Quintin Dick Stephen-Hassard

Quintin Dick Stephen-Hassard passed away on February 29, 2020, in Dillon, Montana, of brain cancer. He was 80. He was born on April 5, 1939, in La Jolla, California, to Quintin Maxwell and Elisabeth (Richardson) Stephen-Hassard. The family name was Stephens until 1929 when it was changed to Stephen-Hassard to comply with the will of a grand uncle. Dick himself was named after his great-great-great-grandfather, Captain Charles Quintin Dick, of the 80th Regiment of the British Army, who saw service in India in the early 1800s.

Dick spent his early years in La Jolla. He was graduated from Colorado College, Colorado Springs, in 1961 with a degree in biology. He earned his Master's degree in marine zoology at University of Hawaii where he studied parasitology in marine animals. His field work included repopulation studies in the tide pools and on the submerged lava flow at Kapoho, Hawaii, as well as a poison fish project carried out on Christmas and Palmyra Islands and Johnston Atoll where they studied ciguatoxin in the reef fish ecosystem and food chain. He was on the International Indian Ocean Expedition in 1964 doing plankton tows for marine productivity surveys.

Dick was commissioned in the U. S. Navy in 1965. He served aboard the hydrographic survey ship USS Maury for three years, during which time they surveyed the harbor at Buenaventura, Colombia, the waters around Kwajalein Atoll, and the coastline and river mouths of South Vietnam. Early in his Navy service he commanded one of the soundboats that ran the actual survey lines; those officers received the Navy Commendation Medal with Combat V for their work in the waters of South Vietnam. The ship was homeported at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii. Dick met Michele Barrère in Hawaii and they were married there in 1966 between his two tours to Vietnam. He was then assigned to the Naval Research Laboratory (part of the Office of Naval Research) in Washington, D. C. He was eventually discharged from the Reserves as a Lieutenant Commander.

Upon his release from active duty in 1969 Dick and Michele returned to Hawaii where he joined C. Brewer & Company, a sugar industry company at that time. He worked on one of their plantations on the island of Hawaii as an industrial engineer. His first project was to study how sugar cane lands could be used for aquaculture. He was the company's environmental protection coordinator. Their two children were born in Hilo. Dick subsequently ran Brewer's aquaculture endeavor – a freshwater prawn farm – on the island of Kauai. While associated with Brewer he participated in aquaculture feasibility studies in Tunisia, Egypt and Thailand and he headed a State project on the potential of manganese nodule mining in Hawaii.

In 1979 the family moved to Honolulu where he was President and General Manager of Fred. L. Waldron, Ltd., a multi-faceted mercantile company started in 1902 which was involved with steamship agency, food brokerage and distribution, customhouse brokerage and feed milling.

In Honolulu he was an agent for an Australian colliery, importing Australian coal to fire the boilers on the sugar plantations. He also consulted on aquaculture and aquaculture feed milling.

The family moved to Dillon, Montana, in 1995, where he continued his involvement with animal nutrition as a consultant in the feed industry. He worked on a BSE (bovine spongiform encephalopathy) project with the FAO in Rome, Italy, and he carried out feed mill compliance audits throughout the northwestern U.S. and into Canada. He returned to Vietnam with the U. S. Grains Council helping the VN government develop a system of feed industry regulatory standards.

Dick was an avid kayaker, having to make do with the reservoir south of Dillon in lieu of ocean racing in Hawaii. His great love was for the ocean; he was a body surfer and a SCUBA diver as well as a free diver; he enjoyed following in the wake of Captains Cook, Bligh, and Flinders and cartographer Vitus Bering in the Pacific; he studied maritime history; he traveled the world on his own and then with Michele as they took many cruises worldwide.

Dick was a member of American Feed Industry Association for many years and was their Member of the Year in 1991. He was a brother of Beta Theta Pi and a lifetime member of Association for the Advancement of Science, National Rifle Association, U. S. Naval Institute, Veterans of Foreign Wars and American Legion. He spent many hours helping deliver hospital equipment on loan from American Legion Dillon Post 20 to residents throughout Beaverhead County. He served in military honor guards and was instrumental in other Legion projects locally. He was among those recently honored with a Congressional Veteran Commendation. His small boat service in Vietnam exposed him to Agent Orange, and he was diagnosed with chronic lymphocytic leukemia in 2000. The CLL and several other cancers presented challenges through the years, ending with development of brain cancer in September 2019.

Dick is survived by his wife Michele Marie (Barrère) Stephen-Hassard of Dillon; their daughter Nicole Marie (John) Derick of Divide, Montana; their son Charles Gregory (Melody) Stephen-Hassard and three Stephen-Hassard grandsons, Maxwell Francis, Charles Henry and Edward Benton, of Martinsburg, West Virginia; and his brother Thomas Adam (Rosemary) Stephen-Hassard, of Lake Forest, California.

Burial in Mountain View Cemetery, Dillon, Montana, and a party in Dick's memory are on hold until travel is safe for family and friends. Memorials are suggested to the donor's favorite charity.

Male Grizzly Bear Euthanized

Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks captured and euthanized a subadult male grizzly bear about five miles west of Shelby on June 19. The bear had been involved in multiple conflicts between Ethridge and Ledger this spring, and attempts to prevent incidents were unsuccessful. In consultation with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, the decision was made not to relocate the bear because its undesirable behavior appeared engrained and posed a human safety risk.

The young male bear was conditioned to non-natural foods and habituated to the presence of people, meaning it had lost its fear of humans. The bear had obtained food rewards, such as spilled grain, livestock carrion, and BBQ grills near homes, which led the bear to seek out residences for more food. Further, the bear had grown accustomed to people and had looked into two home windows and approached a person on a porch.

FWP made attempts to aversively condition the bear to people and homes by hazing it. Additionally, FWP had installed scare devices and electric fence around attractants in an effort to prevent conflicts. Landowners had also cleaned up grain spills and attempted to scare the bear off. FWP had proactively met with producers in the area to make them aware of the situation, provided bear spray, and discussed securing attractants.

Securing attractants is the best way to prevent bears from coming near homes. Common attractants in the area include grain spills, livestock carcasses, apple trees, and pet food. Spilled grain should be cleaned up and disposed of at a landfill, burned, or dumped away from human infrastructure and livestock. FWP provides free livestock carcass pickup during the spring for Teton and Pondera counties. Additionally, FWP works with producers to build electric fence and install other conflict-prevention equipment.

If you observe a bear near your home, it should be carefully scared away from the safety of a hard-sided vehicle. Care must be taken to not push the bear toward other people, and the bear cannot be injured because they are protected under the Endangered Species Act. Air horns and other loud noises can also be used to scare bears away from homes to help teach them to fear people.

For questions, please call your local FWP office or 406-454-5840.

Attorney General Fox Offers Tips for Unemployment Fraud Identity Theft Victims

Across the country, State unemployment programs have been targeted by criminals taking advantage of the pandemic by illegally obtaining benefits through fake claims. Today, Attorney General Tim Fox issued tips to help Montana victims of this crime.

"Criminals are taking advantage of the COVID-19 crisis by using information obtained from a variety of sources to apply for unemployment benefits that should rightfully go to Montanans financially impacted by the pandemic," Attorney General Tim Fox said. "Be suspicious if you receive a letter saying you qualify for unemployment benefits when you didn't apply, or if you get a letter supposedly from the IRS claiming you underreported benefits. There are several steps you can take to report the crime and protect your banking accounts and credit score,"Fox added.

Other signs your personal information was used improperly include getting requests for information to apply for unemployment benefits, or your employer was notified you applied for unemployment benefits when you did not.

If you suspect your information was used in unemployment fraud, Fox offered these tips:

Report the incident to:

1) Your employer;

2) The Montana Department of Labor and Industry by phone at 1-888-566-5677, or online;

3) The Federal Trade Commission's website.

Freeze your credit. A credit freeze lets you "lock" your credit information so no one can access it without your permission. To get one, contact each of the three credit reporting agencies: TransUnion, Equifax, and Experian. If you request a credit freeze, each agency will send you a written notice when the freeze is in place, along with a PIN to make changes to the freeze.

Put a fraud alert on your credit report. You can put a fraud alert on your credit report by contacting any of the three credit reporting agencies. They'll share your request with the others. Placing a fraud alert doesn't hurt your credit score.

Check your credit report. You can get a free copy of your credit report here. Check your credit report periodically to see if it shows fraudulent activity. Normally, you're entitled to one free credit report every 12 months; however, due to COVID-19, all three credit reporting agencies offer free weekly online reports through April 2021.

Monitor your bank accounts. Close any account that you know/suspect has been tampered with or fraudulently opened. If scammers succeed in getting unemployment payments with your information, it usually goes into accounts they control. You won't be required to repay benefits that were fraudulently paid out.

Don't respond to requests to send money. Sometimes, the fraudulent unemployment benefits can end up in your account. If this happens, scammers may try to get you to send the money to them. They may pretend to be a state agency saying the money was sent by mistake. Don't respond to any contact telling you to return the money through methods such as wiring, sending cash, or putting money on gift cards. State agencies will never ask for payment that way.

Don't respond to requests for personal information. Don't give out personal information over text, email, or phone calls you didn't initiate. Don't put personal information on websites or social media. Be wary of sites that say they can help you file for unemployment benefits, or people who say they can help you file for a fee. For accurate information regarding unemployment benefits, visit the Montana Department of Labor and Industry's website.

According to the Montana Department of Labor and Industry, it has paid out more than $10 million in potentially fraudulent unemployment claims during the pandemic, but has stopped more than $220 million in fraudulent payments since the end of April.

For information on identity theft, visit the Office of Consumer Protection's website or call (800) 481-6896 or (406) 444-4500.
