February is Teen Dating Violence Awareness Month

Dating abuse affects people from all ages, backgrounds and identities, which is why it is important to talk about how abuse can happen in young people's relationships. Check out these statistics:

Dating Abuse Is a Public Health Crisis

- One in three high school students experience either physical or sexual violence, or both, that is perpetrated by someone they are dating or going out with.
- Young women between the ages of 18 - 24 experience the highest rate of intimate partner violence, almost double the national average.
- One in ten high school students has been purposefully hit, slapped or physically hurt by a boyfriend or girlfriend.
- Lesbian, gay and bisexual (LGB) youth are more likely to experience physical and psychological dating abuse, sexual coercion, and cyber dating abuse than their heterosexual peers.

The Abuse Starts Early

- More than half of women (69.5%) and men (53.6%) who have been physically or sexually abused, or stalked by a dating partner, first experienced abuse between the ages of 11-24.
- Of the 8.5% of middle school students who report having bullied a classmate, nearly 1 in 5 have been a victim of dating abuse.
- Nearly half of female and 1 in 4 male high school students who report experiencing sexual or physical abuse by a dating partner, have also been bullied electronically.

The Impact is Severe

- Among male high school students who have experienced sexual and physical abuse by a dating partner, more than 1 in 4 have seriously contemplated suicide, and almost as many have attempted suicide.
- Among female high school students who have experienced sexual and physical abuse by a dating partner, nearly half have seriously contemplated suicide, and more than 1 in 4 have attempted suicide.
- High school girls who have experienced dating abuse are 2.6 times more likely to report a STD diagnosis.

The Impact is Severe

- High school students who have been hit, slapped, or physically hurt on purpose by their partner earned grades of C and D twice as often as earning grades of A or B.
- Women who have experienced sexual assault, physical abuse, or stalking by an intimate partner are three times more likely to report poor mental health.

It's Not Just Teens

- An estimated 20 - 25 percent of female college students will experience attempted or completed rape before graduation, and those are only the ones who self-disclose.

• Nearly half (43%) of all college women and one third (28%) of college men report having experienced either abuse or controlling behaviors in a dating relationship.

The Time to Talk Is Now

• Education and raising awareness is important! More than half (58%) of college students do not know how to help someone who is experiencing dating abuse, and nearly all (89%) are not confident in their ability to recognize the warning signs.

• More than half of all college students report experiencing either abuse or controlling behaviors in a dating relationship while in college, with 70% reporting they were not aware they were in an abusive relationship at the time.

Beaverhead Family Planning (406-683-4771) is committed to educating our community about teen dating violence. Break the Cycle organization's mission is to inspire and support young people to build healthy relationships and create a culture without abuse. The information above and much more is available at their website, www.breakthecycle.org.

You are not alone...if you are a young person in an abusive relationship, talk with a peer advocate. Test "loveis" to 22522 or you can call the local Community Support Center's 24 hour crisis hotline at 1-800-253-9811.

Beaverhead-Deerlodge NF Thanks Communities for Support during Shut Down

Dear Editor,

I'd like to take a moment on behalf of the employees of the Beaverhead-Deerlodge National Forest to express appreciation to our local communities in southwest Montana. I would like to acknowledge the show of support from partners, citizens and businesses during the recent federal government shut down.

Our federal employees experienced an overwhelming show of support including hosted dinners by local businesses to show how much they appreciated the federal employees in our communities. Your support to employees and their families demonstrated that they are truly part of your community family.

While it is not a surprise that rural Montanans would take care of each other, we recognize and thank each of you for your support and patience while we were furloughed. With funding temporarily restored, we are now assessing priorities for the remainder of the year and returning to the work of "caring for the land and serving people."

Thank you so much for caring for our employees.

Neon Artist Visits Montana Western

Jacob Fishman, a visiting neon artist, presented a public artist's lecture on Thursday, Jan. 24, in the Mary Baker Emerick Art Annex Lecture Room at Montana Western. While in Dillon, Mont., Fishman had the opportunity to work with UMW students in class Jan. 22-25.

Fishman started out as a photographer and was introduced to the art of neon by taking pictures of signs. He became fascinated by the process behind creating neon so he began working as an apprentice at a neon sign shop.

After perfecting his trade, Fishman opened his own studio, Lightwriters Neon, in 1977. During this time, restaurants were looking for ways to make their establishments trendier by implementing neon. Because commercial glass blowers were interested in large marquee signs, Fishman and his friends found opportunity for work by creating smaller neon signs.

"During that time there was only about 200 glass blowers in the nation. We were busy with all the work that was falling through the cracks," Fishman explained.

Currently Fishman focuses on commissioned artwork and has taken a step back from commercial projects. During the presentation, Fishman showed examples of his work, including a self-portrait drawn by his daughter, Molly. Fishman brought her youthful piece to life through neon art.

"I like making signs that don't really mean anything. I just love to go out to my studio and work with glass. It is so relaxing," stated Fishman.

After the lecture, Fishman went out into the glassblowing shop in the Emerick Art Studio to demonstrate his skills. While using Montana Western's state of the art equipment, Fishman heated up a tube of glass and bent it into a series of loops, all while explaining the processes behind his technique.

For more information about Montana Western's visiting artist program, please contact Michael Hengler by calling 406-683-7344 or email michael.hengler@umwestern.edu.

Fishman explained during his visiting artist lecture how, when heated, glass can become malleable.

Department of Justice Collaborates to Provide Human Trafficking Awareness Training to Medical Professionals

DOJ and American Unchained Working to Educate Montana's Doctors, Nurses on Identification of Human Trafficking Victims

As part of his ongoing efforts to end human trafficking in Montana, Attorney General Tim Fox introduced a Continuing Education (CE) training at St. Peter's Health Regional Medical Center in Helena today. The CE was presented by The America Unchained Project, a human trafficking awareness campaign aimed at educating medical professionals who may be likely to come into contact with human trafficking victims in a clinical setting.

"When medical personnel learn how to identify the signs of human trafficking and how to develop internal protocols to follow, they are empowered to save another human being from a life of slavery and abuse," said Attorney General Tim Fox. "It can be a challenge to identify victims and provide support, even for service providers, but by participating in this training, clinicians who are on the front lines of the fight will get the tools they need to help law enforcement end human trafficking in Montana."

"Human trafficking victims go to clinics, hospitals, and emergency rooms far more than people think; in fact, nearly 88% of them will see a medical provider during captivity and leave the clinic with their captor," said Charity Parenzini, founder of the America Unchained Project. "We are pleased to partner with the Montana

Department of Justice to offer this specialized training for medical personnel, and we thank St. Peter's Healthcare for hosting our first-ever CE course in the state."

For the past six years, human trafficking awareness and prevention have been key initiatives at the Montana Department of Justice. Montana's laws now have clear definitions and penalties to protect children and help sex trafficking victims on the road to recovery. Four years ago, the organization Shared Hope International ranked Montana as one of the top three states in the country for its efforts to prevent child sex trafficking, citing its successful commitment to advancing legislation to ensure children are not for sale within our borders. Last year, the same organization again rated Montana at an "A" for its work to prevent human trafficking.

The America Unchained Project is a not-for-profit educational project created by media professionals and experts. Its goal is to create on-line and mobile education opportunities to help key professionals learn how to identify human trafficking victims on the job. In addition to Helena, in-person CE and CME trainings are being planned for Missoula and Billings; medical providers across Montana will also be able to take the CME on-line in the near future.

To report suspected human trafficking cases, or to request help, call local law enforcement, the Blue Campaign National Hotline at 1-866-347-2423, or text "HELP" or "INFO" to BeFree (233733).

Yellowstone Area Chamber Releases Business Growth and Economic Prosperity Guide

Chamber Focused on Common-Sense Solutions for Businesses

Billings, MONT-The Yellowstone Area Chamber of Commerce released their comprehensive Public Policy Guide that will direct lobbying efforts at the Legislature. The group recently hired a lobbyist, EJ Redding, to advocate on behalf of area business in Helena. According to Redding, "I believe in the Chambers mission and look forward to fighting alongside businesses for these common-sense solutions."

The Business Growth and Economic Prosperity Guide includes sections on Tax policy, Public Safety, Reinvigorating the Business Climate, and Economic Freedom and Growth. The guide was created with the input of dozens of area business owners and community leaders to provide a simple framework for lawmakers on how to advance the interests of businesses.

According to Sam Loveridge, the groups Executive Director, "Since forming this group, I've spoken with dozens of business owners about what is affecting their businesses. Using this input, we've been able to create a time-tested and common-sense framework to reinvigorate the business climate."

Following the Legislative Session, the Yellowstone Area Chamber will release a scorecard that will grade all 100 Representatives and 50 Senators. This scorecard will represent lawmakers support for business in the area. "As an organization that represents the interests of businesses we believe it's vitally important for business owners, entrepreneurs, employees, and the public to know if their interests are being advanced by their elected officials." Loveridge goes on to say, "We're a non-partisan organization and fighting for a better business climate should be as non-divisive as it gets in Helena."

The Yellowstone Area Chamber is growing quickly due to the unprecedented support its mission is receiving from the business community. Businesses looking to become a member can visit YellowstoneChamber.org or contact Sam Loveridge at 406-670-8522.

PINK ZONE PINT NIGHT AT BEAVERHEAD BREWERY

For the fourth year in a row, the Kiwanis Club of Dillon is teaming up with the Beaverhead Brewery and various corporate sponsors from the Dillon area for Pink Zone Pint Nights.

On Thursday, Feb. 7 and Saturday, Feb. 9, the Beaverhead Brewery in Dillon will donate one dollar for each pint sold. Members of the Kiwanis club will be in attendance selling pink paper ribbons in honor of breast cancer survivors or in memory of. The ribbons will hang throughout the weekend at the Beaverhead Brewery.

The "Pink Zone", formerly known as "Think Pink", was started in 2007 by the Women's Basketball Coaches Association (WBCA) as an initiative to raise breast cancer awareness in campus communities and beyond.

Since its inception, local Pink Zone fundraising events have raised thousands of dollars in Beaverhead County. Those monies are donated to the Southwest Montana Mammography Program (SMM) at Barrett Hospital in Dillon, Mont.

The Kiwanis meets the first three Wednesdays of each month at 12 p.m. at the Beaverhead Brewery, 218 South Montana Street in downtown Dillon. Visitors are welcome.

The Kiwanis Club of Dillon has been serving our community since 1940.
