Vibrant New History Book Tells Triumphant But Often Tragic Saga Of The History of Settlement in Montana's Big Hole Valley

Two events in Dillon and a third set in Jackson in late June called "celebration signing parties" will mark the publication of a 448-page book recounting the settlement of Montana's Big Hole Valley from 1806 through 1930 and make the books available to the public for the first time. The book was several years in the making under the sponsorship of the Big Hole Valley Historical Society.

The book – titled "Montana's Big Hole Valley – Montana Pioneers of the Old West – Vol. I" – will first be available at these "premiere signing" events, according to Ruth Little, president of the Big Hole Valley Historical Society.

Here are the early release events: Little said that others might follow in several of the communities in the Big Hole Valley.

- June 28, Friday – Premiere signing event at the Beaverhead County Museum in Dillon from 9:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m..

- June 29, Saturday – Second premiere signing event at The Bookstore at 26 North Idaho in Dillon from 10:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m.

- June 30, Sunday – Third special event at the Jackson Hot Springs in Jackson from 10:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m.

- The book may also be purchased by mailing an order to the Big Hole Historical Society at Box 847, Jackson, MT 59736. Issued in special Collector's Edition Hardcover format, the 8½ by 11-inch book retails for $75.00, plus there is a $6.00 charge per copy for shipping and handling.

Ruth Nelson Little, president of the Big Hole Valley Historical Society and lead editor of the new book, said these special events will mark the official release of the big book, whose stories and several hundred historic black and white as well as color photographs focus on the valley's people and history from 1806 when it played host to the Lewis and Clark Expedition through the year 1930.

"From the gate of the Big Hole, Divide, through Dewey, Wise River, Wisdom, Briston, Fox and Jackson, we visit our vibrant communities as well as places no longer here and tell the stories of the many families and individuals who helped settle this historic part of Montana," Little said. "Our book includes hundreds of stories of our early-day settlers and the struggles they went through to establish a way of life in one of the state's most beautiful and high elevation climates."

In southwestern Montana hard against the mountainous border with Idaho, the Big Hole Valley has historically been known as the "Land of 10,000 Haystacks" as well as for its large ranches. The Valley was the setting, in 1910, of the invention of the "beaverslide" hay stacker, which made the work of putting up hay much easier. The story of the famous beaverslide's invention and subsequent refinement is told in the new book in both text and a number of historic photographs.

Little noted that the book, officially titled "The Big Hole Valley, Montana Pioneers of the Old West, Volume I" was produced by volunteers connected with the Big Hole Valley Historical Society. She and Alta Miller of Dewey worked as co-editors of the book, and their efforts joined with many other members of the Society, including members of the Wilke, Lapham, and Peterson families, and more. The group worked with the publishing firm of Stoneydale Press of Stevensville, where the new book joins a number of similar titles about Montana-based history published by the firm.

The book was issued in a special 8½ by 11-inch "collector's edition" hardcover format with its cover featuring an imbedded photograph of one of the famous beaverslide hay stackers in operation. There are 18 chapters in the book, plus an acknowledgment page and a preface written by Mrs. Little. The chapters cover such subjects as the Lewis & Clark Expedition's visit to the upper valley in 1806, the Native American presence in the valley, early explorers who visited the Big Hole country, a detailed chapter on the famous Battle of the Big Hole in 1877 between the U.S. Army and the Nez Perce, mining, trapping, logging, agriculture, the towns of the valley, pioneer families and early settlers, schools, celebrations over time, businesses, the military, a number of tragedies, geography and family histories.

"This Volume I shares the history of our beloved valley and its families, who have called it home for more than seven generations," Little, who herself grew up in the small town of Jackson, said. "In the book, we invite our readers to travel back in time to share in the stories of this high mountain valley that over time has enticed many visitors to its beautiful mountain lakes, streams and high elevation splendor."

On a lighter note, she mentioned that the Valley had experienced a number of tragedies over the years and that particular chapter is filled with details of many of them, including one depicting a "shootout" in Jackson by a guy hiding in a haystack who was shooting indiscriminately at people and though no one got killed, the incident was later humorously referred to as the "Second Battle of the Big Hole."

"The Big Hole Valley, Montana Pioneers of the Old West, Vol. 1", 8½ x 11-inch, hardcover collector's edition format, 448 pages, with many color and black and white photographs, retails for $75. The book is available as listed above or direct from either the Big Hole Valley Historical Society at P.O. Box 847, Jackson, MT 59736, or by contacting Stoneydale Press, 523 Main St., Stevensville, MT 59870, at 1-800-735-7006 or on the web at www.stoneydale.com

Letter to the Editor

Alas! Restriction in length of Letters to the Editor did not recently permit me to explain more explicitly to readers, like Mike Mosolf, what I was attempting to say. I apologize to him and shall try to help him to know there was no judgmental hypocrisy intended in my conclusions regarding the deep divisions in today's Washington politics.

Yes, I concluded that "our culture's basic rejection of the biblical God of Creation is the foundational SOURCE of much distemper in the Washington disarray." I preceded that with brief statements of current, worldwide "deliberate efforts to exterminate Christianity." That is not an overstatement! Any time our Creator's ideals for life are shunned, the vacuum is filled with discordant, negative attitudes.

In very early days our Lord gave clear commandments to Israel how they could live successfully with one another (Deut. 6). This was followed by an admonition that Jesus reiterated to us as the first and second great commandments: "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. . . . Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself" (Matt. 22:37-39). Oh, oh, oh! While political disagreements will always be a fact, expressing them in godly "love" regarding one's opponents is a very major challenge. But those guys can easily try harder, and the issues will be made plainer!

Admittedly, I was short on words when I spoke of Trump's possible applying "some sexual appetite in the shadows." Do any of us KNOW the truth of the matter? Two things: (1) I am now in my 90's. In my youth, wife-cheating was so regretful and rare that the news of such an incident would spread through my whole town of 15,000. (2) Today, if you would know me, it is not my authoritative privilege to render the justice for a man's wife-cheating, but I accept God's judgment spoken in I Corin. 6:9,10, "Be not deceived, neither fornicators . . . nor adulterers . . . shall inherit the Kingdom of God." This, of course, precludes those who find forgiveness in the living Christ of the Cross.

I am not happy if my letter stirred resentment -- in its effort to seek caution in those who seem to have "phenomenal hate" toward President Trump. Letters can easily fail to reflect completely one's heart!

Online Education Courses Offer Experiential Learning

Kati McClish, a UMW student double majoring in secondary education and biology, is amazed with how experiential her first few online education courses have been this summer.

McClish came to Montana Western with an original plan to major in biology and later become a physical therapist. After completing her Associate of Science degree in December 2018, McClish came to the realization that she instead wanted to teach biology. She added a secondary education major in spring 2019.

McClish was surprised when starting her new chapter pursuing two online education courses this summer. "EDU 201: Introduction to Education with a Field Observation" and "EDU 222: Educational Psychology and Child Development" are both based on a foundation of experiential learning.

Dr. Estee Aiken provides an innovative experience through EDU 201, as students are introduced to the field of education and the relationships between schools and society. Students in the online course are placed in a K-12 classroom to observe and take notes for two days.

Kati McClish taught her first mock lesson on adding fractions for her EDU 222 online course assignment.

In EDU 222, Dr. Jen Gilliard requires students to communicate through weekly online discussions of course content. Participants of the class explore and analyze major theories of development and learning, while later applying these theories to teaching practice.

"These online classes are extremely different from other classes I have taken. They are in depth and take a lot of work. They give you a real idea of whether you want to be a teacher or not. I have also taught mock classes which I never thought I would do in an online class," stated McClish while sharing her experience so far in her education courses.

Experience One, the unique one course at a time scheduling program at Montana Western, allows education majors like McClish to gain real-world experience well before receiving a degree by offering immersive courses both in the classroom and online.

"I was inspired to become a biology teacher by my professors on campus. They make it clear how much they love their job and their students and I am excited to gain that happiness when I start teaching. Also, I really love biology," said McClish when asked why she wanted to become a biology teacher.

For more information about Experience One and the University of Montana Western, or to schedule a visit, call 877-683-7331 or visit www.umwestern.edu.

Help For Harlee

As many know BJ and Alena Klose lost there 26 year old son Garrett to an aggressive Glioma (brain tumor) April 6th 2019. There has been a Memorial fund set up at stockman bank in Garrett's honor to help a family friend who unfortunately was diagnosed with a brain tumor just one month after Garretts passing.

Harlee Salmi is 5 years old, she is the daughter of Matt and Taylor Salmi from Hot Springs Montana. She was diagnosed with a diffuse intrinsic pontine glioma on May 5th. This is a very aggressive non-curable brain stem tumor. She is currently receiving treatment at Denver children's hospital. Medical and incidental costs are mounting and time is of the essence to provide the resources that can help them. As symptoms progress she will become increasingly reliant on every day cares and already needs assistance. Please pray for Harlee and her family they need a miracle! All donations will go to help the Salmi family ease the financial worry and reunite the family. Harlee's wish is to return home. Your kindness, generosity, and support are so greatly appreciated.

With Sincere gratitude,
BJ, Alena Klose and the Salmi family
