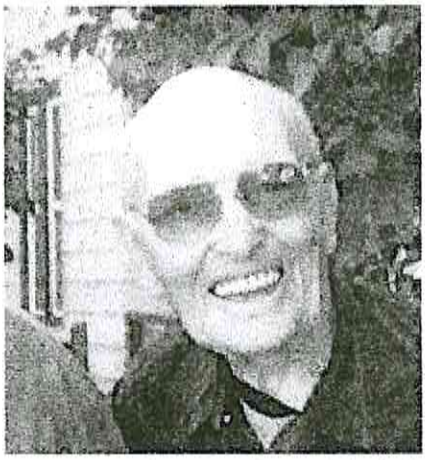
Albert Paul Trafelet



Albert passed away unexpectedly Friday, August 16 following a brief illness. Albert Paul Trafelet was born March 17, 1935 in Valier, Montana to Albert and Zella Trafelet. He was the eldest of five children. Albert spent his childhood helping on the family homestead west of Dupuyer. He attended the Bisnett School during his elementary years and graduated from Valier High School in 1953.

In 1955 he moved to Dillon where he worked at the P & O ranch as a cowboy. In December of 1956 he met Lyla Henrie at the Diamond Bar Inn on New Year's Eve in Jackson, Montana. In September of 1957 they were married in Dillon. Together Albert and Lyla raised four children, Fred, Rich, Ray and Reba.

Albert was a potato farmer for Skone and Conners for 22 years after which time he was employed by Barrett Minerals for the next 20 years. Albert taught all four of his children along with numerous nieces and nephews to drive in his 1946 Willy's jeep. As an outdoor enthusiast, Albert took his children hunting and fishing along with numerous camping trips to Bloody Dick and the Big Hole areas.

As empty nesters, Albert and Lyla developed their love of riding four-wheelers and snowmobiling, they also continued to camp and spend time outdoors. Albert was an avid snowmobiler and an active member of the Beaverhead Sno-Riders until his passing. Albert was well known for his friendly hellos on his frequent walks around town.

Albert is survived by sons Fred of Valier and Richard of Dillon as well as his favorite daughter Reba (Rusty) Hoff of Florence. He is also survived by 7 grandchildren and 8 great grandchildren. Albert was preceded in death by his wife of 57 years Lyla and his son Ray.

Public viewing for Albert will be Wednesday, August 21 from 5:00pm-8:00pm at the Brundage Funeral Home in Dillon, MT. Funeral services for Albert are Thursday, August 22 at 2:00pm at the funeral home, interment at Mountain View Cemetery with a reception to follow at the LDS church. Donations may be made to either Beaverhead Sno-Riders or the Beaverhead EMS. A guestbook is available at www.brundagefuneralhome.com."

Elk Hoof Disease Facility Receives $100,000 RMEF Grant

The Rocky Mountain Elk Foundation awarded a $100,000 grant to Washington State University's College of Veterinary Medicine to assist with construction of its elk hoof disease research facility. Construction began in May on campus in Pullman, Washington.

"Hoof disease is affecting more and more elk in the Pacific Northwest," said Blake Henning, RMEF chief conservation officer. "This facility will give researchers a hands-on opportunity to better determine its cause as well as why and how it spreads."

The $1.2 million, state-of-the-art structure is the only such operation of its kind in the world and will house captive elk needed to study the disease in a secure, controlled environment. It will cover four acres and include 10 isolations pens, a handling facility and two 1.5-acre holding pastures.

Based within the Department of Veterinary Microbiology and Pathology, and with the oversight of WSU's Environmental Health and Safety and animal care programs, the facility will provide optimal compliance with biosecurity and animal care and use regulation.

"I am eager to get started with research on captive elk that will be housed in the facility," said veterinarian Margaret Wild, the lead scientist for the program. "RMEF's generous contribution could not have come at a better time during construction. This is the first grant we've received to supplement our funding and it makes it apparent the organization and its members, along with WSU, are dedicated to ensuring elk herds remain healthy and viable for future generations."

Elk hoof disease is known in the scientific community as Treponeme-associated hoof disease or TAHD. Biologists confirmed the disease in elk herds across much of southwest Washington as well as southern Oregon and western Idaho.

Findings from research conducted at the facility will assist wildlife agencies to better manage the impacts of hoof disease in elk populations.

"We had the opportunity to sit down with Dr. Margaret Wild, lead scientist during a visit to RMEF headquarters. We look forward to working with her and her staff to learn more about this disease," added Henning.

RMEF provided funding in the past to assist the Washington Department of Fish and Wildlife with hoof disease testing and research.

In 2019 alone, RMEF so far donated more than $1 million in research funding for the benefit of elk-related science.

Stealing Water

By: Bryce Angell

You'd have to be a low-down snake to steal your neighbor's water.
Water is a specialty. It ain't no common fodder.
Where I come from your neighbors are considered family.
To steal from fam'ly means your heart is cold as winter's freeze.
Last Sunday morn', could not believe, our creek was running low.
I feared someone had dammed it off. Thieves plugged it years ago.
Well, sure enough someone had dammed the stream off with a log.
They'd even used a dead tree stump. The doggone dirty dog.
A hundred fifty years ago, back in the wild, wild west, a cowboy stealing water meant he'd soon be Hell's new guest.
So, how much difference is there stealing then or stealing now?
Has time gave in to selfishness and changed the rules somehow?
I really have to wonder does a low life have no guilt?
He knew what he was doing by the dam that he had built.
What makes a dang thief justify his stealing of your share?
And maybe he ain't ever heard of what we all call fair.
When I was young my father said, "There'll always be a thief. They'll take what's yours and leave behind the decent filled with grief."
But then his sternly words hit home. They left me with no doubt.
"You steal your neighbor's property. They usually go without."
That Sunday morn' I moved the log and tree stump from the creek.
The air was filled with blue streaks, 'cuz he'd cut me to the quick!
I don't suppose I'll die if there ain't water in our stream.
And I appreciate you listening while I blow off built up steam.
I'll make a promise here and now to never steal your water.
'Cuz if I did, you'd go without. The words of my own father.

UMW Welcomes Students for Orientation and Convocation

The University of Montana Western's Office of Residence Life announced the university has scheduled its New Student Orientation for Thursday, Aug. 22 - Sunday, Aug. 25, 2019.

Convocation is an exciting time for new and returning students, the campus community and friends and family to gather and celebrate the beginning of the academic year.

The activities begin at 8 a.m. on Opening Day with the Montana Western Moving Company event. The community is invited to help new students and their families move into the residence halls on the Montana Western campus.

Residence Life Director Michael Piazzola said this year's program will include Convocation (the official start of the school year ceremony), an inspirational keynote address by speaker Justin Jones-Fosu, and a hike to the hillside "M".

"Orientation is mandatory for all first-year and transfer students and it's also fun and informative. It's a great way for the community to show new students just how welcoming Dillon and the Montana Western family truly is," Piazzola said.

Justin Jones-Fosu, Convocation keynote speaker, is a dynamic speaker who motivates and inspires students, by getting them excited, energized and ready for the challenges ahead. Students will be impacted by his energy, enthusiasm and encouragement. Parents, friends and family are cordially invited to attend Convocation with their student on Friday, Aug. 23, at 10 a.m. in the Keltz Arena.

Additional events include sessions for Native American, Veteran and TRIO students, a football scrimmage with tailgate dinner and a dance.

For the full schedule of events and to sign up for move in day shifts, visit tinyurl.com/UMWOrientation or call 406-683-7565.

Labor Day Parade entries

The theme this year is "Fun & Games". Entries must be received by Wednesday August 28, 2019 to be eligible for a prize, but all entries are welcome! Pick up entry forms at Womack's Printing, Bank of Commerce, Pioneer Federal, Stockman Bank, or on the Jaycee website, www.dillonjaycees.com.

Shooting Down California's Ammo Law

Making Sense By Michael Reagan

Dove season opens in California and across the U.S. on Sept. 1.

For as long as I can remember, all I had to do when dove season rolled around each year was oil my 1970s-vintage shotgun, buy a case or two of shells at the nearby Big Five sports store and drive toward the Arizona border with my hunting buddies for a few happy days of shooting.

But thanks to a proposition approved by 63 percent of Californians in 2016 and the leftist Democrat lawmakers in Sacramento who've been wrecking the state for 40 years, dove season this year will be much more complicated.

A new state law aimed at reducing gun violence took effect on July 1 that requires anyone who buys ammo for any kind of gun to first pass a state background check.

If you're one of California's 4.5 million gun owners who has bought a gun recently, it's no big deal.

You are already in the state's database as a registered gun owner, so you don't need to clear another background check.

But if you're someone like me who hasn't purchased a gun since the 1970s, when you could buy a deer rifle or shotgun at Sears as easily as buying a lawn mower, you're in for some serious bureaucratic torture.

Before I can buy the shotgun shells I'll need this year, I have to go to a state-licensed vendor (a sporting goods store), give them all my information, show them my California driver's ID and then pass a background check that takes anywhere from 3 to 30 days to clear.

After I pass my $19 background check I have 30 days to buy the shotgun shells I'll need. If after 30 days I need to buy more shells, I'll have to pay another $19 for another background check.

The DMV-like process of buying ammo in California is bad enough, but if I'm not careful about how or where I get my shotgun shells,I could become a criminal.

Let's say I'm out in the field next month and I run out of shells after a day or two of shooting.

According to the new law, the only place I'd be allowed to buy more shells is at the same sports store where I passed my background check - which would be a hundred miles away.

What if I asked one of my hunting buddies to give me a box of his shells?

Good idea, but if he gives them to me he'll break the new ammo law because he didn't do a background check on me first.

ask, "Why don't you just go out of state to Arizona and buy your shells there?"

It's a perfectly sensible idea - except that if you are caught bringing more than 90 rounds of ammo into California you can go to jail.

And don't think you are free to order your ammunition online. Manufacturers aren't allowed to ship directly to individuals in the state, just to licensed ammunition vendors like Big Five.

The end result of all this anti-ammo-madness is that somehow on Sept. 1 all of us will be breaking the law at some point by sharing shotgun shells.

It's the usual California political story -- a bad law written by liberals that will do no good and only turn law-abiding citizens like me and my pals into criminals.

Oh, and there's another effect of the ammo law that my dog could have predicted -- a shortage of ammunition in California.

There's little shotgun ammunition in stores right now because the people who used to buy a case or two of shells for $80 each year hurried out and bought 10 cases before the anti-ammo law went into effect July 1.

So, in other words, what the geniuses in state government have done in a futile attempt to reduce gun violence is create a whole bunch of well-armed dove shooters who are hoarding enough ammunition for their guns to last the rest of their lives.

I hope the bad guys don't find out where we live.
