Paul Helfrich Interns with Bald Head Island Conservancy

UMW student-athlete, Paul Helfrich, has gained extensive real-world research experience as an undergraduate student in the fields of biology and ecology.

Paul Helfrich, UMW student-athlete, recently completed an internship at Bald Head Island Conservancy (BHIC) on Bald Head Island, North Carolina, right outside of Wilmington, North Carolina.

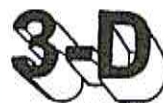

Paul Helfrich is a three-year starter on the Montana Western Bulldog football team, a two-time academic all-conference recipient and a Daktronics-NAIA Scholar-Athlete. His interest in ecology stems from his childhood, growing up in places including northern Alaska and Wyoming, where Yellowstone National Park was his backyard. Helfrich is also passionate about conservation due to his father's career with the National Park Service for 30 years.

Helfrich contacted Beth Darrow, head of research at Bald Head Island Conservancy and Senior Scientist at the University of North Carolina at Wilmington, when considering internship opportunities. Darrow specializes in benthic-pelagic processes in estuaries, including nutrient cycling and ecosystem metabolism. Helfrich is interested in these studies and hopes to further his education in graduate school.

Helfrich had previously visited the island several times during summer vacations and was fascinated by the ecosystem. He spent a total of four weeks interning for BHIC, while working five days each week. He had a variety of jobs, most including data collection on ongoing water quality surveys that BHIC conducts in partnership with NC State in North Carolina.

Helfrich gained experience through a variety of scientific, hands-on procedures where he was able to collect data on both animals and water.

"They took it upon themselves to teach me what it is like to be a scientist, and that is what Experience One is all about," said Helfrich.

At Montana Western, students take a single course at a time, three hours each day for 18 days before moving on to the next course. This unique approach to class scheduling, known as Experience One, allows for a more immersive education.

Helfrich has snorkeled in Utah during his coral reef ecology class, assisted in the cloning of a Borrelia burgdorferi gene while also participating in numerous research studies regarding water quality.

"A lot of people learn about this in lecture, but I've done it. All of the professors in the biology and ecology departments have really focused their classes on hands-on experience. I feel more ready for grad school than I ever thought I would," said Helfrich while reflecting on his internship.

Helfrich will be graduating in spring 2020 with a degree in Fish and Wildlife Ecology. Afterwards, he plans on attending graduate school and later working in conservation and marine ecology.

Dedication of Civil War Veteran tombstone and special marker for

Jonathan A. Hill, Private, Co K 92nd Illinois Infantry

July 20, 2019 - 1 p.m.

Mountain View Cemetery, Dillon, Montana

Jonathan A. Hill was the last Civil War veteran to die in Beaverhead County. He died in 1935 and was buried at Mountain View Cemetery in Dillon with full military honors by the American Legion. A veteran tombstone was not ordered for him at that time, so we obtained one for him this year with the help of Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War Compliment-Chapman Camp #2 in Billings. The Sons provided a "last in county" marker for him. The stone and marker were set by the American Legion Post 20 men and friends and will be dedicated by the Sons on July 20. Jonathan Hill's grave is in the old Legion section just west of the Legion monument, close to the main road.

Everyone is invited to be there to honor this last Civil War veteran of our county.

STAPLETON'S OFFICE LEADS MONTANA'S DHS ELECTION SECURITY TRAINING EXERCISE

The 2020 elections are approaching, and cyber security remains a priority for Secretary of State Corey Stapleton. "Voter confidence is reliant on the security and resilience of the election process and the Office of the Montana Secretary of State's Office takes every opportunity to learn from and share best practices with organizations such as the Department of Homeland Security, the National Association of Secretaries of State (NASS), the National Association of State Election Directors (NASD) and other states," said Stapleton.

On June 19, 2019, the Secretary of State's Office lead Montana's participation in the Department of Homeland Security 2nd Annual DHS National Election Cyber Tabletop Exercise. The purpose of this exercise is to identify best practices and areas for improvement in cyber incident planning, identification, response and recovery through simulation of realistic scenarios which could cause impacts to voter confidence, voting operations, and the integrity of elections. Montana participants include the Montana State Information Technology Division, Montana Army National Guard, Montana Department of Justice, and regional Department of Homeland Security.

"Montana will incorporate the knowledge and data gained from this exercise to enhance communication and incident response plans with county election officials and our state partners in Montana," Stapleton said.
