A GOOD CREW

By "Swede" Troedsson

In the summer of 1968 I was stationed on the Beaverhead National Forest, headquartered in Dillon, MT.

I was assigned a crew of eight summer temporary employees. Most were college students, and good conscientious young men. We were tasked with measuring sample timber plots on the Gravelly and Madison Mountain Ranges, and later, on the Magruder Corridor in Idaho. I suspect this was in conjunction with areas being proposed for wilderness designation. We were assigned a helicopter to help transport us to the more remote areas.

We were provided four brand new pickup trucks from a Ford dealership in Bozeman. The forest Administrative Officer (AO) cautioned me not to damage the trucks, as the process to settle damage claims was a real inconvenience. In spite of the AO's instructions, the accidents started:

- One of my crewmen had a flat on one of the front four-ply tires. In his haste to jack up the front end with a tall handyman jack, he failed to notice the hood rose up against a wire stretcher protruding from the top of the jack. Needless to say, a crimp was put in the hood.

- On a hot July weekend, one of my crewmen left his pack in the cab of the pickup. The buildup of heat in the cab caused a bottle of bug repellent to leak out and melt a hole in the seat cover.

- One late July day I got a radio request from the Forest Dispatcher to board the patrol plane which was being dispatched to the Sportsman's Lodge air field in Ennis. The request was for me to check on a fire that had been reported in Hyde Cr. (Hyde Cr. flows into the Wall Cr. Wildlife Management Area, approximately 30 miles south of Ennis.)

Upon arriving over the fire, I reported that it was really taking off. It was then I noticed one of my rental pickups approaching out of a cloud of dust. I was unable to communicate with the driver to caution him not to try drive up the very rough road up the Hyde Cr. ridge. Up the road he charged, sliding to a stop within a foot of a tree lying across the road. The driver (not one of my crewmen) jumped out of the truck, grabbed a pulaski, and started chopping furiously on the tree. He missed the tree with one of his swings and stuck the pulaski into the hood of the truck! I was watching all of this from the aircraft, thinking OH MY GOD!

I suspect the Administrative Officer was not happy with our care of the rental pickup trucks.

In August we were sent to the Magruder Corridor to measure sample plots there.

One evening I drove out to a helispot pick up a couple of my crewmen who were arriving in our assigned helicopter. The first crewman got out of the idling helicopter. As the second crewman got out, he retrieved his pack from the cargo rack. As he threw the pack over his shoulder, a can of orange that it was all part of a botched scheme to beam deadly VACCINATION RAYS back down on an unsuspecting earth!")

Representatives of a certain fledgling industry hope to capitalize on the wistful thoughts of peaceniks who reminisce, "Maybe it cost billions, but for a few brief days in July of 1969, the world forgot its differences and pulled together." ("Ahem - it might have been cheaper to have given everyone a lifetime supply of marijuana-infused Tang. Just saying.")

Native American activists, mindful of how painfully slow our manned space explorations have been in the past half-century (compared to the rapid spread of railroads, highways and communications infrastructure) look with bemusement on the anniversary. ("Sure, if Columbus had spent three days here, then gone home and 50 years later sponsored a Duran Duran concert...yeah, I could live with that.")

More visionary thinkers, on the other hand, see the Apollo 11 hoopla as a jumpstart for manned missions to Mars and beyond. Like the Whos in the Dr. Seuss book, certain segments of mankind want to announce to the vast universe, "We are here, we are here, we are here..."

Granted, when the bill for the deficit spending comes due, they may sing a different tune. ("We are temporarily indisposed, we are temporarily indisposed, we are temporarily indisposed...and we didn't leave a forwarding address!")

18th Annual Runner's Retreat

The 18th Annual Runners Retreat will be held at UM-Western's Birch Creek Center on July 14-16. All BCHS high school runners are welcome to attend. The camp features a low ropes course, running on the trails around the center and in the Pioneer Mountains, some fabulous speakers, t-shirts tie dying, a folf contest and many other activities. Cost is $125. Registration and physicals are due by July 8. Forms can be found in the high school office. Contact Betty Iverson at (406) 925-1284 for more information.

Attorney General Fox Obtains Data Breach Settlement from Premera Blue Cross

Health insurer failed to protect sensitive data of millions of consumers nationwide

Attorney General Tim Fox and 29 other attorneys general filed a settlement today that requires Premera Blue Cross, the largest health insurance company in the Pacific Northwest, to pay a total of $10 million to be split among the 30 states for its failure to secure sensitive consumer data. Premera's insufficient data security exposed the protected health information and personal information of more than 10.4 million consumers nationwide to a hacker. The coalition of 30 states investigated Premera's cybersecurity vulnerabilities that gave the hacker unrestricted access to protected health information.

In today's complaint, filed simultaneously with the terms of the negotiated settlement, Attorney General Fox asserts the company failed to meet its obligations under the federal Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act (HIPAA) and violated the state Consumer Protection Act by not addressing known cybersecurity vulnerabilities that gave a hacker unrestricted access to protected health information for almost one year. "This litigation marks the first time Montana has brought an enforcement action under HIPAA," Attorney General Tim Fox said. "Although Premera doesn't sell insurance directly in Montana, our consumers were most certainly impacted; according to records provided by the company, 111,222 Montanans were affected. That means over one-tenth of our state's population had personal information compromised in this breach, which could have been prevented," Fox added.

From May 5, 2014 until March 6, 2015, a hacker had unauthorized access to the Premera network containing sensitive personal information, including private health information, Social Security numbers, bank account information, names, addresses, phone numbers, dates of birth, member identification numbers and email addresses. The hacker took advantage of multiple known weaknesses in Premera's data security. For years prior to the breach, cybersecurity experts and the company's own auditors repeatedly warned Premera of its inadequate security program, yet the company accepted many of the risks without fixing its practices.

Under the settlement, Premera will pay a combined total of $10 million to the 30 states; Montana will receive $122,879 for consumer education and protection. The company is also required to implement specific data security controls intended to protect personal health information, review its security practices annually, and provide data security reports to the attorneys general. Premera's $10 million payment to the states is in addition to any payment from the proposed class action settlement, which was filed in federal court in Oregon, but not yet finalized by the court.

The complaint asserts that Premera misled consumers nationwide about its privacy practices in the aftermath of the data breach. After the breach became public, Premera's call center agents told consumers there was "no reason to believe that any of your information was accessed or misused." They also told consumers that "there were already significant security measures in place to protect your information," even though multiple security experts and auditors warned the company of its security vulnerabilities prior to the breach.

Under HIPAA, Premera is required to implement administrative, physical and technical safeguards that reasonably and appropriately protect sensitive consumer information. Premera repeatedly failed to meet these standards, leaving millions of consumer's sensitive data vulnerable to hackers.

Today's settlement also requires Premera to:

- Ensure its data security program protects personal health information as required by law;
- Regularly assess and update its security measures;
- Provide data security reports, completed by a third-party security expert approved by the multistate coalition, to the Washington State Attorney General's Office;
- Hire a chief information security officer, a separate position from the chief information officer. The information security officer must be experienced in data security and HIPAA compliance and will be responsible for implementing, maintaining and monitoring the company's security program;
- Hold regular meetings between the chief information security officer and Premera's executive management. The information security officer must meet with Premera's CEO every two months and inform the CEO of any unauthorized intrusion into the Premera network within 48 hours of discovery.

In addition to Montana, today's multistate settlement against Premera involves Alabama, Alaska, Arizona, Arkansas, California, Connecticut, Florida, Hawaii, Idaho, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Mississippi, Nebraska, Nevada, New Jersey, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Rhode Island, Utah, Vermont, and Washington.

If any Montanans believe they have been the victim of identity theft resulting from this breach or any other, they can contact Attorney General Fox's Office of Consumer Protection for help with getting an identity theft passport or implementing a credit freeze.

Apollo 11 Golden Anniversary: Something for Everyone?

Tyrades! by Danny Tyree

I feared that the upcoming 50th anniversary of the first manned moon landing might get eclipsed by other celebrations (the 75th anniversary of D-Day, the 50th anniversary of the Stonewall Riots, the 10th anniversary of financier Jeffrey Epstein's latest girlfriend learning to tie her shoes, etc.), but apparently the sky is the limit for Apollo 11 remembrances.

And why not? This milestone offers something for everyone.

Those of us with enough gray hairs and wrinkles to remember the moon landing as "current events" view the New Frontier nostalgically, although we now experience some of the cra's buzzwords with a different perspective. Nowadays the eagerly awaited "splashdown" has less to do with an ocean rendezvous than with the hoped-for results of our latest high-fiber diet.

Youngsters with aspirations of a STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering, and Math) career relish seeing footage of the myriad behind-the-scenes folks who made the moon landing possible. On the negative side, therapists feel the films may encourage teen suicide. ("Seriously, dude - if I ever get a haircut like that one, strap me to a Saturn rocket and aim me at a brick wall.")

Dance enthusiasts are excited that archival material may finally confirm that Neil Armstrong's hastily scrapped original plans for his first words on the moon were "Put your right foot in, take your right foot out, right foot in and you shake it all about..."

On a related note, linguists and survivalists alike are glad that President Kennedy's 1962 speech gave Americans a challenge that was characterized as "hard" - not "Easy peasy, lemon squeezy."

Stamp collectors are ecstatic that the United States Postal Service is releasing two commemorative stamps featuring iconic images of the Apollo 11 mission. Next year, the USPS will issue commemorative stamps with iconic images of stamp collectors sitting home alone while their spouses are out on the town.

Conspiracy theorists are keenly interested in the anniversary. ("Of COURSE, we actually went to the moon instead of filming it out in the desert. But the average person doesn't realize tree marking paint fell on the ground. Intending to throw out from under the rotating blades, it went up into the main rotor, exploding and covering the ship's bubble and main rotor with paint.

The pilot immediately shut down to check the main rotor for damage. There was a slight nick in one of the blades, but the helicopter was still flyable.

The mechanic spent a good part of that evening cleaning the paint off the aircraft.

All in all, it was a fun summer.

Bible Truth...About Worship

[Statement of belief: the Bible was given by the inspiration of God (2 Timothy 3:16-17) and all beliefs in conflict with what is written therein are false.]

The word "Worship" is meant to attribute proper recognition to the worth or worthiness of God. Revelation 5:1-12 reveals that the Lamb of God, Jesus Christ, is the only "ONE worthy to receive power, riches, wisdom, might, honor, glory and blessing from creation."

Worship is defined as "showing reverence and adoration for (a deity); honor with religious rites." Synonyms are: reverence, honor, adore, praise, pray to, bow down before, glorify & exalt.

John 4:23-24 states that God seeks people to worship Him and that "...they that worship him must worship him in spirit and in truth."

Consider the following regarding the meaning of worship and its two Biblical requirements:

First, the very word itself requires that we must be reverent...prayerful...and humble to worship in a way acceptable to God.

Secondly, if our actions in worship are not in both spirit and in truth they will not be acceptable to God. Worshipping in spirit means that the individual must be born of the Spirit, which makes him a child of God as stated in John 3:3-18. This means that any worship performed by those who have not been born of the Spirit is rejected by God, no matter how sincere it may be. The Bible does not say that as long as you are sincere in your worship or beliefs that God will accept you or your worship.

Worshipping in truth means that you are obedient to God's requirements after you accepted Christ as you Savior. An example of this is obedience to the requirement of baptism [complete immersion in water] as soon as possible after you are saved. This requirement is seen by Jesus' statement "thus it becometh us [is proper or fitting] to fulfill [execute or accomplish] all righteousness [correct thinking, feeling and acting]" in Matthew 3:15. It wasn't until after Jesus was baptized that He began His public ministry. This which set the precedent for the need of baptism prior to worship [and service] that God will accept.

Worship is not a means to accomplishing something else or for the purpose of receiving something beneficial. Worship is solely for the sake of glorifying, honoring, and exalting God.
