Residence Life Director Michael Piazzola said this year's program will include Convocation (the official start of the school year ceremony), an inspirational keynote address by speaker Justin Jones-Fosu, and a hike to the hillside "M".

"Orientation is mandatory for all first-year and transfer students and it's also fun and informative. It's a great way for the community to show new students just how welcoming Dillon and the Montana Western family truly is," Piazzola said.

JUSTIN JONES-FOSU

Justin Jones-Fosu, Convocation keynote speaker, is a dynamic speaker who motivates and inspires students, by getting them excited, energized and ready for the challenges ahead. Students will be impacted by his energy, enthusiasm and encouragement. Parents, friends and family are cordially invited to attend Convocation with their student on Friday, Aug. 23, at 10 a.m. in the Keltz Arena.

Additional events include sessions for Native American, Veteran and TRIO students, a football scrimmage with tailgate dinner and a dance.

For the full schedule of events and to sign up for move in day shifts, visit tinyurl.com/UMWOrientation or call 406-683-7565.

Warm temps trigger fishing restrictions for section of lower Big Hole River

An 18-mile stretch of the lower Big Hole River will close to fishing during the afternoon each day due to a seasonal rise in water temperatures.

A hoot owl restriction will go into effect at 2 p.m. on Aug. 8 from Notch Bottom Fishing Access Site to the confluence with the Beaverhead River. Hoot owl restrictions prohibit fishing each day between 2 p.m. and midnight.

This closure is in accordance with the Big Hole Watershed Committee Drought Plan, which calls for restrictions when water temperatures exceed 73 degrees for three or more consecutive days, or when other thresholds are met. Restrictions of this nature are enacted to protect fish species like Arctic grayling, rainbow trout and brown trout, which all become more susceptible to disease and mortality when conditions like low flows and high temperatures combine with additional stressors.

This section of the river will reopen when daily peak temperatures are below 70 degrees for three consecutive days, but no later than Sept. 15.

Whether you fish or float, take care of Montana's Fishing Access Sites

Montana's Fishing Access Sites accommodate roughly 3.9 million visits from people every year. These visits happen on about 330 Fishing Access Sites across the state that vary in size from less than one acre to several hundred acres.

These sites are owned and managed by Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks to give recreationists access to the state's water resources. Funding for the acquisition, enhancement and maintenance of these sites is generated from fishing licenses sold to anglers. But a large portion of people who use Fishing Access Sites are non-anglers. The lower Madison River, for example, sees as many as 300,000 people annually who recreate on inner tubes and inflatable pool toys. Many of these floaters do not buy fishing licenses.

This cost imbalance creates significant challenges in maintaining places impacted by high use. Trash collection, latrine maintenance, infrastructure repairs and other costs quickly add up as more people come to these sites to enjoy the access and opportunity they provide.

Courtney Johnson enjoys kayaking the Madison River with her husband, Scott. They use places like Black's Ford Fishing Access Site to put in or take out of the river. Courtney said she sees why taking care of public lands and resources takes effort from management agencies as well as recreationists.

"I've seen people diving to go get their trash, and I just love that I see that effort," she said. "It's a family place. It's great for college kids. It's anglers. It's lots of people out here, and we all have to do our part."

So whether you fish or float, here's how you can help keep Montana's Fishing Access Sites open and enjoyable for everyone.

Pack it in, pack it out. Part of being prepared to recreate on the water means bringing the equipment you need—lunch, fly leader, something to float or sit on. Whatever you bring, make sure to take it all home with you when your adventure is finished.

Respect all facilities. FWP pays for the acquisition, construction and maintenance of facilities at Fishing Access Sites with angler-contributed funds. Help keep these facilities in good shape by throwing trash in the dumpsters, if provided, or disposing of trash at home. Latrines with trash in them may have to be closed, causing an inconvenience for all users. Stay on designated roads and don't trespass on private property.

Park politely. Park only in designated areas without blocking in other vehicles. Use boat trailer parking spaces only if you are towing a trailer.

Be courteous to all users. A little patience and preparation go a long way toward a smooth launch and takeout for everyone. Prepare your watercraft for launch before approaching the boat ramp, then spend as little time as possible on or near the ramp so others can use it.

If you see a crime, report it. 1-800-TIP-MONT (847-6668) is Montana's toll-free hotline for reporting crimes involving wildlife or state lands. Vandalism, theft and other crimes harm public resources. You can help put a stop to it.

Buy a fishing or conservation license. Even if you don't fish, buying a license helps maintain and enhance these sites we all enjoy. It also goes toward conserving the wildlife you see while you're on the water.

Following these practices when using Fishing Access Sites not only makes for a better recreation experience, but it will also help keep these sites operating safely and sustainably, ensuring continued access to Montana's water resources for years to come.
