Animal Shelter Saga

By: MJ

"Life is really simple, but humans insist on making it complicated." We are often the ones that make our own problems. Our greatest glory is not in never falling, but in rising every time we fall. The object of the superior man is truth. Life is really simple, but we insist on making it complicated. It seems the Animal Shelter saga has lost its simplicity and the blame game has taken front stage. Blame game being played in the form of; he said; she said; they said; I said...

There appears there is controversy over how the records were kept, where thousands of donated dollars were spent, where donated dollars were deposited, who owes who money, new construction work done but not up to some individuals standards, who owns vehicles, incomplete financial records...

Fact: The people voted to give the Animal Shelter a mill levy. According to law it is up to the commissioners to review the financial records yearly to verify that the tax dollars are being spent appropriately. Question: Were those records being reviewed by commissioners according to law or not? Buck stops here.

Participants involved, including County Commissioners seem to be blaming everyone else except themselves for existing problems. Commissioner McGinley stated in the Tribune that the commissioners had been asking for financial statements from the Animal Shelter however, they had never received appropriate records.

There are always 2 sides to every coin. Most of the time the people involved with one side of coin are usually involved with the other side also. Disrespecting people, throwing individuals under the bus without having a civil conversation at the table will not solve problems. Note: It is much easier to solve problems when all personnel involved steps up to the plate, is truthful, pleasant and lays all their cards on the table.

The tongue can be the spark that ignites a forest fire or it can be the vessel for good and encouraging words. Your choice. Let's let all the facts on both sides of the coin come out before we throw people under the bus.

GUILT says; "I owe you" and creates a distance because you will not be honest. ANGER says; You owe me; you took something from me."

Free suicide prevention presentation

A free community presentation on suicide prevention and the importance of active listening skills is WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 2ND IN THE DILLON MIDDLE SCHOOL GYM AT 7 P.M. Featured speaker is "Guardian of the Golden Gate Bridge" Kevin Briggs, who as a California Highway Patrol Officer persuaded more than 200 individuals not to jump to their death from the California bridge. In his 17 years patrolling the bridge, Briggs encountered hundreds of troubled people who had lost hope and were ready to end their lives by suicide.

Briggs successfully combined his trained negotiation skills with compassion, a gentle voice, eye contact, and his "listening to understand" abilities to prevent numerous individuals from making a fatal decision. He now speaks internationally on mental health awareness and suicide prevention and recently trained Air Force One personnel. He is the keynote speaker at the Big Sky Behavioral Health Conference on Thursday, Oct. 3 on the UMW campus. Briggs is sponsored by the Big Sky Summit and the BVHD Co. Mental Health Local Advisory Council.
