Grant to Advance Opportunities in Horsemanship and Agriculture Education Announced

Rural youth leadership and innovative rural development opportunities in southwestern Montana will take a major leap forward thanks to a generous "Seeds of Stewardship" grant awarded to the University of Montana Western. This $10,000 grant was made possible by the CHS Foundation and Rocky Mountain Supply, Incorporated.

and Chancellor Beth Weatherby.

In an event recently held on the UMW campus, Rocky Mountain Supply CEO, Brad Gjermo and CHS Board Capital and Foundation Finance and Investment committee member Ed Malesich, formally presented the award to UMW Chancellor Beth Weatherby, who was joined by Montana Center for Horsemanship Education Director, Eric Hoffmann.

RMS CEO Brad Gjermo, in providing this special grant to UMW, which will help the Montana Center for Horsemanship continue expansion of classrooms and a veterinary research laboratory, said "Rocky Mountain Supply is thrilled to be able to contribute and support the growth of the Montana Center for Horsemanship through the University of Montana Western Foundation. This provides RMS the opportunity to continue to invest in the growth of young people that have an interest in pursuing a career in agriculture."

UMW Chancellor Beth Weatherby added "The University of Montana Western values our partnerships and the funding provided by CHS and RMS for this project not only represents strong partnership support in educating our Ag-minded youth, but it also promotes innovative opportunities for the University and MCH."

"Education," says MCH president William Kriegel, "is central to our mission. This grant will further help us to provide the resources and facilities that advance learning opportunities for rural youth and economic development for our rural community. We are very grateful for these dynamic partnerships."

The Montana Center for Horsemanship, one of the nation's leading equine education centers and a partner with the University in Natural Horsemanship and Farm and Ranch educational programming, has been in a significant expansion effort. Plans have called for building new classrooms, a state-of-the-art veterinary research laboratory and conference space to accommodate growing demand by students and to develop a wide range of new equine education programs.

The Seeds of Stewardship grant, awarded to UMW, will help the University and the Montana Center for Horsemanship continue these efforts. The grant will expand educational opportunities for rural youth and rural communities in southwestern Montana and regionally.

The University of Montana Western has a strong and growing partnership with the Montana Center for Horsemanship and currently offers the only Bachelor of Science in Natural Horsemanship degree in the nation. Because of this partnership, MCH and UMW can provide real-world, experiential learning opportunities for students. MCH is also where Equine Studies students conduct most coursework and where hands-on learning experiences with horses are provided in a rural, agricultural setting. MCH will also be headquarters to a new Farm and Ranch Operations Program of UMW in the coming academic year.

Through this new expansion effort, MCH is becoming a renowned education center that will be able to offer diverse programs including national conferences, symposiums, research and community-driven events while building capacity to host a wide range of annual events. The Center's vision is to attract students from all walks of life, horsemanship, veterinary, and research scholars, scientists, professionals and amateurs, and all those who wish to learn about horses, agriculture, livestock management and Beaverhead County. The collaborative efforts of UMW and MCH seek to further the mission of this partnership and provide support for the local community. The expansion of the Montana Center is an opportunity to elevate and enhance educational and leadership opportunities and facilitate the education of Ag Leaders of tomorrow. Current expansion efforts will also generate new economic opportunities for rural southwestern Montana and the broader region.

The Montana Center for Horsemanship recently received a pledge of a quarter of a million dollars to begin development of state-of-the-art classrooms, research/laboratory space, expanded equine and livestock housing, a conference center, dining areas, and other facilities. The pledge required matching funds in whole or in part and this "Seeds of Stewardship" grant provided by the CHS Foundation and Rocky Mountain Supply is a significant commitment to the future of rural youth leadership and rural development.

The Montana Western Foundation and the Montana Center for Horsemanship are registered 501 (c)(3) organizations. The UMW Foundation was established in 1978 and the Montana Center for Horsemanship was established in 2011.

Attorney General Fox Works to Expose Illegal Robocallers

Attorney General Tim Fox and the State Attorneys General Robocall Working Group encouraged the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) today to facilitate continued collaboration among state attorneys general and telecom companies to coordinate tracing illegal robocalls to their source.

Under the TRACED Act, which became law in December 2019, the FCC will select a single registered association to manage the work to trace back illegal robocalls. Because a call can pass through the networks of many telecom companies before reaching its final destination, tracing that call—which is key to enforcing our laws against illegal robocallers—requires collaboration among telecom companies and state attorneys general. In their comments, the states note that traceback investigations are necessary for law enforcement to more efficiently identify and investigate illegal robocallers and expose voice service providers who assist and facilitate them.

"Consumers across the country are tired of being scammed by the continued scourge of illegal robocalls," Attorney General Tim Fox said. "We need to address this issue in a comprehensive way by implementing common-sense business practices to minimize illegal robocalls and trace them back to their source. Now more than ever, traceback investigations are urgently needed because of coronavirus-related robocall scams, including those involving relief checks, test kits, and work-from-home offers," Fox added.

For the last few years, state attorneys general have encouraged the telecom industry to increase the number and speed of traceback investigations each month. Many telecom companies have joined this effort and are working hard to stop illegal robocallers. In 2018, Montana became a member of a state coalition working with the telecom industry in this effort. Last March, Fox joined the coalition in sending a letter to the U.S. Senate Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation, urging the enactment of the TRACED Act.

Dillon Farmers' Market Preparing for 2020 Season in New Location

The Dillon Farmers' Market is committed to help make fresh local food and handmade specialties available to Dillon, as safely as possible. This year the market is making some changes that will affect the market's social atmosphere, and emphasize hygiene practices needed to help reduce virus transmission.

July 11 will be the opening Saturday for the Dillon Farmers' Market, which will continue on Saturdays through September 19. The market will be in a new location, on South Washington Street between Sebree and Reeder Streets, between Jaycee Park and the former Mary Innes school property. As in the past, hours will be 9 am to 1 pm. The street will be closed to vehicle traffic during the market. A city permit has been obtained for this event, okayed by police, fire, public health, and city authorities, as well as agreement by adjacent property owners.

The space will permit up to 20 vendors at one time, with 12 feet between each 10-foot vendor space. Vendors will set up their spaces to maintain social distancing and prevent contamination of their products. One-way foot traffic is planned though the market place, going south on the Jaycee Park side of the street and north on the Mary Innes side, to help maintain social distancing. Hand sanitizer will be provided at each end of the street, and also at vendor tables. The adjoining city park facilities, including restrooms, are available.

There won't be opportunity for shoppers to help themselves, or handle items prior to purchase. Vendors may be wearing face coverings and/or gloves. There may be "sneeze guards" or other barriers at the tables, as well hand sanitizer. Hard-surfaced tables and vinyl tablecloths that can be wiped down frequently will be the norm. More vendors will offer pre-packaged or to-go goods. There will be no community canopy with tables and chairs, or entertainment in the market. Without much shade available at this site, vendors will need to bring canopies or umbrellas, with weights to hold them down in case of wind.

Vendor applications for the first market will be due by July 1. After the first market, new vendors must apply for a space at least one week prior to their desired market date(s). If more than 20 applications are received for any market date, preference will be given to those with food products for sale. Only residents of Beaverhead, Madison, and Jefferson Counties may join the market

CURB SIDE POPCORN SALES

The Big Sky Cinema will have their last Friday night curbside popcorn sales from 4:30 to 6:00. Entertainment will be performed by the appropriately named "Fully Cooked Band" with Russell King, Buddy Hughes and Kim Hoffman doing their best social distance jam session in the lobby. Since closing due to the Covid 19 epidemic the Big Sky Cinema has been finding creative ways to keep community morale high in their own small way. With the very popular popcorn sales, live music by local entertainers, participation in car cruises and working through the White Hat Coalition in conjunction with Vida Designs and the USO Stan Smith has been supplying protective masks to the troops and medical personnel deployed overseas making for a very busy last 3 months. Now, he has been given the green light to reopen Friday, June 12th with two shows each night at 4 & 7 for a few weeks. They will operate at 50% for now until new films hit the circuit in mid July. The auditoriums will be mapped out for social distancing and procedures in the boxoffice and snackbar will center around safe practices. "My great staff and I are excited to get back to work bringing entertainment back to the Big Screen and thank our wonderful community for all of the support and well wishes during this time.

As the old saying goes, "The Show Must Go On!", we are moving forward and onward as conscious of safety for our patrons and staff as possible while bringing back an important part of our community experience. See you at the movies!
