Recent Data Breaches Reinforce Need for Cyber-security Awareness and Response

Two recent data breaches, one at a Bozeman-based company and another at Facebook, highlight the importance of knowing how to minimize the risk of cyber threats and how to respond if your personal data may have been compromised.

On Friday, Facebook notified the Montana Department of Justice's Office of Consumer Protection that approximately 50 million user accounts were impacted by a data breach. Facebook did not indicate if any user information was accessed or if any Montana-based accounts were impacted.

The Office of Consumer Protection recommends the following best practices for consumers who use social media:

- Change your password regularly, and always use a strong password. Click here for more password creation tips.
- When available, use two-factor authentication for login.
- Refrain from using any automatic sign-in functions/features of social media accounts and applications.
- Monitor your privacy settings and adjust as needed.
- Remove birth dates, addresses, and phone numbers from your account information.
- Carefully consider the information you post, recognizing that in the event of a data breach, it could end up in the hands of people intent upon stealing your identity or conducting other malicious activities.

Recently, Montana's Office of Consumer Protection also learned that Legacy Properties, a Bozeman-based property management company, experienced a data breach affecting between 900 and 1,020 Montanans. After the breach, the hackers posted the affected consumers' personal information on several publicly accessible websites. The hackers then emailed many of these consumers, demanding a ransom payment to remove their information from the websites.

Montana law requires timely reporting of data breaches to the Attorney General's Office and to individuals whose private information is compromised. "It's important for businesses to establish procedures for data breach prevention and recovery, and for consumers to be vigilant about protecting their personal information," Attorney General Tim Fox said. "Additionally, I encourage Montanans to contact local law enforcement or our Office of Consumer Protection if they are ever asked to pay a ransom in relation to a data breach."

Scammers who obtain the personal information of others may try to open new accounts or extort money from their victims. According to Montana's Office of Consumer Protection, there are several options for Montanans to monitor their credit and keep their identities safe, including:

- Don't pay a ransom. Paying a ransom is an ineffective way of handling the exposure of your personal information. It's best to focus on proactively securing your identity.

- Consider a free security freeze. A security freeze allows you to "lock up" your credit information so no one can access it without your permission. A freeze prevents a thief from taking out a new mortgage, applying for a credit card, or getting financing with your identity. When you "freeze" your credit, it stays frozen for as long as you'd like - until you can comfortably "thaw" it once again.
- Place a fraud alert on your credit. Fraud alerts are a special message you can place on your credit report. The alert tells credit issuers there may be fraudulent activity on an account. Fraud alerts last for 90 days; although they won't stop a scammer from being issued new credit, they can slow them down.
- Request a free credit report annually. Reviewing your credit report is a great way to check for unauthorized activity. Visit www.annualcreditreport.com or call 1-877-322-8228 to request your free annual report.
- Credit monitoring services offer additional protection. Credit monitoring services track changes in your behavior and send you notifications about your credit score and potential fraud. These services typically cost between $10 -- $30 per month.

For more information, call the Office of Consumer Protection at 406-444-4500 or 1-800-481-6896. Email contactocp@mt.gov or visit <https://dojmt.gov/consumer/affected-data-breach/> for instructions on how to protect your personal information from being used for fraudulent purposes.

Attorney General Fox Asks U.S. Supreme Court to Allow Prosecution of DNA-linked Suspect in Child Rape Case

Montana case has national implications

Montana Attorney General Tim Fox is asking the U.S. Supreme Court to allow his office to prosecute a suspect linked by DNA evidence to the 1987 rape of an eight-year-old child in Billings.

In July, the Montana Supreme Court ruled that, despite newly discovered DNA evidence, Ronald Dwight Tipton could not be tried for rape because of a 2003 U.S. Supreme Court ruling preventing new charges after the statute of limitations expired. In Montana's brief filed today, Fox asks the U.S. Supreme Court to revisit that 2003 ruling, arguing that it should not apply in cases where perpetrators evaded identification past the statute of limitations but were later identified by DNA evidence.

"This is an example of the law catching up to science," Fox said. "We have DNA evidence that conclusively identifies the suspect in a heinous crime, and justice demands that he be brought to trial. I have met with the victim and am pleased that she supports our efforts. A victory at the U.S. Supreme Court will not only allow us to bring justice and closure for her, but will help achieve similar results throughout the country as perpetrators are conclusively identified through breakthroughs in DNA science."

On March 20, 1987, a man entered a Billings home and raped an eight-year-old girl three times. The suspect's DNA evidence was preserved but not identified until 2014, when it matched Tipton's DNA profile submitted to the State Crime Laboratory in a Meagher County drug possession case. Prosecutors then charged Tipton for the 1987 rapes, but the Montana Supreme Court dismissed the charges in July of this year after it found that U.S. Supreme Court precedent prevented prosecution.

If the U.S. Supreme Court accepts the case, oral arguments will likely be this coming spring.

Montana's brief is available online.

ASSISTANT PROFESSOR FRANCIS DAVIS PUBLISHED IN DISTINCTLY MONTANA.

Montana Western Assistant English Professor Francis Davis.

Montana Western Assistant Professor Francis Davis was published in Distinctly Montana, a magazine published out of Bozeman, Mont. and distributed across the state. His short story "Montana" was featured in their fall publication.

"Montana" is part of his debut publication, West of Love, a collection of short stories which was published in 2017 by Brighthorse Books.

Valerie Harms, editor of Distinctly Montana, is continually on the lookout for Montana-based authors. After reading the book, Harms felt that "the story would be a great fit for their fall feature."

"Montana" is a story of a young couple new to the state and living in Missoula. One fall day, the couple drives to Yaak, a small town in northwestern Montana, where they experience some of the wonders of Montana and test the boundaries of their young relationship.

Davis has shared the story a few times at public readings, including one at Montana Western during the "Dances with Words" series. He also read it at last year's Montana Festival of the Book in Missoula. The book has been met with positive reviews.

"Hopefully, this story works as an homage to young love. It also was written with a lot of love for Montana, and I think that comes through. This state has been mythologized by so many writers I admire, writers like William Kittredge, Richard Ford, and Dick Hugo, so it was fun, and a real challenge, to throw my hat into the ring," said Davis.

Francis Davis was born and raised in Philadelphia but has

Burning to Begin on the Madison Ranger District

Fire officials from the Madison Ranger District will soon begin prescribed fire activity which may result in intermittent visible smoke beginning October 4, 2018 and continuing through the end of November.

Firefighters will be burning in the Standard Creek and West Fork areas of the Gravelly Mountains Range and in the South Meadow Creek area of the Tobacco Root Mountains.

Fire crews will burn under prescribed conditions and monitor these burns after ignition to ensure they stay within prescribed boundaries.

Travelers and residents along Highway 287 between Cameron, Cliff and Wade Lake and the South Meadow Creek area may see smoke from these burns, however little impact from the smoke is expected. For more information regarding these prescribed burns, contact the Madison Ranger District at (406) 682-4253.

Bible Truth... Christ's Offering Guarantees Eternal Security

----We believe the following: (1) the Bible was given by the inspiration of God, 2 Timothy 3:16-17; (2) all statements made in this and any ensuing articles will be based on what the Bible says; (3) the Bible only is the reliable source of spiritual & doctrinal truth; (4) all beliefs in conflict with the Bible are false.

I recently counselled a man who was overwhelmed with grief due to his wife passing away. His wife had accepted Christ as her Savior as a teen-ager and lived her life based on biblical principles. Depression and possible other mental ailments brought a change in her personality during the 2 years prior to her death. The man's fear was that some of these changes may have altered her eternal status and once again placed her under God's condemnation.

Jesus, however, gives us assurance that this cannot happen to a true believer. This promise in John 5:24 states, "Verily, verily, I say to you, he that hears my word, and believes on him that sent me, has everlasting life, and shall not come into condemnation; but is passed from death unto life."

Our spiritual salvation and security is NOT based on our actions, but on the perfection of Christ's one offering upon the cross. The sacrifices made under the law could never take away sin; they simply covered sin for the time being. But when Christ came into the world He offered Himself as the eternal sacrifice without spot to God.

Hebrews 10:14 states, "For by one offering He hath perfected forever them that are sanctified." Perfected means to be made complete or to carry through completely. For ever means to be continuous. [Notice that there is no condition, such as "as long as they are faithful," included in the scripture.]

We are saved eternally because the sacrifice of Christ abides. When we trust Him all that He has done goes down to our account. Note 2 Corinthians 5:21 where it states that God made Jesus, who knew now sin, to be sin for us, so we can be made the righteousness of God through Him.

Sinful actions cannot keep the believer out of heaven because we are kept secure by the action of Christ on Calvary.
