COVID-19 Update - On Behalf of Commissioner Christian

In partnership with the Board of Regents and as Commissioner of Higher Education for the Montana University System, the health and safety of our campus communities remains our top priority. With that in mind, and in light of the rapidly evolving challenge presented by the COVID-19 outbreak, I am directing all MUS campuses to implement the following decisions as soon as possible:As of March 23rd, all MUS campuses will, in every instance possible, transition all in-class instruction to online or other remote teaching modalities that do not require in-class presence. Individual departments, colleges, and universities should provide all material assistance and accommodation possible to faculty and students throughout this transition.

MUS campuses will remain open and operational for students. This includes residence halls, dining services, computer labs, and most other campus services. Employees will continue to report to work unless instructed otherwise or work-from-home accommodations are developed in individual cases.

To protect public health, MUS campuses will implement appropriate social distancing measures in line with CDC guidelines and recommendations. This should include restrictions on large lectures, theater performances, academic conferences, and other large gatherings.

All MUS students and employees need to monitor their official email address for more communications and planning details between now and March 23rd.

These decisions are in effect until further notice. Our COVID-19 challenge remains fluid, however, and as our campus communities prepare for Spring Break, it is our responsibility to establish the current course of action while also preparing for new circumstances as they emerge. If and when we consider a return to face- to-face instruction we will provide as much advance notice as possible and clear instructions for an orderly return to normal operations. Throughout, my office will continue to consult with Governor Steve Bullock, the Montana University System Board of Regents, health authorities, and other statewide partners as we assess our current policies. I ask that every campus leader be ready to answer questions and provide relevant information in a timely manner to students, faculty, and staff.I do not take these decisions lightly. I am committed to supporting the educational progress of our students and minimizing disruption to campus life whenever possible. I believe that the course of action outlined above is the best way to balance our commitment to protect the public health and safety of our students, employees, and communities.

NEW HOPE PREGNANCY SUPPORT CENTER OFFERING MEDICAL SERVICES THIS SPRING

The New Hope Pregnancy Support Center of Dillon is expanding this spring, adding medical services to its existing pregnancy support services. The center offers free and confidential assistance to those experiencing unplanned or unexpected pregnancies. Starting April 1, New Hope will offer free on-site obstetric ultrasounds, pregnancy testing with immediate results, and free or low-cost STD/STI testing.

Current services include pregnancy counseling, peer mentoring, and medical referrals. The center also provides expectant moms with prenatal vitamins. Pairing expectant moms and dads with experienced parents, the center offers a personal support network of client advocates who coach, support, and educate new parents. Further information is provided through BrightCourse lessons about pregnancy, parenting, and life skills. Those completing courses earn credits that can be redeemed for a growing array of baby clothes and supplies.

According to Executive Director Vicki Shepard, the center fills a void in Dillon and Beaverhead and Madison counties. "Our goal is in reaching the whole person and helping meet a lot of their needs during a challenging time." This includes emotional, practical, and spiritual needs, Shepard says. The support center operates on a faith-based foundation, though is open to all who may benefit from its services.

"The expansion of services was made possible through the generous support of the community," Shepard continues. "This includes many individual donors as well as the Gianforte Family Foundation, who recognized the need for what we do." The center also partners with Love INC of Dillon and the United Way of Beaverhead County.

Shepard is looking for additional volunteers to help staff and operate the center. "We need volunteers in a variety of roles," she says. This includes peer mentors and client advocates, general office assistants, volunteers who can help with promotion, fundraising, and event planning, as well as workers willing to help keep the center clean. Volunteer RNs, physicians, and medical technicians are also needed.

The center is located at 610 North Montana Street, Suite 6, Dillon. For more information or to volunteer, contact Vicki Shepard at 406-683-5259, newhopedillon@gmail.com, or by visiting the center or www.newhopelife.org. Hours are Tuesday through Thursday from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. and by appointment.

DEATH WISH

By "Swede" Troedsson (MSO '59)*

In 2016 I attended a memorial service in Dillon, MT, for Bill Murphy (MSO '56). When Bill retired from the U.S. Forest Service, he became active in the National Smokejumper Association (NSA) Trails Program, and was a strong supporter of NSA.

Several former smokejumpers who were active in the Trails program came down from Missoula to attend the service. Among them was Roger Savage (MSO '57). Roger had retired as a pilot with a major airline.

Roger told me the following story about Craig Smith (MSO '57):

(Craig had been a college classmate of mine. When Craig had been my roommate, he recruited me into the smokejumper program. In 2000 Craig died of Parkinson's disease at the early age of 62.)

Craig wanted his ashes scattered on a certain mountain peak in the Bitterroot Mountains that he and Roger climbed when they attended college. Craig and his first wife, Mary, divorced, and Craig remarried. Craig's second wife (widow) asked Roger if he would rent an aircraft and fly her over the peak that Roger and Craig climbed so she could scatter Craig's ashes on the peak.

Roger consented. He rented a plane and as they approached the peak, the widow inquired as to the name of the peak. Without thinking, Roger replied "St. Mary's Peak".

I wonder what crossed the widow's mind when she found out that the peak has the same name as Craig's first wife.

The last time I revised my will I had my attorney include the name of a high mountain lake where I want my ashes scattered. The lake, Lake Geneva, is just next to the Continental Divide, and flows south and down into Hamby Lake. I have visited over 150 lakes on the Beaverhead National Forest. Lake Geneva is my favorite. The view is spectacular, and the lake contains beautiful Yellowstone Cutthroat fish.

When my attorney inquired as to why I selected that lake, I described the spectacular beauty surrounding the lake and that there were mountain goat beds on the north shore. My wish was that my ashes be deposited on the goat beds. I would consider it a great honor to have a mountain goat take a dump on my ashes.

*Explanation of smokejumper references - example: "Swede" Troedsson (MSO-'59) indicates Swede's rookie smokejumper training occurred in 1959 at Missoula, MT.

RMEF Plays Intimate Role in Landmark Conservation Legislation

A recent Rocky Mountain Elk Foundation conservation project played a prominent role in President Trump calling for full, dedicated funding for the Land and Water Conservation Fund (LWCF).

The Senate just introduced a bill that creates permanent, full funding for LWCF.

"It cannot be overstated how important this program is for the future of conservation," said Kyle Weaver, RMEF president and CEO. "It is vital for elk, other wildlife, public access and for safeguarding America's hunting, fishing and other outdoor-related recreational traditions."

Senator Steve Daines (R-Montana) and Senator Cory Gardner (R-Colorado) first secured a meeting with President Trump and several of his staffers. Daines then reached out to RMEF to acquire high-quality maps, photos and other detailed information about its Falls Creek project, which permanently protected 442 acres of wildlife and riparian habitat along Montana's Rocky Mountain Front and also greatly improved access to more than 26,000 acres of public acres beyond.

During their meeting, Daines shared project details with the president including the fact that $250,000 in LWCF funds helped close the deal. President Trump stated that information "sealed the deal" for him.

"We sincerely thank all involved for moving this legislation forward, with specific recognition to Senators Daines and Gardner for their concerted efforts in working with and securing the support of President Trump. For the sake of our wildlife and our wild landscapes, we call on the Senate and the House of Representatives to approve this milestone measure so it can be signed into law," added Weaver.

The bill also addresses a backlog of maintenance issues at national parks, forests, wildlife refuges and other federal lands that will enhance the experiences of sportsmen and women who use these areas to hunt, fish, camp, view wildlife and enjoy other forms of outdoor recreation.

First created in 1964, LWCF makes funding available to lawmakers to appropriate up to $900 million annually from federal offshore drilling fees for the protection of important land, water and recreational areas for all Americans to enjoy.

For RMEF alone, LWCF so far provided more than $115 million to help permanently protect more than 162,000 acres of America's most crucial elk habitat and open public access to more than double that in 12 states.
