Bridger Chambers Finishes Strong at His First National Finals Rodeo

Bridger Chambers, originally from Stevensville, Mont., was a basketball and rodeo standout at Montana Western. He graduated with a degree in Secondary Education P.E. and Health in 2013. In 2018 Chambers chased a childhood dream and ended up qualifying for the 60th National Finals Rodeo in steer wrestling. After 10 rounds of rodeo, Chambers walked away the reserve world champion.

Many members of Chambers' family graduated from UMW so it was no surprise when he decided to attend Montana Western. The flexibility of the block system at UMW allowed Chambers to play basketball and participate in rodeo while completing his degree. Chambers was the first person to compete in both the NAIA National basketball tournament and the College National Finals rodeo in the same year.

"I loved the block scheduling program. UMW was a great environment for me and what I wanted to do," stated Chambers.

Chambers notes that the small class sizes and community support surrounding the campus helped make his college career a success.

In March 2018, Chambers placed second in the steer wrestling at the Ram National Circuit Finals in Florida. His winnings afforded him the opportunity to launch his full time rodeo career. His goal was to place consistently at rodeos across the U.S. and Canada in order to make it to his first National Finals Rodeo held every December in Las Vegas, Nevada.

The NFR can be thought of as the Super Bowl of professional rodeo. Rodeo Contestants compete at sanctioned rodeos throughout the nation, collecting winnings. The top 15 contestants who won the most money over the year advanced to the NFR held Dec. 6-15, 2018. Chambers, who competed in 84 rodeos over the season, entered the NFR number eight in the world with year-end earnings totaling $81,175.35.

Professional rodeo is expensive and Chambers is the first to admit it.

"I didn't have $81,000 in my pocket when I made it to Vegas. I paid more than $14,000 in entry fees alone this past year. The Finals is where you make your money and I took a big chance hoping it would all work out," Chambers explained.

The NFR is held on the campus of the University of Nevada Las Vegas in the iconic Thomas and Mack Center which is temporarily converted from a basketball court to an arena. The 10 day event has become a symbol of rodeo culture and Chambers got to be a part of making history. A gallant grand entry starts off the rodeo every night where the contestants gallop into the arena on horses.

"When I ran through that tunnel the first night and saw everyone cheering for me, seeing my family in the stands, that was when I realized I did it," Chambers said.

When Chambers nodded for his steer at the first go-round of the finals, a surge of adrenaline hit him. His mind however, stayed focused with only one thought: get to the horns.

In the steer wrestling event, contestants are required to launch a horse from a stand-still into a full on sprint in order to catch up to a steer that has a head-start. They then jump off their horse and wrestle the steer to the ground. If they want to place in a go-round at the finals, all of this must often be done in under 4.5 seconds. This event is not for the small or faint of heart. Chambers is neither, standing 6' 5" and tipping the scale at 240 pounds.

Chambers placed in five out of the ten go-rounds in Vegas ending up second in the average. All in all, he pocketed over $135,000 at the coveted event, enough to earn him the title of reserve world champion steer wrestler.

After returning to Butte, Mont. where he currently resides, it's back to business as usual. When he isn't rodeoing, Chambers helps run a detection business with contraband sniffing dogs. He and his horse will take a short break around the holidays but then it's back to the rodeo trail with the goal of making another finals.

"My dream came true and now it is a consistent goal," Chambers stated.

SNOW REMOVAL REMINDER

With winter rapidly approaching and snow in the air, The City of Dillon would like to remind all homeowners and businesses about the requirements of clearing sidewalks.

The City of Dillon Ordinance 12.40.040 requires that all sidewalks in the Central Business District be freed from the night's accumulation of snow before 10:00 a.m. of the same day.

All other areas of the city must be kept clean of snow and not be allowed to remain on the sidewalks for a period longer than 12 hours.

Any person convicted of violating the provisions of this title shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall pay a fine of not less than twenty-five dollars and not more than one hundred dollars.

If you have any questions please contact Todd Hazelbaker, Director of Operations, at 683-4245.

2. HECTIC HOLIDAYS CONTRIBUTE TO DEPRESSION

The Center for Disease Control estimates nearly one in ten individuals report having depression. Holidays can be particularly stressful and someone who is depressed has more difficulty managing the demands of the holiday season. Take care of yourself this season by practicing self-care! Eat a healthy diet, and maintain a regular sleep pattern and exercise program. Need to talk to someone? Call 1-800-273-TALK or 1-800-273-8255 or text "MT" to 741741. Call or text 24/7. Someone is always ready to listen.

Letter to the Editor

It seems ever year we start Christmas earlier and earlier. Here is my take on the Christmas Season.

by: LaVon D. Brillhart

Oh my it's the first of the year
Only 358 days until Christmas cheer
Tis the season when prices are a good deal
Just a few days early to start your Christmas meal

Valentine's Day with your Christmas hearts
St. Valentine is St. Christmas counterpart
On this Valentine Day won't you be my Christmas love
On February 14th my turtle dove

Tis the day of honor of the President
The day of great shopping and merriment
Tis not the day of impeachment or treason
Tis the day to celebrate the Christmas season

Now St. Patrick always wears green
He was born in the land of Nazarene
Tis the day to dance and drink green beer
Just another day to celebrate the Christmas cheer

Tis the first of April, Oh my fool
The day you decorate your favorite toad stool
Tis the season when Santa comes by day
The season we all lift our heads in dismay

Tis the first Sunday in the Month of May
The day you bring your Mother a Christmas bouquet
The day you honor your Mother dear
Buy her candy, flowers or a new brassiere

Memorial Day, the day to be patriotic
Christmas thoughts in may making you neurotic
The day of flowers, flags and parade
Marching with your credit card and not being afraid

The third Sunday in June
Your tree will be decorated very soon
Presents under the tree for Father's Day
Oh, wait, I think I heard bells from a sleigh

Tis now the 4th of July
The season we all can identify Blowing up presents to celebrate
Please bring more for me to annihilate

The first Monday in September
A day off Christmas Labor to remember
The day to honor the elves for their job
For all their work making you a thingamabob

Halloween and time for the old witch
But beware for now she has a new pitch
The displays are up in every aisle
The merchants now have a Christmas smile

Now it's November with a great big feast
Look in the sky, see the turkey in the East
The day of Pilgrims, Elves, and their reindeer
Off to the mall for the best shopping of the year

Now there's a green tree in the house with lights
Wreaths, decorations, presents making wonderful sights
Today tis the 25th of December
I know a holiday, which one, I can't remember!
