Montana Western Fine Arts Gallery Ushers in the New Year

The University of Montana Western Fine Arts Gallery held several events that took place over the 2019 fall semester including a collection from the Missoula Art Museum featuring contemporary American Indian artists and a Dillon community art exhibition. The gallery will continue artist talks and receptions during the spring semester of 2020, starting in January with a show titled "Recurrence" featuring artists Amanda Thatch and Kim Weiss.

On Nov. 21, the University of Montana Western Fine Arts Gallery hosted "Radical Subjectivity", an innovative, experimental, subtle, and dauntless selection of works from the Missoula Art Museum's Contemporary American Indian Art Collection. Assistant Professor of Art and Art History and Gallery Coordinator, Aja Mujinga Sherrard, opened the evening with a short lecture on Contemporary Indigenous art.

During the lecture, Sherrard explained that contemporary Native American art is often overshadowed by the historical items of the past. This gallery showcased artists from several tribes who combine contemporary techniques with culture and heritage to create strong messages about societal problems and modern Native American life.

One of the featured artists, Molly Murphy Adams, specializes in contemporary sculptural beadwork and printmaking. She was born in 1977 as a mixed-blood descendent of the Oglala, Lakota tribe and she was raised in Western Montana. Adams earned a Bachelor's in Fine Arts from the University of Montana in 2004. Much of her work stems from the combination of traditional Native arts and modern art, illustrating the blending of culture, identity and histories.

The imagery in Ernie Pepion's paintings draws heavily upon his Blackfeet ancestry and his experiences of living with a disability.

This piece above titled "Race with the Past" was completed by Ernie Pepion in 1990. Pepion was born in Browning Mont. in 1943, and served as an infantryman in the Vietnam War. After returning from service in 1971, Ernie was in a car accident which rendered him a quadriplegic and confined him to a wheel chair. In the ensuing years, Pepion

During his stay there he met another veteran who taught him how to mix paint colors with the use of a brace. This skill encouraged him to take up painting and he attended Montana State University for formal taining. The MSU Engineering Department developed a motorized easel and paint tube wringer which enabled Pepion to work out of his studio in Bozeman. In 2005 he received the Montana Governor's Award for Arts. In the early 1990's, he was profiled in a Native Voices Public Television Workshop documentary titled "Ernie Pepion: The Art of Healing."

He resides in Missoula, Montana as a printmaker, adjunct professor and 2-D Technician in the School of Visual and Media Arts at the University of Montana. His prints have been exhibited nationally and internationally at various universities and institutions. His work touches on Native identity, history and environmental and political issues.

Exhibition." The show ran from Oct. 4 to Nov. 8.

The closing reception featured presentations of the artists with brief personal statements, followed by a Q&A. Participating artists included Clare Bailey, Cory Birkenbuel, Beth Brillhart, LaVon Brillhart, Mary Christopher, Steve Cook, Colleen K. Howe, Jesse Scofield, Travis Stufflebean, Cathy Weber, James Wigen and Karen Zaspel.

LaVon Brillhart has manipulated photos in his artwork using 35 mm film for over 20 years.

LaVon Brillhart lightheartedly mentioned that he used to take photos of birds, but unfortunately birds would fly away, so now he takes photos of mostly wildflowers. "Sometimes my photos don't mean anything. Just look at it and enjoy it... and if you look at it and don't enjoy it, that is fine also. You don't always need to know what is going on to enjoy art," Brillhart said.

"The Mask," is one of Mary Christopher's favorite pieces because of the way her head is aimed, "strong like a bull," the artist explained. She incorporated a lightening bolt on the sculpture's forehead to signify knowledge.

"Hopefully people feel something when they look at my sculptures."

There's a spiritual being behind the unknown woman. To enjoy life for me is to work with clay by making images out of earth, specifically humans out of earth. I like to make women that have a lot going on in their thinking spheres with their eyes fierce, saying 'I am here,' said Christopher.

Southwest Montana Veterans Home. Update #30

By Mike Lawson

Greeting once again to you, the Veterans/Counties/Communities who are the six counties in SW Montana who are represented as the organizers and chief supporters of the "SW MT Veterans Home".

My sincere hope is that you all had a great Christmas and will have a Very Happy New Year, celebrating the coming in of 2020. This past week was a short one, due to our construction crews, only working 1&1/2 days. This made it possible for them too have a bit of Christmas vacation with their families. This News Years week will see them work, as I mentioned last week, the two days before News Years Day and the two days after. Even with these days off we continued to see the work on our Vet Home move forward. Again, I get much of my information from Site Construction Superintendent Mike Ascherman with some follow-up from SW Vet Home Liaison Mark Gollinger. It breaks down as follows:

Community Center; This building saw the roofing sub-contractors continuing to put asphalt shingles in place. It won't be long and they'll have it finished. The "Portico" roof is completely sheeted with its' plywood covering, has the eve work about completed and is ready for the roof covering underlayment put down, followed by the asphalt shingles. Inside work by sub-contractors continues as it's in the dry-in mode. Remember this is the building where all the offices will be and will be the first to be completed. Liaison Mark Gollinger knows where his office will be located and is chomping at the bit for the day he can move in (A few months for sure).

Cottage #1: This building is seeing it's roof being completed and the roof sub-contractors putting the roofing underlayment and shingles down. The dry in process is taking place (may be done) where the visqueen plastic sheeting is over the doors and windows. This enables the plumbers and other sub-contractors to work in a dry environment. Good pictures on the Southwest Vet Home Web-site on the up to date progress. SWMVH.MT.gov

Cottage #2; The interior walls/framing continues and the roof trusses will soon be put in place. More will be able to reported on next week.

Cottage #3; Layout and wall framing is the order of business taking place on this building. If some of these exterior walls aren't standing when this article comes out, they will be shortly after.

Cottage #4; is on hold and curing.

Cottage #5; is on hold and curing.

Before signing off, I would again stress the importance the SW MT Veteran's Home Foundation is going to play, in making our Resident Veterans lives better while being in our Veteran Home. This will be able to happen in many ways, from providing things the state can't provide, to bringing ways to uplift their spirits. Working in partnership with the state, the VA and you, who are part of the Foundation, will be a winning combination, for sure. Realize that we need you, the young, middle aged and older aged folks, to be part of our SW MT Veteran Home Foundation, whether you're a veteran or not. One lady said recently, "Wouldn't it be a nice thing to have a "Veteran's Mining City Christmas" for the resident veterans, at the SW MT Veteran's Home, during the Christmas Holidays, every year." These kinds of ideas coming from you folks, is what being part of the SW MT VET HOME FOUNDATION is all about and is very much needed. Please consider becoming part of us. The Foundation will meet on January 6th at 1:00 PM at the Butte Archives.

I'll close for now and should have more to report next week after the holidays are over and our construction crews can get back to full-time work. Stay warm and start enjoying the year 2020.

Trapper education course set for Jan. 25 in Butte

A trapper education class is scheduled for Saturday, Jan. 25, at Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks' Butte Area Resource Office, 1820 Meadowlark Lane.

The class will be held from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m., with an hour-long break for lunch. Topics will include trapping equipment, trap setting, ethics, regulations, furbearer identification and fur handling. Class participants will receive a certificate of completion, the Montana Trappers Association trapping handbook and other informational material. The class is sponsored by the Montana Trappers Association and FWP.

The class is free and open to the public. An adult must accompany youth who are under 12 years old. Preregistration is required by contacting Butte area biologist Vanna Boccadori at 406-494-2082.

This class does not certify participants for Montana's wolf trapping season. Prospective wolf trappers must complete Montana's Wolf Trapper Education Certification course, traditionally offered in the summer in Bozeman and in other areas of the state.

For more information or to sign up, please contact Boccadori at 406-494-2082 or Fran Buell of the Montana Trappers Association at education@montanatrappers.org.
