The Drum Brothers

Presented by the Southwest Montana Arts Council
Thursday January 23, 2020 at 7:00 pm
Beier Auditorium, University of Montana Western Campus
$10 at the door, or online in advance at smacarts.org

Arlee, Montana based Drum Brothers present high energy performances that celebrate a diverse mix of world instruments and sounds: West African djembe and dunun drums, Egyptian and Irish frame drums, Australian didgeridoo, close harmony vocals, bass & acoustic guitar, saxophone and flute, and original arrangements and compositions. They've been at the forefront of the American hand drumming movement since it began in the early 1990s, and make their own drums.

The Drum Brothers will also present a 5:30 preview performance on Wednesday January 22 at African Oasis in downtown Dillon. Additionally, they will be conducting workshops and drum circles with local High School and Middle School students prior to the 7pm Thursday performance.

The Drum Brothers ensemble is comprised of Matthew and Michael Marsolek, Lawrence Duncan, Tracy Topp, and Ravi Marsolek. Explore the Drum Brothers at www.

Matthew Marsolek has received awards of excellence from the University of Montana for his musical work with theater and dance. He has studied East Indian and West African music for the past 15 years with a variety of teachers, including Mukesh Desai from India and Abdoul Dombia from Mali, West Africa. Matthew has experience and training in jazz, classical, and Hindustani vocal technique and is also an accomplished jazz and classical guitarist. As a recording artist, he has released projects with Drum Brothers and Mandir as well as two solo recordings, the most recent entitled, "The Bhakti Road". A dedicated and charismatic educator, Matthew has a passion for rhythm, harmonic relationships, and the healing and community building potentials of music. He teaches classes and clinics in voice, rhythm, and hand drumming throughout the Northwest.

Michael Marsolek has performed as a vocalist and percussionist in various ensembles including The Marsolek Brothers and Mandir. He's currently the program director for KUFM/KGPR Montana Public Radio. Michael has produced and performed on the The Stories Project (1996) and A Musical Dreamtime Journey with Lawrence Duncan released in 2002. A student of the didgeridoo and Native American flute, Michael continues to follow a fascination with exotic percussion instruments, including the riqq, tar and udu-drum.

Lawrence Duncan's contribution to the Drum Brothers ensemble is anchored in 25 years of professional woodwind and vocal performance. He is comfortable in diverse musical idioms on instruments that include saxophone, harp, flutes, and ethnic percussion. As well as performing with Mandir, Lawrence has collaborated with videographer Dick Ostheimer in the award-winning series Open Spaces and has collaborated with Michael Marsolek on their recent 2002 release, A Musical Dreamtime Journey.

A dancer since she was three, Tracy Topp has choreography experience and training in many dance styles, including West African, Middle Eastern, modern, and jazz. She has studied African dance with many teachers including; Youssouf Koumbassa, Mabiba Baenge, and Djeneba Sako. A self-described renaissance girl, Tracy has a B.A. in Arts from Nebraska Wesleyan and is also a singer and multi-instrumentalist (You can hear her sing on "The Bhakti Road"). Since 2002, she has been contributing her artistic talents to Drum Brothers in the manufacture and custom painting of frame drums.

Ravi Topp Marsolek is the home-schooled son of Matthew and Tracy who has played music since he was very young. Having grown up in the Drum Brothers' music community, rhythm and drumming are a second nature to him. In addition to music-making, Ravi's also passionate about Argentine Tango. A budding multi-instrumentalist, he's currently exploring and studying bass, mandolin, guitar, piano, and percussion.

Montana, Wyoming Ask Supreme Court to Hear Challenge of Washington's Denial of Coal Terminal Permit

States allege harm from violation of U.S. Constitution's Commerce Clause

Attorney General Tim Fox announced that the states of Montana and Wyoming are asking the U.S. Supreme Court to accept their challenge of Washington state's unconstitutional and discriminatory denial of a permit for a proposed export terminal in Longview.

Montana and Wyoming are asking for original jurisdiction, which means the dispute would bypass lower courts and go directly to the U.S. Supreme Court. The states argue that Washington's discriminatory denial of a Clean Water Act Section 401 Water Quality Certification for the proposed Millennium Bulk Terminal violates both the Dormant Commerce Clause and the Foreign Commerce Clause of the U.S. Constitution. The Commerce Clause grants the federal government—not states—authority to regulate interstate commerce.

"Montana's access to growing overseas markets shouldn't be dictated by the latest political fads on the west coast," Attorney General Tim Fox said. "As we are telling the court, the framers of the United States Constitution wrote the Commerce Clause to prevent the very harms that Washington state is inflicting upon Montana and Wyoming today."

"I did not come to this decision lightly, but Wyoming's ability to export one of our greatest natural resources is being blocked unlawfully," Governor Mark Gordon said.

If built, the Millennium Bulk Terminal would ship 44 million metric tons of coal annually from Montana and Wyoming to destinations overseas, where demand is growing.

In 2017, the Washington State Department of Ecology denied the project a Section 401 Water Quality Certification, a necessary permit under the Clean Water Act. The denial effectively killed the proposed terminal.

Washington state has 60 days to file a response to Montana and Wyoming's petition.

The petition is available to view or download here: <https://dojmt.gov/wp-content/uploads/MT-WY-v-WA-2020.p>
