Council Oct 19, 2019

By: MJ

Present: Councilpersons; Hand, Kenworthy, Schwandt, Nye, Shafer, Graham, O'Rourke. Mr. Stout resigned from the council position.

Resignation Letter: Mr. Joe Horrocks has resigned his position on the city police force to accept a position with the Fish and Game as a warden. Mr. Horrocks has been with the Dillon police force for six and a half (6 1/2) years.

Appointments by Mayor: 1) Mr. Codie Plotner was sworn in by the mayor as a Probationary Officer replacing Mr. Peterson that left the force to take a position with the county sheriff's department. He served (5) five years in the Army and has graduated from the academy. 2) Mr. Joe McNeil was sworn in by the mayor as a Probationary Officer. He was born and raised in Anaconda and has graduated from the police academy. Both of these officers are replacing the two (2) officers that have left the force.

Zoning Change Resolution: Council approved the changes made to the Official Zoning Map on the border of west side of Bannack St. between Railroad & Bozeman Sts., from Residential Medium Density (R-2) zone to Central Business District (C-3) zone. The property between Railroad and Blacktail Creek and Helena St. to city limits and west side of Rife St between Bannack and Helena St and North side of Bannack St. between Rife St. and Bozeman St. from un-zoned area to a Commercial Business District (C-2) zone.

Vine Street Subdivision: After reading the law the Council determined that the Vine Street Subdivision did not need another public hearing.

Contract Approval: Council approved the contract with WET (Water and Environmental Technologies) to help prepare the risk and resilience assessment and the emergency resource plan. Cost of contract was $9,760.00. Every five (5) years it is required that an assessment is submitted for recertification to the U.S. EPA showing a review and if necessary a revision is done.

City Attorney: Mr. Dolan reported he was working with developers on the Todd and Tulley sub-division to work out the details. He stated there was access issues on both of them.

Director of Operations: Mr. Hazelbaker reported the crews are finishing up summer projects and getting ready for winter.

Fire Department: 1) Fire Chief Mr. Morast reported that one of the fine engines if out of commission however, it is being repaired. 2) Members of the fire department are making personal contact with the youth by going to schools and day care centers, visiting about the danger and causes of fire. A thank-you is warranted for the volunteer fire members taking time out of their own personal schedules to educated children. 3) Mr. Morast reported that he thinks a full-time fire chief needs to be hired.

New Book at Library Honors Local Businessman

Dillon Library's newest addition is "McIsaac Scotland to Montana," donated by author, Tillie Butts. McIsaac is a historical and genealogical record of Clan McIsaac. The primary focus of the book is researching the heritage and legacy of Dillon resident, Jim McIsaac.

Butts says the book provides a taste of Scottish culture, religion and it's struggle for freedom. It includes examples of McIsaac involvement in battles with Bonnie Prince Charlie and winning a major battle against Clan Campbell with nothing but Highland cattle as weapons. Butts' goal was to ignite interest in the rich heritage that she and McIsaac share that will inspire others to do their own research into their culture and not just see genealogy as a list of names and dates.

Jim McIsaac's family came from the Isle of Eigg to Nova Scotia and eventually to Montana in 1906. The book includes photos of Jim and an overview of his life which includes over 50 years in Dillon. He graduated from Western and other than time in the Army, has invested his life in this community, serving on various city and county boards, committees and on City Counsel. Butts has known McIsaac for 8 years and greatly admires his character and wanted to honor him with her work.

This is Butts' second book. She has written for newspapers, magazines and various organizational newsletters. She lives innorthwest Montana but spends as much time as possible in Dillon with Jim McIsaac. She says she has fallen in love with this community and enjoys being involved with various activities along side McIsaac. Last Dec., the community helped Jim and Tillie make Christmas special for children in Mexico. She has also been involved in some of Rotary's activities. Friends of Jim are encouraged to check the book out and share his story.

Milking Cows

By: Bryce Angell

The winter 1963, I was barely ten years old and learning how to milk our cows, night and morning in the cold.

I poured the grain and watched them eat, each cow stood in her stall.

Their stomachs churned away down low, forming cud into a ball.

That cud then slid back up their throat. It seemed a little crude.

And when I quizzed my dad, he said, "It's undigested food."

I thought it seemed a little strange to belch up all that food, then start the process once again with stuff that had been chewed.

My father said, "Don't worry, son. These cows know what their doin'."

It's in their genes to ruminate. They just keep on a chewin'."

"The hay and grain they're eating is what makes the milk each day.

We take it and we sell it. That's how we get our pay."

He then gave me a warning. "Watch those cows that have a cough.

If you're anywhere behind them, try to stand a long way off."

That's all he said about the cough. He didn't elaborate.

But what he was implying was about to be my fate.

I walked behind old Betsy. She coughed, and out it flew.

The speed with which it hit me must have been at least Mach 2.

So the food that cows are chewing is changing as it flows.

What don't make milk or muscle, well, out the back it goes.

It hit with such a splatter that my eye was matted shut.

I've had some worse things happen, but I can't remember what.

My father laughed and said, "Too bad! This ain't a time for blamin', the next time you're behind a cow. Give heed to where she's aimin'."

So back he sent me to the house to get a real quick shower. My mother saw me, laughed, and said, "You smell just like a flower."

Right then, that's all I needed was my mother funnin' me!

She handed me a hot, wet towel. I still could barely see.

So, the years went by. I milked the cows, faithful, twice a day.

I've had some time to ruminate and now I'll have my say!

The cows took up most all my time. I can't say I was bilked.

But no matter how hard I tried, those cows would not stay milked.
