ANTHONY DUKES, USC PROFESSOR OF MARKETING, TO PRESENT AT MONTANA WESTERN

Anthony Dukes, Professor of Marketing from the University of Southern California, will give a guest lecture on Thursday, Sept. 13, from 3:30-4:30 p.m. in Main Hall room 218 titled "Different People, Different Prices: Labeling Consumers."

Dukes will speak about the interesting phenomenon of price discrimination and will discuss how sellers segment consumers for the purpose of charging different prices. The presentation will be modeled using everyday examples.

Dukes received his PhD in Economics from the University of Pittsburgh. He studies the economics of marketing strategies as they apply to pricing, retail and distribution channels, as well as antitrust laws.

His research has appeared in the "Journal of Marketing Research," "Marketing Science," "Management Science," and other leading academic journals. He teaches pricing strategies and core marketing management courses in the Marshall School of Business MBA program.

Dukes is also an associate editor of the "Journal of Marketing Research," "Management Science," and "Marketing Science."

Safe Archery Hunting in Bear Country

Archery hunters are, by design, good at sneaking up on bears unobserved. They also provide bears with an attractive food source in the form of gut piles and carcasses. Follow a few precautions to minimize bear interactions to increase safety while hunting this season.

1. Be aware of your surroundings at all times. Watch for bear sign in the form of scat, tracks, or scratch trees. Be on alert in areas of low visibility and by streams which mask noises.
2. Bear spray works! Bear spray produces a large cloud that targets a bear's nose and eyes - its most sensitive areas. "In a study of bear spray incidents in Alaska, spray effectively deterred undesirable behavior more than 90% of the time. In 72 incidents involving 175 people, only three people were harmed, none seriously."
3. Calling for elk and deer/elk scents are attractive to bears. Bears have approached hunters while calling, and in some areas have become attracted to gunshots after learning to associate the noise with a carcass or gut pile. Consider leaving scents at home when traveling in grizzly country. You can expect to find grizzly bears in Southwest Montana, even in areas outside their current known range.
4. Keep a clean camp. Bears are very smart, have a great memory and if they receive a food reward in one camp, they may become aggressive as they continue to raid camps. Make sure all attractants are placed in a hard-sided vehicle, locked in a bear-resistant container, or hung 10 feet up and four feet out from any supporting branches. Anything that has a smell or has once had a smell needs to be put away. This includes food, garbage, toothpaste, deodorant, blood-covered clothing, and any stock feed (except hay without additives).

5. Regular coolers are not bear-resistant and must be appropriately stored, even when empty. Check with a local ranger station about obtaining bear-resistant containers through the loaner program, free of charge.

6. If you are fortunate enough to harvest an animal this year, gut it immediately and move the gut pile at least 200 yards away from any trail. This may help keep the bear away from you and your carcass and may also prevent other hunters from stumbling on a bear. Remove your kill as soon as possible. If you need to leave a carcass on the forest, hang it (10' up, 4' out) 100 yards or farther from a sleeping area or trail. If you must leave it on the ground make sure it is at least a half mile from any sleeping area and 200 yards from a trail. Leave your kill in a place where you can view it from 200 yards away as you return.

7. Pack tarps for moving gut piles, ropes and a pulley for hanging game.

Signs one might encounter in the back country. Be alert, make noise, hike in groups of three or more, do not run if you encounter a bear and stand your ground if charged by a bear.

Remember to be fire safe which means to completely put out your campfires before leaving as conditions are still dry on the forest. Keep informed of current fire restrictions by going online to <https://firerestrictions.us/mt/> for more information.

Also, use motorized vehicles only on designated routes, and bring certified weed-free hay and straw. For information about local regulations or bears, go to the Beaverhead-Deerlodge National Forest website at www.fs.usda.gov/bdnf, or stop by a local Forest Service office.

UM Alumnus Wins Young Forester Leadership Award

The Society of American Foresters recently named Jason Parke, an alumnus of the University of Montana W. A. Franke College of Forestry and Conservation, the recipient of the 2018 Young Forester Leadership Award.

The accolade is given to SAF members under the age 40 who demonstrate outstanding leadership in forestry, recognizing both the development of individual projects and programs and sustained leadership roles in the society and the profession.

Parke is the first and only forester for Montana Fish, Wildlife and Parks.

"I work for the Habitat Bureau of the Wildlife Division, so my primary responsibility is to manage the forest for habitat objectives on wildlife management areas around the state," Parke said.

He also assists with projects for the fisheries and parks divisions and has his hands in all varieties of ventures relating to forest management. Parke has held the role since 2015, and he said his favorite part of his job is the opportunity to build the FWP program from the ground up.

Parke graduated from UM in 2006, earning a B.S. in forestry with a concentration in forest resource management.

"I grew up in Montana hunting, fishing and spending time outdoors," he said. "As a kid, I didn't really know that there was a potential career out there, but my dad's friend worked for the Natural Resources Conservation Service. I talked to him a little bit about working in the field and then looked into those options at UM. I already had it in my head to go to UM."

He started out as a parks, tourism and recreation management major, but heard about forestry during orientation. He signed up for the forestry first-year interest group and switched majors after his first semester. As a student, he was involved with the Forestry Student Association, the SAF student chapter, the Montana Druids honors organization and the Woodsman Team.

He also served as chief push of the 89th annual Foresters' Ball. He says his favorite memories from college center around the teamwork and camaraderie of organizing the event and the leadership skills he learned in the process.

Parke joined SAF as a student in 2002. He has chaired the Student Chapter and the Flathead Chapter, served as state chair of the Montana SAF in 2015 and is currently co-chair of the Eastside Chapter.

The Young Forester Leadership Award will be presented at the 2018 SAF national convention Oct. 3-7 in Portland, Oregon. Parke says the biggest honor of the award is the support from the Montana SAF community who nominated him, including a letter of support from UM Provost Emeritus Perry Brown.

Parke's advice to current FCFC students is to get involved in clubs that match their interests – from the American Fisheries Society to the Wildlife Society.

"The leadership skills I was able to get out of being involved in clubs was huge," Parke said. "Offer to help when they're looking for officers or just a project that they're taking on. To be involved in that is a huge way to get that leadership experience early on. It helped me land my seasonal jobs and my first permanent job. You just make a lot of connections."

Beaverhead Search and Rescue News

Submitted by: Mel Rice, Public Relations Officer

The Beaverhead Search and Rescue has had a pretty uneventful August. There were no searches or rescues in Beaverhead County during the month. However one member and one Sheriff's deputy drove to Livingston to aid in the search for a missing young man presumed drowned in the Yellowstone River. Because of numerous scheduling conflicts the summer training camp out was unfortunately cancelled.

On Wednesday, September 5th, the unit held its monthly meeting with 22 members in attendance. The unit's working committees got together to discuss needs in each of their areas. They presented their needs to the membership. Some of those needs were acted on immediately. On September 8th, Tara Remely will take the command post to the airport to participate in "Dillon Airport Days". The Girl Scouts asked the unit to present the "Hug a Tree" program to them on the 22nd of September. It will be held up Birch Creek. Each year the members take their spouses out for dinner at which time the Beaverhead S&R present awards for the "Outstanding Member" and "Rookie of the Year". This year the dinner will be held at Sparky's.

The next meeting will be held October 3rd. If interested in the Search and Rescue, come see what we are about. Visit the unit during one of its monthly meetings. We are into the hunting seasons now and anyone who has lived in Montana for any length of time knows just how fast the weather can change. Be prepared for any and all circumstances when you venture to the great outdoors. Always let someone know where you are heading and when you plan to return home.

Path of the Puma book signing, Tuesday, September 18, 7pm

Join us for an evening with wildlife biologist and author Jim Williams, whose new book, Path of the Puma, tells his story of wildlife conservation and mountain lion research. Jim has chased ghost cats from the Yukon Territory to Tierra del Fuego, exploring what makes the puma so resilient and resourceful. He'll share stories of magical landscapes, remarkable wildlife habitats and the people who work to protect them. Snacks and drinks are both on the house at this free and engaging event. Buy a book and have it signed by the author!
