2nd Annual Bigfoot Hunt
Clarkston Fire Service Area #6
2019

We are hosting our 2nd annual Bigfoot hunt at Headwaters Ranch, for a great cause! Clarkston Fire Service Area #6 is seeking donations for upgraded gear and equipment. The Clarkston Volunteer Fire Department has a capable team of dedicated volunteer firefighters and EMT's that have answered whenever called upon. They face unique challenges in that the nature of calls in Clarkston can include medical emergencies, structure fires, wild land fires, vehicle accidents and sometimes, a combination of different exposures. Clarkston has been experiencing growth similar to that of the rest of the Gallatin Valley and as the community continues to grow, Clarkston Fire needs to be able to grow with it. In order to more effectively handle any increased demand on the department, donations could be used for upgrades to EMS equipment, safety gear, communications, training opportunities, and fire engines. Last year's hunt had over 500 people in attendance and raised over $18,000! With that money, the fire department was able to pay for the services of a radio technician who was able to correct tuning issues, upgrade or change antennas, and identify issues with the equipment already in inventory. Four new handheld radios were purchased and, at the technician's advice, all the batteries on the existing radios were replaced. After all of the repairs, tuning, and replacement radios, there was enough money left for the department to purchase much needed rescue lights and helmet lights for each firefighter. All of which was only possible because of donors like you.

RMEF, Partners Open Door to 26,000 Acres of Public Access

The Rocky Mountain Elk Foundation, in coordination with Lewis and Clark County, the Dan Barrett family, Helena-Lewis and Clark National Forest and many other partners, is thrilled to announce 442 acres of prime wildlife and riparian habitat along Montana's Rocky Mountain Front are now permanently protected and in the public's hands.

Called the Falls Creek project, it greatly improves access to more than 26,000 acres of public land containing prime elk habitat beyond it.

"This is a major conservation accomplishment on so many fronts and we are ecstatic about it," said Kyle Weaver, RMEF president and CEO. "Our goal was to raise nearly $2.5 million dollars over a relatively short period of time and a lot of good folks stepped up to make it happen. And all this transpired in time for the 2019 general big game hunting season."

The property is primarily forestland and grassy meadows. It is located about 30 miles southwest of Augusta. Its entire eastern boundary is bordered by more than one mile of Falls Creek, including the scenic Falls Creek waterfall at the back of the acreage, while the western and northern boundaries are bordered by private lands and the Dearborn River.

UMW Fine Arts Gallery Features Artist Louis Habeck

All are welcome to attend the artist talk and gallery reception celebrating Louis Habeck's exhibition, "Imaginarium," on Thursday, Sept. 12 from 6-7 p.m. at the Fine Arts Gallery on the Montana Western campus. Habeck's collection of surreal photographs and sculptures illicit lucid feelings of wonder and discomfort. Uncanny, playful and bizarre, the art invites one to look twice at their imagination and intersection of reality.

Louis Habeck was born and currently lives in Billings, Mont. Habeck received a Bachelor of Fine Arts degree with an emphasis in photography from the University of Montana in 2011. Louis' inspiration and expertise as a portrait photographer came from helping and learning from Andrew Habeck- his fashion photographer uncle who lives in Barcelona.

Habeck was chosen for an Artist's Innovation Award by the Montana Arts Council in 2015 and has visited various college classes, conferences and art institutions across Montana and Wyoming demonstrating his innovative sculpting techniques. Through painting or sculpture, Louis' art depicts distinctive, melancholy creatures that investigate the transitional times in their lives. Light refreshments will be provided during the reception.

For more information about the Fine Arts Gallery, please contact Aja Mujinga Sherrard at aja.sherrard@umwestern.edu or call 406-683-7313.
