Montana Department of Justice Hires Human Trafficking Enforcement Team

Marks First Time State Agency Has Had Agents Dedicated Full-Time to Trafficking Investigations

Attorney General Tim Fox announced today the Montana Department of Justice (DOJ) has hired two full-time agents who will work solely on human trafficking investigations. The team, based in Billings, is employed by DOJ's Division of Criminal Investigation (DCI) and will work on cases of suspected human trafficking statewide.

DCI Agent Andrew Yedinak was promoted to supervisor of DCI's Computer and Internet Crime Unit, which is responsible for investigating human trafficking, internet crimes against children, and cybercrimes. DCI's forensic computer examiners are also part of this unit.

The applicant selected for the second new human trafficking position is an agent with several years of investigative experience. Due to safety and operational integrity concerns related to the undercover duties of the position, DOJ will not release the agent's name. Both individuals began their new jobs on September 30.

"The addition of these new positions means that for the first time, Montana has state-level law enforcement dedicated exclusively to working human trafficking cases," Attorney General Tim Fox said. "Our two new agents will work with local, Tribal, and federal law enforcement to conduct undercover operations to crack down on human trafficking throughout Montana. Additionally, our human trafficking team will coordinate closely with the Montana Highway Patrol to interdict traffickers along our roadways before they cross state lines, so we can bring the perpetrators of this heinous crime to justice," Fox added.

Funding for the new team was made possible by HB 749, carried by Billings Representative Daniel Zolnikov – R in the 2019 legislative session. The new legislation, which went into effect July 1, provided $519,815 to establish a two-person human trafficking enforcement team within DCI.

Fox added that his agency's ongoing legislative advocacy and outreach efforts over the last several years to fight human trafficking have garnered national attention. "For example, Shared Hope International now gives Montana an "A" for its work in improving justice for human trafficking victims, compared to a "D" grade before I took office," Fox said. "We're thankful for partnerships with groups across the state for their collaborative work to educate residents about this crime; these partnerships have proven to be critically important as we collectively work toward greater public awareness of human trafficking in Big Sky Country."

To learn more about human trafficking in Montana, visit DOJ's website. To request a human trafficking presentation for your organization, contact DOJ's Special Services Bureau at (406) 444-1476.

Soroptimist awareness of Human Trafficking

The Soroptimist Int. and Soroptimist of Dillon have been working to bring awareness to the issue of Human Trafficking.

Dillon has placed a bench by the Evergreen Center across from the big Town Pump in case there is someone passing through that might call for help and remind people it happens even in our area of the country, as they travel the interstates.

"Human Trafficking, better described as modern day slavery, is one of the most lucrative criminal enterprises in the world. The ILO estimates human trafficking generates $150.2 billion in illegal profits each year. More than one-third of these profits are from forced labour exploitation and the remaining two-thirds are from sexual exploitation. The chances of being apprehended are fairly small and there is often no one to testify against the pimp as potential witnesses often 'disappear' and are later discovered to have been killed.

Estimates on how many people are trafficked globally vary from 20 to 37 million. The Human Trafficking Center considers the ILO's number to be most methodologically reliable — 20.9 million. However, the best estimates have some degree of inaccuracy as it's difficult to measure activity within illicit markets.

Michael K. Johnson to Read at Dances with Words Series

On Wednesday, Oct. 23, 2019, at 7:30 p.m. in the Lewis and Clark Room, Michael K. Johnson will visit the University of Montana Western campus to read from his latest book as a guest author in the "Dances with Words" series.

"Dances with Words" is produced by English Professor Alan Weltzien. The series, free and open to the public, provides the community with a unique opportunity to listen to writers reading their own works.

Johnson is Professor of American literature at the University of Maine at Farmington. His primary research areas are African American Literature and the literature and culture of the American West. He is the author of Black Masculinity and the Frontier Myth in American Literature, Hoo-Doo Cowboys and Bronze Buckaroos: Conceptions of the African American West, and, most recently, the biography of African American singer Taylor Gordon, Can't Stand Still: Taylor Gordon and the Harlem Renaissance.

Born in 1893 into the only African American family in White Sulphur Springs, Montana, Emmanuel Taylor Gordon (1893–1971) became an internationally famous singer in the 1920s at the height of the Harlem Renaissance.

Despite his fame, Taylor Gordon has been all but forgotten, until now. Michael K. Johnson illuminates Gordon's personal history and his cultural importance to the legacy of the Harlem Renaissance, arguing that during the height of his celebrity, Gordon was one of the most significant African American male vocalists of his era. Gordon's story—working in the White Sulphur Springs brothels as an errand boy, traveling the country in John Ringling's private railway car, performing on vaudeville stages from New York to Vancouver to Los Angeles, performing for royalty in England, becoming a celebrated author with a best-selling 1929 autobiography, and his long bout of mental illness—adds depth to the history of the Harlem Renaissance and makes him one of the most fascinating figures of the twentieth century.

Featured authors' books at "Dances with Words" are made available for purchase by The Bookstore and Deb Sporich.

Southwest Montana Veterans Home Update #19

By Mike Lawson

Greetings once again to you, the Veterans/Counties/Communities in SW Montana who are represented as the organizers and chief supporters of the SW MT Veterans Home" .

Where is our "Indian Summer", I keep hearing form others and asking myself. Mother Nature is hitting us with snow and cold about a month early. This has hit our Veterans Home construction schedule in the seat of the pants, so to speak. I have to say though, many of the guys working there, especially the carpenters, worked every day. They're to be commended, for sure. I visited with Site Construction Superintendent Mike Ascheman to get an accurate breakdown of this past weeks progress. He said the weather really slowed them down but he is optimistic/hopeful, this week will see some important movement take place.

The construction breakdown is as follows:

The Community Center Building is on hold waiting for the roof trusses to get here from Great Falls.

Cottage #1 has seen a lot of activity. All the exterior walls ,except for one small section on the East Ridge side are standing and secured.. Work on the interior walls will be the big focus now.

Cottage #2 is seeing wall layout and the building of them on the slab floor. Once built, these walls will be stood up and secured like Cottage #1 is doing.

Cottage #3 is pretty quiet for the time being.

Cottage #4 is ready for the vapor barrier heavy plastic to be spread and glued to the inside of the foundation walls and around the pipe/ conduit stubs, sticking up in the air. This is followed by the rebar and hopefully, weather permitting, pour and finish the floor slab.

Cottage #5 is scheduled for Phillips Concrete to pour the exterior walls this week, weather permitting. This is the last Cottage so I'm hoping it will happen.

Zemljak was off for a couple of days because of the cold weather but has a lot of dirt work left to return too.

The "Viewing Hooch" continues to improve and is going to get warmer, compliments of Builders First Source Building Supply, (Former Pro Build). They are donating insulation and sheetrock, which we'll waste no time getting both put in place. Many thanks to them for remembering us the Veterans. The log-book shows folks from out of state signing it, so please do the same when you come to visit.
