East Deer Lodge Temporary Road Closures

Two Forest Service roads southeast of Deer Lodge will be temporarily closed due to road work and culvert replacement along the North Fork of Perkins Gulch and Dieders Fork of Peterson Creek. This work will enhance fish passage and improve habitat for conserving populations of genetically pure Westslope Cutthroat Trout.

This is one of many restoration projects identified in the East Deer Lodge Valley Restoration Management Project area. In order to keep visitors safe and out of the work area, portions of National Forest System roads 5165 and 8518 will be temporarily closed August 7 to 17.

Aunt Edna's Cooking

By: Bryce Angell

My Great Aunt Edna, from the Yaak, lacked culinary skills.
She lived up in Montana, all alone in them, there hills.
Last week Aunt Edna sent an invitation to her kin.
Her invite claimed she'd learned to cook. Was Edna sipping gin?
She said she'd corresponded with a chef from Paris, France.
And she'd like to serve a feast if we would give her this one chance.
I cornered my physician. Would he lie and claim I'm ill?
But Doc said, "That's unethical." Should've shown him my last bill.
No single other kin were going to drive to Yaak that day.
My heart was feeling heavy for old Edna, in a way.
I looked at Hap. He gave a bark and then he shook his head.
He'd tasted Edna's table scraps. I bet Hap thought, "I'm dead!"
But when a man is dying, maybe poisoned in the end.
I'd say it is a privilege to go out with man's best friend.
So, Hap and I drove up the Yaak. We knocked on Edna's door.
She yanked us in. That's when I noticed feathers on her floor.
I'm not the sharpest fellow, but a turkey came to mind.
The smell of burning feathers, yes, a turkey's what we'd find.
I offered grace but didn't really get a chance to say,
"Please bless this food, and by the way, don't let us die today."
The biscuits were a golden brown, but hard and extra heavy.
The turkey was so tough I bet she had to grind the gravy.
I'd have to say that Edna's cooking hadn't changed a bit.
And if you were a dinner guest you had to have some grit.
But one fine thing 'bout Edna, at the end of every day.
She'll pour her turkey from a flask. "Wild Turkey" you could say.

Attorney General Fox Urges Congress to Remove Federal Barriers to Treat Opioid Use Disorder

Attorney General Fox sent a letter to Congressional leadership in both chambers, asking for the removal of federal barriers preventing health care providers from offering treatment for opioid use disorder. The letter was signed by 39 attorneys general.

Opioid use disorder is the physical and psychological reliance on opioids. Symptoms of opioid addiction include uncontrollable cravings for the drugs and the inability to control opioid use despite its negative impacts.

"An estimated two million Americans struggle with opioid use disorder, and states are on the front lines," Attorney General Tim Fox said. "Although we've been successful in some ways in stopping the current crisis, more can be done by the federal government. By eliminating the barriers outlined in our letter, Congress can take meaningful steps to benefit those struggling with addiction before it's too late. Addiction is a brain disease, not a moral failing, and the more help we can provide for struggling individuals, the better."

The letter outlines three areas that need to be addressed:

Replace the cumbersome, out-of-date, privacy rules contained in 42 CFR Part 2 with the effective and more familiar privacy rules contained in the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act (HIPAA);

Pass HR 2482, the Mainstreaming Addiction

Treatment Act, which would eliminate unnecessary burdens on buprenorphine prescribing imposed by the Drug Addiction Treatment Act of 2000. Buprenorphine is one of three drugs used as part of Medication Assisted Treatment, the most effective treatment for opioid use disorder. Outdated and unnecessary federal requirements are discouraging doctors from prescribing this life-saving drug to patients who need it; and Fully repeal the Medicaid Institutions for Mental Diseases (IMD) exclusion. The IMD exclusion generally prohibits state Medicaid programs from receiving federal reimbursement for adults between 21 and 65 receiving mental health or substance use disorder treatment in a residential treatment facility with more than 16 beds.

"The opioid epidemic is tearing families apart all over our state and nation," Fox added. "Opioid addiction, like all chronic illnesses, requires treatment for people to get healthy. We must remove all unnecessary barriers between people with opioid use disorder and the treatment they need. I urge Congress to take these needed steps."

Montana is joined on the letter by attorneys general from Alaska, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, the District of Columbia, Florida, Hawaii, Idaho, Illinois, Iowa, Louisiana, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Mexico, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Dakoda, Tennessee, Utah, Vermont, Virginia, Washington, West Virginia, and Wisconsin.

Attorney General Fox and the Montana Department of Justice have worked to raise awareness of substance abuse in Big Sky Country, starting with the Resolve Montana Prescription Drug Abuse Prevention campaign in 2014. Under Resolve Montana, the number of prescription drug disposal drop box locations were expanded statewide to include pharmacies and hospitals. In 2017, Resolve Montana expanded into a new initiative, Aid Montana: Addressing the Impact of Drugs, to comprehensively approach the state's acute substance abuse problem by including alcohol and illegal drug use.
