also working with the Optimus Prime Spinoff Promotion & Research Challenge (OPSPARC) program team. According to NASA, "students (in grades 3-12) are asked to use their imagination to identify NASA Spinoff technology in their everyday world using memory foam, artificial limbs, scratch-resistant lenses, shoe insoles, etc. that were first developed for a NASA mission and re-worked to make everyday life easier."

Students displayed their research in a multimedia poster that was submitted and shared with NASA. The OPSPARC first place teams or individuals received a stipend to visit Goddard Space Flight Center for two days of hands-on workshops with astronauts and scientists in addition to attending the award ceremony. Payne assisted with the award ceremony and workshops, held June 13-14, 2018. These events were an exciting part of the competition that is open to students across the United States and Canada. Payne is also researching business incubators in Washington, D.C., Maryland, Virginia, and Delaware.

"Start-ups and businesses that use these incubators could benefit from NASA technologies, so we want to identify businesses that would be good fits for partnerships," said Payne.

Public Asked to Respect Highland Lookout Road Closure

The Forest Service would like to remind visitors the Highland Lookout Road (Forest Road 8514) south of Butte is closed to public use. The road has been closed since 1989 to provide resource protection.

This steep, narrow and multiple switchback road is closed by a gate that was vandalized last fall leaving the road open. Forest crews are in the process of repairing the gate and in the interim reflective barriers have been placed at the gate closure. The Forest Service is asking visitors to respect the closure and not remove the barriers.

For more information contact the Butte Ranger District at (406) 494-2147.
