Sagebrush and Snowdrifts 4-H News

By: Secret Petersen, Club Reporter

The Sagebrush and Snowdrifts 4-H club had a meeting at the 4-H building on June, 1 at 7:00p.m. We talked about our projects. We have until June 15th to drop any 4-H projects we feel we may not be able to complete.

Awards were given to kids in shooting sports.

We also talked about weigh-ins for animals. Letters and or e-mails were sent to the leaders and members to let them know what is to be done. We talked about making sure our record books were up to date and speeches given in order to complete projects. Our next meeting will be the sixth of July at 6:00 p.m. at the 4-H building. Members are to bring 4-H books to make sure all are up-to-date and speeches will be given.

Beaverhead Senior Center

The Beaverhead Senior Center will be reopening today for cards, crafts and general visiting. They are unsure when the Wednesday Meals will resume. We will keep you posted.

Montana Western Graduate Featured by Complete College America

The University of Montana Western congratulates alumna Heidi DuBray, who was featured today as one of Complete College America's "20 for 20" graduates.

Complete College America (CCA) recently asked 20 graduates from across the country to "shed light on their college experiences, from their motivation for enrolling, to the people who kept them on track, from the books that left lasting impressions, to the things they already miss about campus."

Established in 2009, Complete College America is an alliance of higher education institutions, including the Montana University System, working together to implement strategies to remove barriers and close achievement gaps so that all students can achieve their college dreams. Regardless of race, ethnicity, socioeconomic status, or familial educational achievement, CCA works to ensure equal opportunities to access and completion of a college education.

Montana Western graduate, Heidi DuBray, was featured as a student from the Montana University System on the CCA website and social media and shared her story.

In her interview, DuBray says that there were many reasons that getting a degree was important to her.

"I grew up on the Blackfeet Reservation and I come from a broken family, where drugs and alcohol were an everyday thing. Even as a child, I wanted more for myself and more for my people. I wanted change. I knew that change needed to start with me and that I needed to lead by example," she said.

Currently teaching at Napi Elementary School in Browning, Mont., DuBray was able to apply her education to teaching in her community right away as part of a 2+2 education partnership program with Blackfeet Community College, Browning Public Schools and the University of Montana Western that allows Indigenous teachers to complete their education degrees without leaving their local communities.

You can read more about Heidi and the other featured graduates by visiting the Complete College America website: completecollege.org/article/20for20-the-graduates/

Dr. Jane Helm Maddock Remembered for Commitment to Students and the Community

The University of Montana Western and Dillon area community was saddened by the recent news of the passing of Dr. Jane Helm Maddock.

Dr. Maddock taught for 17 years at Montana Western and was recognized as Professor Emeritus of English upon her retirement by the Board of Regents of the Montana University System. During her time at UMW, she established the Helm Honors Scholarship and the Helm Memorial Scholarship in memory of her parents.

One of Montana Western's most prestigious awards is the Dr. Jane Helm Maddock Service Award presented annually to those individuals and organizations who embody the spirit of Jane.

Dr. Maddock completed her bachelor's degree, with distinction, in English at Stanford University, her M.Ed. at the University of Virginia, Charlottesville, and her M.A. and Ph.D. degrees in English at the University of Utah. She joined the faculty at Western in 1986 as Assistant Professor and Director of the American Studies Program.

Throughout her career at the University of Montana Western, Dr. Jane Maddock served UMW and the community with distinction. Her dedicated service earned her the respect of her students, colleagues and professional associates.

"The impact that Dr. Maddock had on Montana Western is profound. Our Honors Program would not exist without her vision to establish it during her time here. Jane was a strong proponent for education and felt it was a privilege to help make education possible for students by establishing two scholarship funds to assist them. She was a dear friend to many in our community and will be deeply missed. Her legacy will forever be written in Montana history with her philanthropic support and visionary leadership," said Montana Western Foundation Director, Roxanne Engellant.

At her family's direction, gifts in memory of Jane can be made to her scholarships housed at the Montana Western Foundation. To learn more about her scholarships and donate, visit the UMW Foundation website.

FWP closes trail in Blackleaf WMA due to bear activity

Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks has temporarily closed the Muddy Creek Falls Trail in the Blackleaf Wildlife Management Area due to bear activity.

A hiker in the area contacted FWP about a moose carcass found on the trail. The trail, which is on the west-central edge of the WMA, goes into a narrow canyon and dead ends in rough, rocky terrain.

The Blackleaf WMA is utilized by multiple grizzly bears from March through November. FWP is not able to remove the carcass, due to its remote and inaccessible location, and it is likely to attract grizzly bears to the trail. So the trail is closed until further notice.

Blackleaf WMA is about 85 miles northwest of Great Falls in Teton County.

FWP reminds recreationists to be cautious and prepared for a bear encounter when recreating in Montana. Bears — especially grizzlies — can be protective of food sources like animal carcasses. Some recommended precautions for avoiding negative encounters with bears include:

- Be aware of your surroundings and look for bear sign.
- Carry and know how to use bear spray.
- Stay away from animal carcasses.
- Travel in groups whenever possible.
- Follow U.S. Forest Service food storage regulations.
- If you encounter a bear, never approach it. Back away slowly and leave the area.

For more information on staying safe in bear country, visit fwp.mt.gov/fishAndWildlife/livingWithWildlife/beBearAware.

PICTOGRAPHS

By "Swede" Troedsson

In the early part of the 1990s, the Dillon Ranger District wildlife biologist, Stacey Courville, and I were on patrol west of Lima. Our objective was to contact hunters just prior to the opening of the general hunting season in order to explain Forest Service travel restrictions, sell them maps, and answer questions about the area.

Stacey was from St. Ignatius, MT, and proud of his Native American heritage. He was an "enrolled" member of his local tribe (Salish-Kootenai).

As we were about to turn off the Little Sheep Cr. road, and drive up to the East Cr. Camp Ground, I asked Stacey if he was aware that there were some pictographs on the bluff just on the other side of East Cr., and behind an old cabin. Stacey said he was not aware. I suggested he grab his camera, and we'd go have a look.

We hopped across the creek, and Stacey commenced to take photographs of the pictographs. As Stacey was taking photographs, I explained that it was my understanding that they had been painted by the local Tendoy Indians.

I thought I would test Stacey's sense of humor. I went on to falsely claim that it was my understanding that the local Indians would gather into a raiding party each year and ride up into the Flathead Valley, fight the local Indians, and steal their horses and women.

I turned around to check Stacey's reaction. He had an evil grin on his face and said "Not on their best day!"
