Browning Cowboy Dougie Hall Rides with Perseverance,
Character and Hope

This story, by Tom Wylie, was originally published by Montana Sports and the complete story can be found on MontanaSports.com.

STORY CONTINUED FROM YESTERDAY

"I'm 26 now and I've been riding broncs since I was 16," he said. "For some people, bronc riding clicks just like that. Well, I wasn't one of those guys, I got throttled for a long time, but it's just something I love to do. I was very passionate about it and that was, it was always fun for me. But I had never won a rodeo before, high school, college or pro. I had placed in plenty."

At the Rocky Mountain Classic in February, Hall drew Bailey Pro Rodeo's Boozier.

"I remember getting on that horse and it was just almost like the stars just aligned," Hall recalled. "And I remember just being in time with that horse and just, it just flashed into my mind like, 'It's really happening.'"

A 77-point ride earned Hall a check for $921, a modest sum by PRCA standards but symbolic of so much more for Hall.

"I war whooped as loud as I could and I started crying. I busted out crying and I started dancing Indian," he said.

He smiled big.

"I could feel my mom. She was there," he said. "That was one of the best memories I'll ever have"

Doug's resilience and attitude have inspired a lot of people, including his best friend Will Shirley.

They met rodeoing in high school. Shirley's property had been robbed in Browning when he was 10 years old, and he had developed a distrust for Native Americans.

"It was definitely burned in my brain, you know, kind of a vulnerable age," Shirley said. "I was set in my ways and my parents did everything they really could to talk me out of it. But I assumed all Indians were thieves."

But Doug was different.

"He's got a pretty just bright personality and when we met, I didn't even talk to anyone else there at the rodeo grounds. He just came up and stuck his hand out and said, 'Hi, I'm Dougie Hall,'" Shirley said. "That night I ended up getting bucked off and I broke my wrist and I was kind of slow coming back to the chutes and Doug comes around and he's right in my face like, 'Are you all right? You all right?' And it kind of caught me off guard."

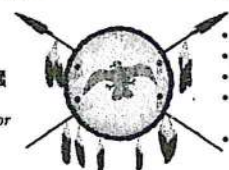

Hall and Shirley have been inseparable ever since. And it's that bond and attitude that led Shirley to nominate Hall for the Rocky Heckman Perseverance, Character and Hope Award named after the late rodeo legend and youth advocate who lost his life after a long battle with brain cancer in 2017.

"(Hall) is known throughout the rodeo world just because of his personality and how positive he is," Shirley said. "For all the negative things that have happened to Doug and the way he treats people and his positive outlook on life is just kind of nothing short of amazing. And it's definitely changed my life. It's made me a better person."

The Heckman family, Shirley, and the Hall family surprised Dougie with the belt buckle during the final performance of the Big Sky Pro Rodeo Roundup. He was presented with the award in front of thousands of roaring fans in Great Falls.

And yes, he obliged them with his signature dance moves.

"That left me speechless, because Rocky has done a lot for rodeo. He did a lot for kids in high school rodeo. Every time I saw Rocky, it was at an event for kids. He was always very good to me and treated me like one of his own, a great guy," Hall said. "And to have an award in honor of someone like him, that was the one of the biggest honors I've ever gotten. It made me tear up, made me feel all kinds of good things and I was just very, very grateful."

Currently Hall is nursing an injury that has kept him from riding in rodeos for much of the summer. But once he's healed he plans to hit the circuit next year and qualify for the Montana Circuit Finals.

But that's just one goal of many that Hall has set for himself. He wants to make a name for himself on two fronts.

"My ultimate goal is to be the first guy from (Browning) to qualify for the NFR and ride there and also have a bucking horse that I raised there," he said. "That's my ultimate goal and that's what makes me happy, is going after that."

But even if Hall never wins one more rodeo, his legacy will be how he treats people and the lives he touches along the way. And that's more valuable than any championship or belt buckle.

"When somebody smiles or laughs, they seem to put down the baggage of whatever they're carrying," he said "People are just like horses. They're afraid of whatever is different and the unknown. But I guess it feels good to be looked at as just a human being. That's just how I was raised."

He smiled one last time.

"People are people," he said.

RED HAT SOCIETY NEWS

On Friday, September 6th the Red Hat Belles were seen having lunch at the Beaverhead Golf Course. 16 members were able to attend and Amy Scott was welcomed as Diana Carroll's guest. New members, Linda Thompson and Ruth Pilgrim were in attendance and also welcomed. "Pete" Tarleton gave out updated membership lists to members. Co-hostesses, Barb Schrader & Alyce Wassail had assigned seating arrangements by putting cookies with each ladies initials at their certain spot around the table. This was a very fun idea.

Thank You cards had been received from the Beaverhead Animal Shelter this summer and Alyce Wassail took up another collection for them.

Door prizes of gift cards went to Irene Nesgoda and "Pete" Tarleton. Congratulations Irene and "Pete".

Phyllis Davenport and "Pete" Tarleton volunteered to co-host in October. Time and place to be announced. Thank you Phyllis and "Pete".

We want to thank the staff at the Beaverhead Golf Course. The food was delicious. We saw many of our ladies taking home a "To Go" box. Thanks again. Of course, a special thank you to our co hostesses, Barb & Alyce who made this event possible and fun.
