MSU student Hannah Telling wins Fulbright to Serbia

By Carol Schmidt, MSU News Service

Hannah Telling's education at Montana State University has combined her small-town background with world-class experiences. The senior from Dillon will add one more global opportunity to her resume as a Fulbright scholar teaching English in Serbia.

Telling, an MSU Presidential Scholar who will graduate in May with a degree in English education and a minor in women's, gender and sexuality studies from the College of Letters and Science, said she plans to draw upon the next year in Serbia to better prepare her to teach English in Montana when she returns. She plans to leave for Serbia in January.

Telling said that when she was in high school teaching in small town Montana was the last thing she wanted to do.

"Both of my parents are teachers, so growing up I wanted nothing to do with being a teacher," Telling said.

But, the well-traveled fifth-year senior said that the many experiences she's had at MSU — including a study-abroad experience, helping promote diversity at MSU and presenting a keynote address before 1,000 scholars at a national academic conference — have had the opposite effect on her career choices.

Telling said that she first began to look at teaching in a new way when she traveled to Cambodia on a U.S. State Department-sponsored trip to study environmental conservation the summer before her senior year in high school. There she learned about the Khmer Rouge and the years of brutality in the beautiful country.

The experience contributed to her interest in supporting diversity at MSU. She participated in the weekend-long Common Ground identity retreat and subsequently was trained to become a dialogue moderator with MSU's Sustained Dialogue program through the university's Diversity and Inclusion Student Commons.

Ariel Donohue, MSU's senior diversity and inclusion officer, said that on many occasions, she witnessed Telling's "courage to lean in to the challenge of dialogue with a calm demeanor and respect for all experiences."

"Hannah understands that teaching and learning are not confined to the walls of a classroom and that education has the power to change lives," Donohue said. "Her intercultural communication skills and natural ability to listen deeply to the experiences of others will serve her well in representing the United States and Montana as she tactfully navigates new situations and brings people together across lines of difference."

Telling also became a tutor in MSU's Writing Center, an experience that greatly shaped her MSU experience. Michelle Miley, director of the center, said that Telling's work there positively impacted many students' lives.

"She consistently acts out of values of respect, collaboration and reciprocity with a curiosity and desire for learning from others," Miley said.

Through her work at the center and her interest in English teaching, Telling gave a presentation of her research at the 2018 National Conference on Peer Tutoring in Writing using gesture drawings. The chair of the group's 2019 national conference, which was combined with a conference on national writing centers, thought Telling's presentation was so compelling he invited her to present the keynote address before 1,000 scholars at the 2019 conference.

Telling also admits to a passion for travel, and while at MSU spent a semester studying abroad in Finland. It was in Finland that Telling took master classes in peace, mediation and conflict research in which she became friends with a Serbian student and learned about the Serbian resistance group OTPOR and the country's many memorials and monuments.

"The history of Serbia is deep and complex," Telling said of the country that was a part of the former Yugoslavia. "I want to focus on how memories of various events are integrated into the classroom in the form of instructional units. This will allow me to study how Serbian classrooms' use of memory impacts identity and community structures which, in return, will inform my teaching practices and integration of (Indian Education for All) back in Montana."

Telling said she plans to bring those insights back to Montana where she hopes to become a secondary school English teacher. After student teaching in Belgrade, Montana, this spring, she is positive of her career path. Although she will not know where she will be placed in Serbia, there is a chance she may become one of the only teachers to teach in both Belgrade, Serbia, as well as Belgrade, Montana.

College of Letters and Science Dean Nic Rae said the college is very proud of what Telling has achieved.

"Hannah is an outstanding student who has dedicated herself to a career in English teaching and has helped many other MSU students through her work at the Writing Center," Rae said. And Telling said she also hopes to bring to her students some of the enrichment she experienced in both MSU's Honors College and as a Presidential Scholar.

"(Telling) has excelled academically while providing comfort and support to many through the VOICE and Writing Centers, as well as the Hilleman Scholars program," Lee said. "Hannah represents the best of her generation and will be an exemplary ambassador of our university, state and nation, as a U.S. Fulbright Scholar."

Dillon BLM to conduct prescribed burn this week

If you see smoke in the air near Dillon this week, don't fret: the Bureau of Land Management is planning prescribed burns in the next few days.

The burns are planned for the following areas:

- * East Grasshopper, about 20 miles west of Dillon. The burn areas of about 445 acres are adjacent to the west and east forks of Dyce Creek.
- * Muddy Creek, about 15 miles northwest of Lima. The burn areas are adjacent to the McNinch Creek drainage and are about 925 acres.

The proposed treatments are part of a larger national wildfire reduction strategy – Promoting Active Management of America's Forests, Rangelands, and Other Federal Lands to Improve Conditions and Reduce Wildfire Risk, as well as Reducing Wildfire Risks on Department of the Interior Land through Active Management. The two orders direct Department of the Interior and Department of Agriculture agencies to implement policies to improve forest and rangeland management practices by reducing hazardous fuel loads, mitigating fire risk and ensuring the safety and stability of local communities through active management on forests and range lands.

The prescribed burns will be implemented and closely monitored by fire managers from the BLM and the Montana Department of Natural Resources and Conservation.

For more information, contact Joe Sampson at the Dillon Field Office at (406) 683-8000.

BLM to temporarily close road along Madison River

A road along the Madison River in southwestern Montana will get a fresh face this spring thanks to the Bureau of Land Management.

South Bear Trap Road in Madison County will close temporarily on May 4 for two weeks as workers from the BLM's Butte Field Office resurface portions of the route.

The closure is due to the narrow nature of the road and the lack of pullouts along the route.

For more information, call the Butte Field Office at (406) 533-7600.

Wisdom Dist. Ranger conifer encroachment projects

District Ranger Molly Ryan has authorized two projects to combat conifer encroachment and expansion on the Wisdom Ranger District.

The projects, which will include vegetation treatment on more than 2,200 acres in the Christiansen Creek and Trail Creek Grasslands areas, will improve wildlife habitat for big-game and non-game species.

"Historically, fire played a role in keeping these areas open by eliminating seedling, sapling, and pole-sized trees," said Ryan. "By removing competing conifers in these project areas, we are ensuring valuable riparian areas, grasslands, and upland shrub and willow components are maintained and allowed to improve overtime."

In both project areas, crews will remove seedlings and saplings using chainsaws or hand nippers and pull fuels away from the trunks of white pine trees. Crews will burn the cut conifers and excess fuels collected when burn windows and weather allow.

In areas with a particularly high concentration of conifer expansion, prescribed fire will be used to create a more natural, mosaic-patterned landscape.

To allow for maximum flexibility in management of Forest Service resources and funds, the projects are expected to be completed within two to six years.

THE CARE AND USE OF A CLOTH FACE MASK TO HELP SLOW THE SPREAD OF COVID-19 (based on CDC guidelines)

General Guidelines:

We are asking all patients to wear a cloth mask when coming in to the clinic and consider wearing a cloth mask when you are out in the community.

Proper Mask Use and Care:

1. Always wear a clean mask
2. Wash hands with soap and water or alcohol-based sanitizer before touching mask.
3. Pick up your mask by grabbing the ear loops or ties
4. Avoid touching the mask itself at all times
5. Hold the mask ear loops and place a loop around each ear or tie behind the head or neck
6. Be sure the mask fits snugly against the side of the face

While wearing a mask:

- Mask should either be completely on or off
 - do not wear or rest under chin
- Never wear a mask inside out
- Remove mask if soiled or damp
- Do not touch mask, face, or adjust mask while it is on
- If you touch mask, wash hands with soap and water or hand sanitizer right away
