2020 Hunting Regulations

Deer, Elk, Antelope, Black Bear, and Moose, Sheep, and Goat hunting regulations are available online.

The regulations were finalized by the Fish & Wildlife Commission on Feb. 13. Printed copies will be available at all license providers and FWP offices in a couple of weeks.

A few things to look for in this year's regulations:

Elk shoulder seasons have changed, depending on the hunting district. While they're still in place in many hunting districts around the state, the Commission looked to apply them more specifically depending on hunting district and region. If you're interested in participating in shoulder seasons this year, please pay close attention to the hunting district specific regulations and license requirements. Some may require a special application.

CWD information in this year's regulation is more general than in years' past but includes very good information for hunters. This is due to the reality that as FWP continues to sample deer, elk and moose across the state, the specifics about its presence continues to change. More information will be available later this summer prior to hunting season. The most current information can always be found online at fwp.mt.gov/cwd

During the past two years, FWP has worked to simplify the hunting regulations. These changes should make the regulations easier to read and understand. Additionally, information will be simpler to find with a convenient table of contents.

To see this year's regulations, go online to fwp.mt.gov and click on "hunting" and then on "regulations or click here."

Reminder:

2020 hunting and fishing licenses go on sale March 1.

- Applications will now be done online or in person at an FWP office, general licenses can still be purchased at all license providers.
- Hunters can apply for all special (limited draw) licenses and permits beginning March 1. That means deer, elk, antelope, moose, sheep, goat, bison and your B licenses.
- Drawings will be completed two weeks after the deadlines, except for antelope, which will be drawn after biologist conduct summer monitoring flights.
- The deer and elk permit deadline is April 1. The moose, bison, sheep and goat deadline is May 1. The antelope, elk and deer B license deadline is June 1.
- You can keep an electronic version of your licenses on your smart phone. The only thing you legally need to have printed and in your possession is your carcass tag, which still needs to be validated and attached to the carcass.
- All licenses and carcass tags will be printed on regular 8.5 x 11 paper. Reminder: FWP recommends all carcass tags to be kept in a small Ziploc-type plastic bag.

Attorney General Fox Joins Bipartisan Coalition Defending States' Rights to Regulate Prescription Drug Costs

Attorney General Tim Fox joined a bipartisan coalition of 45 attorneys general today in filing an amicus brief in the United States Supreme Court supporting states' rights to regulate and address the rising cost of prescription drugs. In Rutledge v. Pharmaceutical Care Management Association, the attorneys general argue that in order to protect the well-being of consumers, states must regulate pharmacy benefit managers, also known as PBMs. PBMs act as middlemen between pharmacies, drug manufacturers, health insurance plans, and consumers.

"Regulation of the prescription drug market, including pharmacy benefit managers, is a critical tool for states to protect their residents and address the access and affordability of prescription drugs," Attorney General Tim Fox said. "Pharmacy benefit managers are typically in a position that gives them some power to manipulate the market as they develop and maintain prescription drug formularies, contract with pharmacies, negotiate discounts with drug manufacturers, and process and pay prescription drug claims. Taking away a state's ability to regulate PBMs would create confusion and uncertainty in the market and harm patients," Fox added.

Today's brief supports the state of Arkansas' position that federal law does not prevent states from regulating PBMs. In 2015, Arkansas implemented a law that regulated the reimbursement rates PBMs pay to pharmacies. Under the law, PBMs must raise their reimbursement rate for a drug if that rate falls below the pharmacy's wholesale costs. The law also created an appeals process for pharmacies to challenge these reimbursement rates. The law was challenged by the Pharmaceutical Care Management Association, a PBM trade association, which argued that the Employment Retirement Income Security Act prevents Arkansas from implementing the law. Arkansas has asked the Supreme Court to reverse a lower court judgment that held the law invalid.

In today's filing, the attorneys general argue that state laws regulating pharmacy benefit managers are not restricted by federal law. Regulation is critical to the states' ability to improve the transparency of prescription drug marketplaces and to protect consumers' access to affordable prescription drugs, especially those in underserved, rural and isolated communities. To date, nearly every state has enacted laws that regulate PBMs in some way, including 44 new or amended laws in the last five years. Additionally, the attorneys general assert that the regulation of pharmacy benefit managers promotes healthcare access and affordability for residents.

SARSAPARILLA

By "Swede" Troedsson

In 1962 I was stationed on the Curlew Ranger District on the Colville National Forest, in NE Washington. In advance of laying out a timber sale, located approximately four miles northwest of Curlew, I and a timber technician, were walking out section lines, and posting metal signs on found section corners. The corners had been established by government surveyors some fifty plus years previously. Our objectives were to scout the area, and have the signed corners protected by the loggers during logging and road construction.

One day, while walking out a section line, we crossed a stream with a gorgeous meadow straddling it. It was a little before noon, so we broke early so we could sit on the established section line and enjoy the view as we ate our lunch.

While eating our lunch, the technician noticed the neck of an old bottle sticking out of the "duff". When he pulled it out, the neck was the top of an old bottle. The bottle had turned a light blue with age. The bottle had HOOD'S SARSPARILLA cast on the front of the bottle. On the back of the bottle the word APOTHECARIES was cast. On one edge of the bottle LOWELL MASS was cast, and other edge C.I HOOD & Co was cast. The bottom of the bottle has the number 59 cast on it. The survey of the rectangular township system began in Washington state in 1851. The survey of this Township was started in 1905. Could the number on the bottom of the bottle indicate the year (1859) the bottle was cast?

The survey party had to cross this stream while they were establishing the section line. They may also have been so impressed with beauty of the area that they stopped to eat lunch here. They may have left that bottle by the stream when they continued on with their survey.

Today that bottle sits on the fire place mantel piece in my living room.
