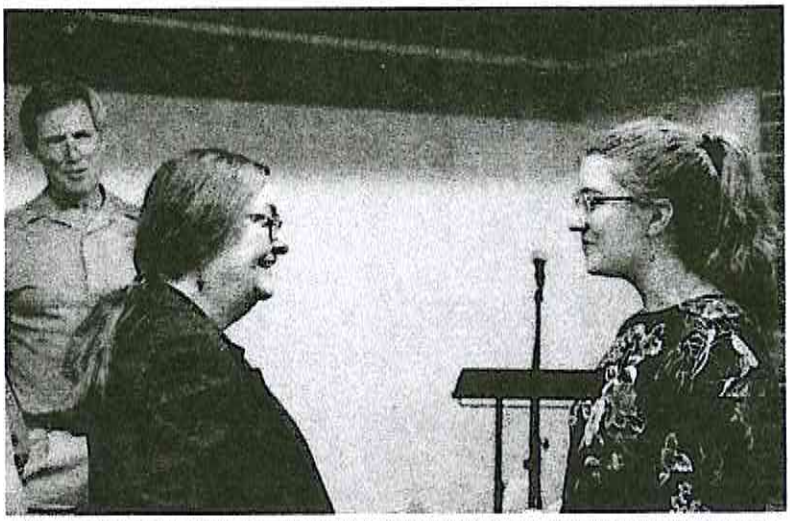
Dances with Words Concludes Spring Series

On April 18, Mary Clearman Blew read from her personal works as a guest author at Montana Western. The following performance featured Roger Dunsmore, who read from his poetry collection on May 2, concluding the spring semester "Dances with Words" series.



Mary Clearman Blew visits with a UMW student after the performance

"Dances with Words" is produced by English Professor Alan Weltzien. The series, free and open to the public, provides the community with a unique opportunity to listen to writers reading their own works, including Montana Western student writers.

"Mary has been a personal friend of mine for a quarter century. She took me on as an unofficial MFA student and helped me save my book," said Weltzien while introducing the guest author.

Mary Clearman Blew was born and raised on a ranch in rural Fergus County, Mont. She has written and edited 15 books composed of both fiction and nonfiction. Her short fiction collection, "Runaway," won a Pacific Northwest Booksellers Award, as did her memoir "All but the Waltz: Essays on a Montana Family." Her novel, "Jackalope Dreams," won the Western Heritage Award in 2009.

Blew read from her latest novel, "Ruby Dreams of Janis Joplin," which was released in September 2018. In this story, Ruby comes to understand her family mysteries through her performances with a country-western band. Blew currently resides in Moscow, Idaho.

Roger Dunsmore taught at Montana Western from 2005-2012. Additionally, he taught at the Montana Women's Rehab Prison from 2006-2013, earning him recognition from Humanities Montana. He was selected as one of their "Humanities Heroes" in 2012.

Dunsmore's fifth volume of poetry, "On the Chinese Wall: New & Selected Poems," is a collection from 1966-2018. His poem, "Tiger Hill," was awarded an Individual Artists Fellowship from the Montana Arts Council in 2001.

"This is a beautiful book all around. Visually and graphically it follows an arc of spiritual beauty," said Weltizen about Dunsmore's fifth volume of poetry.

He read poetry that was inspired by listening to the people around him. Dunsmore said, "We don't have to think stuff up, we just have to listen. Poetry is all around us."

Each performance in the series starts at 7:30 p.m. in The Cup, Montana Western's coffeehouse located below the library on campus.

Featured authors' books at "Dances with Words" are made available for purchase by The Bookstore and Deb Sporich.

"Dances with Words" returns this fall with another exciting line-up of regional authors.

BLM recognizes Missoula officer as 2018 Ranger of the Year

Ranger Kelly Cole of Missoula was recognized this week as the Bureau of Land Management Office of Law Enforcement and Security 2018 Ranger of the Year. Cole received the award during a ceremony Monday in Washington, D.C., which was part of the bureau's observance of National Police Week.

Cole was presented the award by Director of Law Enforcement William Woody, who noted that Cole served as the acting Montana State Chief Ranger, is a trusted member of the local law enforcement team.

"Ranger Cole's peers nominated him for this award," said Woody. "That says volumes about his character. His peers describe him as always available and that everything he does is top-notch."

Woody also commended Cole for his work training the newest generation of BLM law enforcement officers.

"Year after year, Kelly travels all over the U.S. to train our newest rangers. Last year, he trained more people than anyone else," said Woody. "That means Ranger Cole will have more of a lasting impact on the future of law enforcement in the Bureau than anyone else."

In November 2018, Cole responded to a county sheriff call where an irate man was threatening violence. Cole asked for a chance to speak with the distraught man and successfully talked him down, resolving the incident peacefully.

The BLM is truly fortunate to have a dedicated public servant and law enforcement professional like Ranger Kelly Cole in its ranks.

BCHS Tennis - Lewiston Invitational

The beavs Boys and Girls Varsity Tennis team took to the road one last time prior to Divisional Championships over the weekend to take on teams from Belgrade, Hardn, Park, Havre and Fergus Highschools at Lewiston. On Friday, near 40mph wind gusts did not deter the boys' varsity from sweeping all 7 spots on the lineup vs. Belgrade. Unfortunately, rain blew in causing a cancellation of play versus Hardin. On the girls' side, Quinn Belderrain and Nicole Fluckiger defeated oppnents at #2 and 4 singles against Belgrade.

Saturday bought sunny spring weather and a clean sweep again to all members of the boys' varsity versus Fergus, Haver and Park. All 7 positions once again dominated helping the players gain a lot of confidence as they head to Divisionals in Hamilton on Thursday.

Ashlyn Sandall, Quinn Belderain, Chiara Mastandrea and Nichole Fluckinger, all singles players, look to be promising challengers for the girls' team at Divisionals in Corvallis.

Public health officials offer advice to prevent tick bites

As Montanans look to enjoy the outdoors this spring and summer, state and local public health officials urge everyone to follow a few simple steps to prevent tick bites and their illnesses: Limit, repel, and inspect.

Exactly how severe the tick season will be is unpredictable. However, each year thousands of people in the US are bitten by ticks and become infected with a tick-borne illness.

"To avoid becoming a victim of a tick bite, people should be aware that ticks could be in the areas where they live, work and play," said DPHHS Director Sheila Hogan.

Officials say the best way to prevent tick-borne disease is to prevent tick bites.

Public health departments in Montana investigate reports of tick-borne illnesses every year and monitoring trends closely as tick-borne diseases are on the rise in the US. Over the past two decades, several new tickborne diseases that can cause illness have been identified in the United States. Recently identified tick-diseases in the US include Heartland and Bourbon virus.

While these new illnesses have not been reported in Montana to date, we do receive reports of many others. Commonly reported tick-borne diseases in Montana include, Rocky Mountain spotted fever, Lyme disease, tickborne relapsing fever, tularemia, and Colorado tick fever.

In recent years, cases of Rocky Mountain spotted fever and tularemia have increased in Montana. The most common tickborne illness acquired in Montana is Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever, with an average of six cases reported each year.

The tick that causes Lyme disease, Ixodes scapularis, has not been found in Montana. To date, all but a single case of Lyme disease reported in Montana have been associated with travel to other areas of the United States and are not believed to have been acquired in Montana.

Other reported tick-borne illnesses believed to be acquired out-of-state include ehrlichiosis and babesiosis. All diseases listed previously can cause serious illness.

Public health officials emphasize a 3-step approach to prevent tick bites:

LIMIT: Ticks live in wooded, brushy, or grassy areas so walk in the center of trails and mow your property where you and your pets spend time.

REPEL: Wear long, light-colored pants and socks to spot ticks more easily and use insect repellents. Those repellents containing up to 30 percent DEET can be used on the skin or clothing. Repellents with lower DEET concentrations might need to be applied more frequently. Repellents containing permethrin can be used on clothing, but not on skin. One application to pants, socks, and shoes may be effective through several washings.

INSPECT: Check your skin carefully for ticks after returning from outdoor activities especially if you were in wooded, brushy, or grassy areas. Common hiding places for ticks are the scalp, beard, back of the knees, armpits, groin, back of the neck, and behind the ears. De-ticking clothing is best done by throwing clothes into a drier on high for 10 minutes, even before washing.

The most common symptoms of tick-borne infections include fever and chills, aches and pains, rash, and fever of varying degrees. Although most are easily treated with antibiotics, these diseases can be difficult for physicians to diagnose. Early recognition and treatment of the infection decreases the risk of serious complications.
Individuals should see their healthcare provider immediately if they have been bitten by a tick and experience symptoms. If a tick is found and is attached, follow these steps to safely remove the tick.

1. Use fine-tipped, "pointy" tweezers to grasp the tick as close to the skin's surface as possible.
2. Pull upward with steady, even pressure. Don't twist or jerk the tick; this can cause the mouth-parts to break off and remain in the skin. If this happens, remove the mouth-parts with tweezers. If you are unable to remove the mouth easily with clean tweezers, leave it alone and let the skin heal.
3. After removing the tick, thoroughly clean the bite area and your hands with rubbing alcohol, an iodine scrub, or soap and water.

Do no use folklore remedies such as "painting" the tick with nail polish or petroleum jelly or using heat to make the tick detach from the skin. These methods are not recommended and may cause the tick to burrow deeper into the skin.

For more information about tick-borne illnesses, protection and detection efforts, visit the DPHHS website at http://www.dphhs.mt.gov.

It's Music Appreciation Sunday at the First Presbyterian May 19th and the last Sunday (until Fall) that our adult choir, led by Laurie Hagenbarth and accompanied by Charlene Loge, will sing.

We take this time and space to thank them heartedly and the children's choir Director Sandy Rice and assistants Carol Simonsen, Barb Malesich and pianist Raquel Morast.

We thank all adult and children who practice weekly and sing often to help us honor God as we worship together. Their music brings joy to each of us individually and as a church family.

Week after week, without Laurie, Charlene, Raquel, Carol Higgins and Ann Swanson's piano accompaniment, we would be lost. Thank you one and all, thank you!

While the two choirs won't sing this summer, our 5 pianists carry on. June 9th the Larks Quartet will sing and throughout the summer we will pull in visiting musicians and musical friends for an added touch of music during the summer. Join us as we grow and worship together! Again a heartfelt appreciation of our giving and skilled makers of music at the First Presbyterian!
