Barbara Ann Nitsche

Barbara Ann Nitsche died peacefully at her home in Dillon, MT on Monday, June 15, 2020 at the age of 91. Her last days were spent at home with her family and an adorable assortment of dogs.

Barbara in her beloved Hawaii 1947

Born in Honolulu Hawaii on Dec. 19, 1928, Barb witnessed incredible changes to the world in her 91 years. At the age of 12, two days after the bombing of Pearl Harbor, her mother, Mary Hudson feared for her safety and sent her to live with her Aunt Ruth and Uncle Jack Evers in Vallejo, CA, where she would go on to attend high school and graduate school. As her family will tell you, she approached life will a smile and a positive attitude. She earned a business degree and began work as a secretary shortly after graduating. In 1946, she began working as a bank teller and gradually worked her way up to the position of Loan Officer. She enjoyed her career and made many friends over her nearly 45 years in the business.

In 1953, Barbara married the love of her life and fellow comedian, Paul Nitsche, who she met while on a cruise with her crew of girlfriends. They met in Honolulu where Paul was stationed. Together they would have 4 children. Cathy, Dan, Mike, and Mark were blessed to call Barbara their mom. After the birth of Cathy, Barb and Paul moved to San Diego were they would build their dream home and raise their family. There was no lack of adventure, love, humor, dogs, cats, horses, pigs, chickens, roosters, 4H, Little League, Horse Shows… they lived an abundant life. They had a magical childhood. Barb was the kind of mom that held life-long relationships with all of her children and became a beloved grandma, and then great-grandma to kids that treasured her kindness, wit, easy-going attitude and strong will.

Paul and Barb retired to Montana and loved to travel. She especially loved to cruise in their motorhome. It was during one of these trips to southwest Utah, that they fell in love with the amazing red mountains and unique landscape. They moved to Kayenta, UT, and built their second dream home. They lived there happily for 18 years, then decided to move back to Montana to be close to family.

playing card games, gardening, antiquing, and loving on dogs were on her huge list of hobbies, but she was also rather adventurous, and never turned down an opportunity to do something everyone else thought might be a bad idea, such as getting on a snowmobile at the age of 89. If you were lucky enough to know her, you know that her smile was magical. It lit up her face and the world around her. Her personality was vivacious, and her laugh contagious. She was simply a wonderfully fun and loving person, and she will be terribly missed.

Barbara was preceded in death by her husband, Paul Nitsche. She is survived by her children Cathy (Steve) Cottom, Dan (Linda) Nitsche, Mike Nitsche, and Mark (Joe) Nitsche, her grandchildren, Lindsey (Mike) Clarke, Travis (Emily) Cottom, and Trent (Ashly) Cottom, Sarah (Matt) Meade, Karissa Nitsche, Kris Nitsche and Mia Nitsche, and her great-grandchildren Cooper and Chase Clarke, and Philip and William Cottom, and Austin and Drew Cottom.

Barbara was so well cared for by many wonderful people in the Dillon community, and the family is thankful to you all. A funeral service is not planned at this time. Memorial contributions may be made to Beaverhead Ambulance, Beaverhead Animal Shelter, Barrett Home Hospice, Barrett Hospital Foundation, or a charity of your own choice.

The Juniper Fence Post

Bryce Angell

I gazed down at the fence line, prob'ly near a quarter mile.
One lodgepole post lay on the ground. It'd been there for a while.
I couldn't help but notice one post stood up straight and tall.
For sure it was the juniper I'd planted late one fall.
My father taught me how to lay out fence and plant a post.
He said a juniper fence post would outlast more than most.
The other posts were rotted through, not long 'fore they'd be dung.
The old fence brought back memories of a time when I was young.
I must have been about eighteen. My Homelite saw was new.
I'd learned to run a chainsaw when most young boys had no clue.
I drove out to the desert looking for a dried-up tree.
Then spotted one lone juniper. Its limbs now dead debris.
So, I cranked up my new chainsaw. It was sharp and set to cut.
But the juniper weren't soft. The kickback knocked me on my butt.
The sparks were flying past my ear. Was juniper a wood?
It seemed this juniper was set to test my manlihood.
The tree smelled so dang pungent, like a billy's aftershave.
I figured every whiff would send me to an early grave.
I finally cut clean through the stump. Then sharpened once again.
The tree limbs cut like flint. I must have sharpened up times ten.
I loaded up my fencepost and darn sure I'd had enough.
Never, even to this day, have cut wood so dang tough.
That day I dug and planted my old juniper fencepost.
I wondered would it stand the test of my good father's boast.
Now, seeing my old juniper, some fifty years or so.
Sure proved its worth, of all the posts, I'd planted long ago.
So, should I cut a juniper and plant it in the ground?
My memory tells me, "You would be the dumbest all around!"

Additional cases of COVID-19 confirmed in Beaverhead County

Beaverhead County Public Health is investigating four new cases confirmed over the weekend of COVID-19 in the county.

This brings Beaverhead County's total COVID-19 case count to 7.

The cases include two females in their 30's who are symptomatic and were identified as contacts to a previously identified positive case. A third case is a female under 10 years old who is symptomatic, exposure is still being investigated. The fourth case is a female in her 40's who is also symptomatic. Her exposure is also still being investigated. Contacts for this female are still being determined. As with every case if you are not contacted by public health, you are not considered a close contact. A close contact is considered someone who is within 6 feet for at least 15 minutes with a positive case.

Beaverhead County Public Health Director, Sue Hansen, reminds Beaverhead County residents to be cautious and remain vigilant as cases in Montana continue to dramatically increase. Social distancing, wearing face coverings, washing hands, and remaining home when sick are 4 of the very simple and proven ways we can reduce the transmission of this disease. Just because the county has had very few cases does not mean we are immune to an outbreak of COVID-19. Large gatherings such as weddings and crowed bars where social distancing is not being followed have been linked to recent cases in Montana.

Testing is being planned at Dillon History Days on Friday, July 24th for community-wide testing. This testing is for asymptomatic (no symptoms) persons only. Time and location for this testing is being determined and will be announced when planning is complete. Those who have symptoms are asked to seek testing at Barrett Hospital and Healthcare by calling their healthcare provider. Those experiencing severe symptoms are asked to seek emergency medical care at the hospital.

Knapp House Fire

Just want to let everyone know that Inky Jack Knapp is ok. His house burnt down this morning and he has lost everything including his dogs. Thank God he wasn't inside when it went up. His phone was also in the house. There will be a gofundme page set up later to help him get back on his feet. Love you Ink!

Bureau of Reclamation replaces suspension bridge

The Bureau of Reclamation will replace the aging suspension bridge located at Barrett's Diversion Dam, 8 miles south of Dillon, Montana in the fall of 2020. The pedestrian bridge was built in the late 1970's by the Youth Conservation Corps under the direction of Reclamation to allow access over the Beaverhead River and open up additional recreation areas on the east side of the river.

During a bridge inspection; Reclamation inspectors identified wood decay that led engineers to concerns regarding structural integrity. These findings led to the development of potential corrective actions, but repairing the existing bridge was determined to be cost prohibitive. Therefore, the bridge will be replaced in its entirety with a free span steel pedestrian bridge.

"Public safety at our recreation facilities are very important to Reclamation," said Steve Davies, Area Manager for Reclamation's Montana Area Office. "Replacing the pedestrian bridge was the right choice for the public to continue to enjoy Barrett's Park in a safe manner."

Construction will start sometime this fall and is expected to be completed by November. For safety reasons, access to the area will be limited during the construction process.

ARE YOU FED UP WITH ANONYMOUS SOURCES, TOO?

Tyrades! by Danny Tyree

What spoils even more evening meals than robocalls?

How about newscasts with their endless stream of titillating revelations coyly attributed to "reliable sources," "people close to the matter," "people familiar with the situation," "people who thought the situation was a cast member of 'Jersey Shore'," etc.?

The whole concept of "close to the situation" is overrated. Lots of people "close to the situation" can't see the forest for the trees until Columbo, Poirot or Jessica Fletcher waltz in and make them look like doofuses.

The overkill derives from the hyper-competitive 24-7 news cycle and the need to go beyond "dog bites man" and "man bites dog" to "man bites dog for not delivering the nuclear missile toads to a Russian duffle agent, or at least that's what my source THOUGHT he overheard. Darned noisy pencil sharpener!"

Every reporter aspires to be Woodward and/or Bernstein. Or at least SOME 70s icon. ("Running up the steps of the Philadelphia Museum of Art? Boxing in a meat locker? Drinking raw eggs? I'm settling for Woodward and Bernstein!")

Don't get me wrong. There are definitely some true red-blooded heroes among the anonymous sources, but probably

ALL the snitches envision themselves as being simply ordinary "aw, shucks" citizens whom Destiny thrust into just the right place at the right time to save the republic from an existential threat. Just like Destiny thrust them into just the right place (on their big brother's shoulders) at the right time (two weeks before Christmas, 1995) to search the top shelf in their parents' bedroom closet.

Confidential sources blow the whistle on a wide variety of abuses, but it's funny how you NEVER hear one quoted saying, "The public needs to know that this company/bureau/agency has waaaay too many nonessential employees meandering around, stumbling into trouble."

Whether it's a case of wishful thinking, unmerciful deadlines or pure gullibility, reporters often do a haphazard job of ascertaining the motivations or agendas of leakers. We all know that disgruntled employees are capable of "going postal" in the workplace, but reporters have difficulty thinking on a smaller scale. ("Sure, my source might blow his boss's brains out, but he would never stoop to falsely accusing him of emitting bad vibes at a company retreat.")

Most of the wholesome newspapers that carry my column would never think of grooming confidential sources to sensationalize current events ("According to an unnamed onlooker, the mayor contemplated RUNNING with the ceremonial scissors for cutting the ribbon"), but flashy national publications might.

I look askance at some of the NAMED sources in newspapers ("The constellation Sagittarius promises an old friend/colleague/humanoid you haven't seen in a long time will give you a bunch of money/time/solitude today"), so excuse me if I'm extra-leery of unnamed ones.

Most news isn't WORTH an unauthorized preview. We used to long for TANGIBLE things. "Be the first on your street to drive a '65 Mustang." Now it's more like "Be the first to learn a Hollywood casting scoop that will be obsolete by the time you finish your…too late!"

The elephant in the room is that nowadays a lot of us don't even trust the REPORTERS/ANCHORS, let alone their vaunted sources. The circular reasoning used in establishing credentials is cringe-inducing. ("Of course, I'm a trustworthy reporter. My source can VERIFY that. And so can his wife…um, er…Morgan Fairchild! Yeah, that's the ticket!")
