WaterMaps current feature

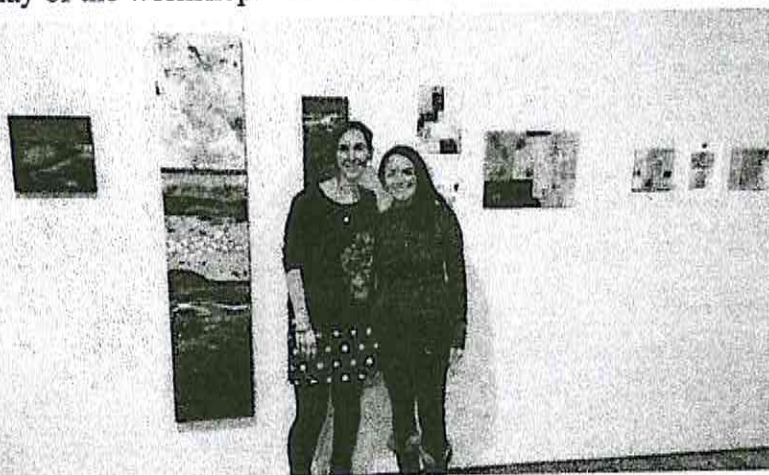

WaterMaps is the current feature show being presented by the Southwest Montana Arts Council and Tendoy Fine Art at ArtSpace located at 120 N. Montana St. in Dillon. Missoula artists, Jolene Brink and Linds Sanders are multimedia artists. The series being presented is a collaborative exploration of place and history that reimagines glacial lake Missoula as a repository for calcium homes and wonder, using encaustics, ceramics, wood, water, found maps and poetry. The presentation asks viewers to integrate the mythology of what an ancient lake might have held, and continues to hold, for inhabitants above and below the surface.

Sanders is a whale watcher trapped in land-locked Missoula. When she is not creating artwork and writing poetry, she can be found backpacking to high lakes in search of rare Montana whale sightings. She serves on the advisory board of Living Art in Montana on the learning advisory committee for Namchak Foundation. She is a designer at Ramble Journals, specializing in hand-binding. Brink is a writer who works with layers and marginalia across multiple genres and media. Her poetry and art explore the intersections between local histories, artifacts and memories, as well as the way the physical environment shapes place and culture. She received her MFA in Creative Writing from the University of Montana.

This show will be on display until February 23rd when the artists will be presenting a workshop on Collaboration in Art at 11 to 12:00 pm at ArtSpace. The cost for the workshop is $10. Please register for the workshop at <https://smac.submittable.com>, or at the door the day of the workshop.

Benches Destroyed
Last Friday night, or early Sat. morning, someone drove a vehicle into 2 advertising benches located next to the Big Sky Cinema or the entrance into Safeway's. Both benches were pretty much destroyed.

The driver may have slid into the benches due to icy streets, or through carelessness or on purpose.

I have to pay the state for permits, and my insurance doesn't cover this destruction and repairs. I would have preferred the driver to confess, but if you witnessed or have any information as to who is responsible for this, please call me at 683-4745 or report to local police dept.

Thank you

The Camp Cook

By: Bryce Angell

A camp cook isn't just a cook. His job has many tasks. The cowboys all depend on him. His face has many masks.

He'll wake you up at 5:00 am to eat fried eggs and ham, then toss you two hot biscuits with some butter and some jam.

He'll holler, "We ain't got all day. Let's move on up the trail;
unless you think you're special or a feelin' mighty frail."

The camp cook has a sewing box. He'll mend a torn up shirt.
He carries rolled up bandages to fix a cowboy's hurt.

I've seen the cook set broken legs with ties and wooden splints.
He doesn't seem to mind their pain. I've never seen him wince.

The camp cook listens to a cowboy's daily sad complaint, then tells him what a lonesome picture he has tried to paint.

Each cowboy gives the cook respect. His name they won't defile.
'Cuz no one likes their food messed with. He'd spoil it, then he'd smile.

At night he'll tell the cowboys how each one's a knucklehead. Yet, he'll check the young men's sleeping bags to see they're safe in bed.

And when the men are all asleep the cook will reminisce. He'll think about when he was young. Those days he sure does miss.

He'll dream about the girl he loved. His life was not for her.

A cowboy she could never love. Her life was jewels and fur.

His mind goes back to fixing food. Those cowboys sure can eat.
For breakfast, maybe just this time, he'll fix a little treat.

He'll climb back in the wagon and his eyes will start to droop.

But first he'll thank the Good Lord that he's still part of this group.

Zoning 2/12/2018

By: M.J

Present Chairman Stoker, Board members Mr. Graham, Mr. Schwandt, Ms. Erfle, Mr. Frank, Director of Operations Todd Hazelbaker and Office Clerk Diana.

Minutes Discussion: The minutes were tabled for correction. Chairman Stoker did not think the minutes reported the meeting accurately. The minutes did not properly reflect what actually happened with the building permit Mr. Cornell submitted. Mr. Stoker went onto say that when information presented via permits is not completed the way the board approved, it makes it difficult for the board to make right decisions. The chairman asks Director of Operations Hazelbaker, to ask the City Attorney if there was any liability for the city if permitted certificates are not followed. Chairman Stoker would like City Attorney Dolan to attend a zoning meeting to give the board some guidelines. Question: After the board agrees that a building permit will be permitted does the city then issue a certificate to permittee okaying the build or is it necessary?

YMCA Expansion Project: Hazelbaker reported that Mr. Todd Rouse was going to attend the zoning meeting with plans. Mr. Rouse was a no show.

Tiny Houses: There has been a shed placed on a lot in Dillon that appears to have been converted into a living space. The permit submitted was for a shed. The board realized that the documents for Dillon may not include information on construction requirements for tiny houses. Board is moving forward doing research. Director of Operations, Hazelbaker presented written information on Tiny Houses to the board.

Mr. Graham asked if the zoning code has specific information on Tiny Houses? He said there was a building code adopted by the city and he wondered if it addresses small living areas. Mr. Graham stated that Title 17 refers to building codes but no specifics. Graham wants to know what the status of the building code is for Dillon. Lot of questions however, there did not seem to be any answers. MOTION: A motion was made and approved to have the mayor appoint an ad hoc committee to investigate getting a building code inspector.

Mr. Schwandt said that the board was talking about a SHED that had been switch to a Tiny House. People are taking sheds and converting them however, they are not built to any code. Mr. Schwandt asked about the enforcement policy for misrepresentation of a permit that were filed. There was no further discussion on enforcement policy.

Note: In the zoning document "sheds" are defined as an "accessory" and must have a principle dwelling.

LEGISLATIVE UPDATE

BY REPRESENTATIVE TOM WELCH HD 72

We are now past the one third mark of the 66th Montana Legislative session. To-date, we have had 765 Bills introduced which is 41 ahead of last session. Of these, 32 have passed, over 600 Bills are currently active and 124 Bills are most likely dead meaning that they have stopped going through the process, failing at some point. We will have many more Bills to come.

As we get deeper into the Session, the work days and weeks become longer, the complexity of Bills under consideration increases, the Committee votes are often closer, and the floor debates are longer and more contentious. This past week we had examples of all these characteristics. As Legislators, we must remember that we can disagree but must do so respectfully, as at the end of the day we are still all Montanans trying to do our best for our constituents and Montana, the State we love.

This week we passed out of the House a timber Bill which will allow the State to harvest more timber and improve forest health on Federal lands as well as State owned lands. Over the last decade, we have seen the State doing a better job managing timber on State owned lands, than the Federal government does with Federal forest lands. This Bill, known as the Good Neighbor Authority Bill, is a game changer for managing our forests. Over half of Montana's forests, both State and Federal, have been damaged by disease or insects. Over 85% of our forests are at risk for wildfire. Five million acres of Forest Service land has been identified as in need of priority treatment. This Bill and the associated program will protect our communities, protect our forests, improve wildlife habitat and bring money into our State.

I had the pleasure and honor this past week to sponsor Beaverhead County High School senior Lindsey Huber as a Page for the Montana House of Representatives. Lindsey joined 5 other students from throughout Montana in assisting House Legislators and staff with our duties as well as learning firsthand about Montana's Legislative process. Not only did Lindsey represent Beaverhead County High School and myself well but she was a delight to have around the House of Representatives. Thank you, Lindsey! I would encourage local residents to visit with Lindsey about her experiences.

I am proud to continue to represent you in the Montana House of Representatives. I welcome your input and can be best reached at tom.welch@mtleg.gov. Have a great week and be safe.

Bill Janus Publishes Essay on The Revelator

Montana Western History Professor, Bill Janus, recently published an essay titled "The Toxic Legacy of Environmental Neoliberalism," on The Revelator, an online news source that shares the ideas and initiatives of the Center for Biological Diversity.

Janus grew up mostly in the United States, although his childhood summers were spent in rural Poland. His first language was Polish, yet he attended an English speaking American school in urban United States.

Janus received his Ph.D. in Modern German History from the University of Buffalo in Buffalo, N.Y. He received a Full-Bright Grant in 2000 and spent a year in Poland collecting research. Janus studied in the bustling industrial zone of Nowa Huta, which is the easternmost district in the Polish city of Krakow.

Janus has published several scholarly articles from his research collected in Poland that have focused on the cultural and political history behind the construction of the industrial district in Krakow. His essay on The Revelator is the first he has written about the environmental history of the area.

"I thought, I could publish this in a scholarly journal where only scholars would read it, or I could publish it where thousands of people could read it," Janus explained.

His essay looked at Poland while it was under communist rule up until 1989. Janus drew connections between politics, commerce, and environmental impact. The piece navigates through the rise of the Nowa Huta district in Krakow and the rapid expansion of the steel plant, Lenin Steelworks. It also examines how industry can have permanent ecological impacts.

Janus collected enough research while on his Full-Bright Grant that he hopes to one day write a book. "I have enough resources available to me that I would like to write about Krakow's regional history with a broader, global context," said Janus.

Although Janus' essay focuses on the environmental issues facing Poland, he shows the problem is not only there, but rather a global controversy. His publication ended with a call to action, by encouraging people to learn from history.

To read Janus' full essay, please visit The Revelator's website.
