What a great holiday season it is.

Know why?

Congress is on vacation, which means all the rest of us get a break from politics.

We're in the middle of what amounts to a national Christmas ceasefire in our never-ending, 24/7 political civil war.

Political bombshells, childish name-calling, stupid tweet battles, partisan posturing, congressional hearings, Democrat primary debates, FBI leaks, trade wars, Brexit, Jeffrey Epstein's "suicide" ... all are almost totally absent from the news media.

The best present I received this year was that no one talked politics at my house all Christmas day.

The "Trump" word was never spoken. Neither was the "Pelosi" word or the "Impeachment" word.

We actually wished each other Merry Christmas, opened gifts and watched our grandkids go bonkers opening their toys.

That's what Christmas Day in the U.S. is supposed to be all about - and used to be.

The nicest and most important present of all for me this year, however, was that my sister Patti came over and spent part of the day with us.

She and I share little common ground when it comes to politics, to put it mildly, and she had never even been to my house in Los Angeles before.

Actually, until this year, I hadn't spoken to her since 2004, when my father's will was read.

But when Patti was recently asked to do a TV program about our family for a cable station, she asked me for my help.

The project was going to be about what life was like for us Reagans before my father ran for governor of California and politics took over his life and changed ours forever.

The program idea didn't work out for Patti in the end, but it brought the two of us together this year for first time since 2004.

I met her for lunch a couple of times, but we had not been with each other at Christmas since 1992 or 1993, when the family got together at my dad's house when he was in the early stages of Alzheimer's.

On Wednesday Patti came over for several hours and saw my kids Cameron and Ashley. She met her grand-nieces Marilyn, who will be 4, and Penelope, who will be 2.

Patti and I sat down and talked about the family, what we've been up to lately and lots of other things - but not a word about politics.

We had no good reason to discuss or argue politics.

I know how she feels about conservatives and President Trump. She knows what I think. Why bring it up?

The two of us Reagans were able to enjoy Christmas Day without getting mad at each other because, as our father used to do when his politically divided family was together, we completely avoided politics.

If Patti and I can exchange gifts and have a wonderful time without letting it be ruined by politics, I don't see why everyone could not do the same.

In fact, keeping partisan politics out of Christmas — and all our family holiday gatherings — is the best resolution I can think of in 2020.

Happy New Year.

Sixth graders, please make sure you have your physicals, and online forms taken care of so you are ready to go.

Some Holter Lake camping reservations to go online in new year

Good news for "plugged-in" campers hoping to reserve sites at the Bureau of Land Management's Holter Lake Campground north of Helena: the Butte Field Office will be taking online bookings for some campsites starting in 2020.

Sites 1-33 at the popular and busy campground will be available via recreation.gov. This group of sites will be known as Loop A in the reservation system. In the past, these sites were booked on a first-come, first-served basis.

Not all camping spots at Holter Lake Campground will be added to recreation.gov, though. Sites 34-42 will remain as "first-come, first-served," with site 34 being ADA-accessible. Sites 34-52 are in the main parking lot, and they also include the grassy area for tent camping. For individual camping sites, reservations can be made six months in advance once they go live starting January 2.

"We're very excited to offer the public a new, faster and more convenient way to begin booking their outdoor recreation experience at Holter Lake," said Kelly Scarbrough, Supervisory Outdoor Recreation Planner with the Butte Field Office. "I can't think of anything better and easier than to reserve a camping spot through the recreation.gov website."

For more information, contact the Butte Field Office at (406) 533-7600.

Thank You Donors

The Beaverhead Community Food Pantry sends a huge

Thank You!!!

to all of the businesses and citizens who donated to our local Food Pantry. Your generosity helped us bring in enough donations to maximize the equally generous Town Pump donation, which matches your contributions, dollar for dollar.

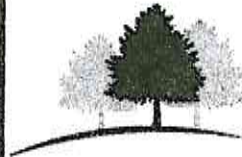

Thanks to all the donations we received during 2019 we were able to purchase a new walk-in cooler/freezer which was truly needed.

We are grateful to all who donated and those that donate and collect food throughout the year for our Pantry.

We truly appreciate each and every one of you.
