Goodbye for Now- James Marchesseault

On Monday, Sept. 2nd, 2019, one of the great cattlemen of Beaverhead County and the American West, James David Marchesseault, passed away in a fitting manner, working the Birch Creek ranch he called home for more than 50 years. He was 81 years old.

Jim was born in Dillon, Montana on January 24th, 1938, the third in a brood of six rambunctious boys and girls raised on the 'FS' in the Grasshopper Valley. Following in the family footsteps he eagerly embraced life on the ranch, proving himself as a natural stockman. He loved working in the timber and was truly in his element mowing hay.

As Jim came of age, he served in the US army and Montana National Guard, earning an honorable discharge as Master Sergeant. A fiercely proud American, he would continue for decades to honor our Country as a member of the American Legion.

While still a bachelor, Jim and good friend Howard Begin were known to go deer hunting from time to time and rumor has it that these excursions involved burrowing into a haystack where a fence panel was 'accidentally' left open.

Those kinds of hijinks slowed down after a summer evening in 1965, when Jim left the hayfield to attend a square dance at the Club Royal in Dillon, where a beautiful young California lady named Louise Aspesi caught his eye. Her first impression was that, "He was kind of scruffy but was incredibly well-mannered for a cowboy."

Apparently the good manners won out because the two were married on December 23, 1967, raising a fine family of four children, which has grown to include five grandchildren, not to mention a vast menagerie of dogs, cats, and various other beloved pets. Amidst the hubbub Jim also attended to civic duties as a member of the Reichle School Board, the 4-H and other local organizations.

Jim was preceded in death by his parents, Robert Dewey and Cora Marchesseau – sister Estelle Blomquist – and daughter Brenda Weber.

He is survived by his wife, Louise – children Jenifer, David and Romeo – his grandchildren, Grace, Claire, Victoria, Ava and Adriana – and his siblings, Claire, Robert, Jules and Gordon.

A memorial service will be held at the Methodist Church in Dillon at 2PM followed by a community reception at the Elks Lodge on Saturday, September 14.

A tribute to the man whose way of bidding farewell was simply to say, 'goodbye for now'.

Jamie Tripp Selected as New Dillon Ranger

The Beaverhead-Deerlodge National Forest has selected Jamie Tripp as the new Dillon District Ranger. "I am excited to have Jamie as our new Ranger," commented Forest Supervisor Cheri Ford. "She brings a wealth of knowledge and experience that will benefit the Forest as well as continue to build great working relationships with our many publics."

Jamie is a native of Montana and a graduate of the University of Montana School of Business and School of Forestry where she double majored in 2002.

"I look forward to returning to Big Sky country and serving the people and landscapes of SW Montana," said Tripp.

Her Forest Service career started out like many others where she put boots on the ground as a seasonal employee on a fire crew. The first 15 years were spent primarily on the Flathead National Forest working in the fire and fuels management program. Prior to accepting the position as the Dillon District Ranger position, she was the Pacific Southwest Regions Fuels Program Manager. While in that position Jamie sought out detail opportunities, including filling in on the Eldorado National Forest as a District Ranger and another on the Humboldt-Toiyabe National Forest as the Forest Fire Management Officer.

Jamie has an appreciation for performance horses, tough work outs, fresh air, mountains, fly fishing, filling tags, good people and of course her husband and four legged children. Tripp begins her new position September 30.

Montana Western Ranked Among Fastest-Growing Universities in the Country

The University of Montana Western was recently ranked among the fastest-growing universities in the country by the Chronicle of Higher Education.

In the 2019-20 Almanac of Higher Education special report, the University of Montana Western was listed in the top 10 fastest-growing public four-year universities in the country based on enrollment between the years of 2007-2017. The report was the result of a comprehensive 10-year study by the Chronicle of Higher Education.

According to the article, the focus was "on the numbers in order to paint a portrait of higher education's strengths and weaknesses and the strategies universities used to rapidly increase enrollment growth." The University of Montana Western's enrollment grew by 34% during the ten-year period.

"After struggling to keep students, UMW in Dillon transformed its educational model following a pilot project ending in 2003. Its leaders took the school from one some community members feared was on the brink of closure to a campus other institutions see as a model," said Chancellor Beth Weatherly in a recent article in the Missoulian.

The new educational model, called Experience One, established the "block schedule," which transformed the way faculty teach and offers students immersive learning. Montana Western is the only public university in the United States offering Experience One, where students take one course at a time for 18 days, take a short break, and then move on to their next course. After the full implementation of Experience One starting in 2004, enrollment began to increase steadily and then stabilize.

The fields of academic study at Montana Western include Biology, Business and Technology, Environmental Sciences, Education, English, Equine Studies, Health and Human Performance, Fine Arts, Mathematics, and History, Philosophy, and Social Sciences.

Montana Western's commitment to engagement and support offer an incredible experience for students while maintaining a high standard of academic excellence and low tuition costs.

For more information about Experience One and the University of Montana Western or to schedule a visit, visit www.umwestern.edu or call 877-683-7331.

Are You Under the Sway of Kid Influencers?

Tyrades! by Danny Tyree

First, some disclaimers.

When my son Gideon was in kindergarten and first grade, I indulged him by recording countless hours of hyperactive, unseen-outside-the-family DVDs he called The Gideon Channel. For more than seven years, we have made annual trips to the local radio station to cut commercials for my retail day job.

But that's as far as I exploit him (outside of this column). So, I was flabbergasted to see a CBS News report about the phenomenon of "kid influencers" dominating Instagram, YouTube and other social media platforms.

Precocious children living out their lives in front of a webcam (interspersing their antics with commercials, using the sponsor's products onscreen, etc.) could be an $8 billion industry by the end of the year. (Even more if UPS and Johnny's parents can figure out a way for Johnny to unwrap Greenland for his breathless audience.)

The major online platforms prohibit accounts by youngsters under age 13, but parents can certainly take charge of building the media empire on behalf of the tykes. Remember when parents said, "Hold down that racket"? Now it's "Help me RUN this racket. Oh, the wheels on the bus go KA-CHING KA-CHING..."

While ostensibly having fun, "kid influencers" are saddled with helping major brands manipulate the purchasing decisions of other youngsters and their parents. Forgive me, but I tend not to take stock tips from somebody with an office in a 1973 Ford Pinto or cereal/toy/sneakers purchasing suggestions from someone who thinks a cake should be baked for 100 hours at zero degrees!!!

I was brought up in the "children should be seen and not heard" era, so I'll admit I probably have an inherent resistance to "kid influencers." Yeah, their channels influence me all right - to switch over to the Yoko Ono With A Sore Throat Channel!

Deep-pocketed advertisers seek out younger and younger kids to promote their wares, but sometimes they go a little too far. It's hard to endorse an energy drink when the only liquid you're acquainted with is AMNIOTIC FLUID.

Remember when kids wanted to do something challenging, like becoming a nurse, cowboy, astronaut, or president? According to CBS, "becoming a social media star" is one of the most popular career aspirations named by kids in a recent survey. Save lives? Lead the free world? Nah, let's capture the attention of perverts, jealous classmates and klutzes who can't find the water-skiing squirrel videos.

The wide-open industry worries childrearing experts. With no regulations on amount of screen time, accounting or working/playing conditions, things could get grim. ("My momma always said never to run with scissors. She never said anything about not running with this new Stihl model MS 170 chainsaw!")

LEVEL-HEADED parents can maintain a sense of balance in the lives of their "kid influencers." But they will face unrelenting pressure to increase profit quarter after quarter. ("Are you SURE there's no chance of my delivering conjoined quintuplets, doctor? It would mean so much to my other child, Asset One.")

Like former child stars of film and TV, online sensations may be totally unprepared for their cuteness to expire. Big brother's voice changes? Time for little sister to become the favorite child! Circle of life. Or circle of death, when a grizzled big brother someday picks a fight in a bar. ("I can whip any man in the place! Where's my &^%$#s Nerf bat???")
