The Longest Ride

Bryce Angell

My friends and I made plans to ride in Yellowstone last fall. It's a day-long ride we've done before, now twelve of us in all. We started at Old Faithful on a brisk October day. We aimed for the old Ranger Station thirty miles away. I could hear the click as saddle bags were buckled in their places. Those cowboys were excited. I could see it in their faces. The horses' breaths were steaming in the cold October air. It was time to hit the trail, and we had no time to spare. Now let me take you back a bit before our ride began. There were four new lady riders who were bound to join our clan. They were all beginner riders and were dressed to fit the part. But what was so surprising was they stopped at Mini-Mart. The gals thought there was extra time and purchased soda pop. There must have been a mighty thirst. They filled it to the top. The ladies saddled up and only rode a mile or so. But soon the pop had run its course. And then they had to go. We helped the ladies climb on down. Into the woods they went. Then helped each one back on her horse, just like a proper gent. On down the trail our horses walked but stopped when (wouldn't you know?) Another lady called out loud, "I really gotta go!" So once again we helped her down and then back on her horse. I warned them all, "We're running late. We've got to stay the course." We rode a few more miles, and then I heard a desperate plea, "I know we're short of time, but, guys, I really gotta pee." I wondered just how many times in one day they could go. I quit the count about halfway. I didn't want to know. We stopped along the river's edge and ate the fastest bite. The horses drank and ate some oats. By now we'd lost the light. The day was done. The sun went down. The ride had gone too slow. But after dark I never heard, "I really gotta go." We finally reached the station. Yes, our patience had been tried. My body was a total wreck. I'd say completely fried. So when we take that ride again, I'll offer some advice. "Leave all the soda pop at home! Next time we won't be nice."

FWP to conduct rotenone treatment of North Fork of Spanish Creek

The Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks will be conducting a rotenone treatment of the North Fork of Spanish Creek.

This is the second rotenone treatment as part of a multi-phased project to remove non-native fish and restore native westslope cutthroat trout to the North Fork of Spanish Creek. Rotenone is a naturally derived substance commonly used in fish restoration efforts that is toxic to gill-breathing animals and breaks down quickly in the aquatic environment.

Westslope cutthroat trout are native to Montana but have experienced substantial declines in distribution and abundance throughout their historical range due to habitat degradation and hybridization with rainbow trout. However, the results of this restoration project will more than double the number of stream miles occupied by westslope cutthroat trout in the Gallatin River drainage.

From Aug. 5 to 7, FWP will be assessing stream flow rates using dye tablets to determine the rate at which rotenone will be carried downstream. The dye will not impact the water's suitability for fish or human consumption.

The rotenone treatments are scheduled to begin Aug. 10 and could last until Aug. 21.

Rotenone usually does not pose a significant risk to humans, but people should avoid consuming water from the treatment area during this period. Signs will be posted around the lakes during and immediately following treatment. A detox station will be installed at the barrier, so the rotenone will not impact the water's suitability for fish or human consumption downstream of the project.

The South Fork of Spanish Creek, accessed from the trailhead at the end of the Spanish Creek Road, will not be impacted by the treatment.

Grizzly bear euthanized due to cattle depredation

A grizzly bear was euthanized after a recent cattle depredation in south Park County.

The adult male bear was captured shortly after it killed a cow on private land on Wednesday. In consultation with federal partners at the U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service and Wildlife Services, the decision was made to euthanize the bear due to this depredation and past depredations in the area.

Relocating bears safely is difficult at this time of year because of many factors, including high bear densities, heavy recreation use and other land uses in nearby areas.

This is the second management removal of a grizzly bear this year within the demographic monitoring area of Montana's portion of the Greater Yellowstone Ecosystem. The first grizzly bear removed in this area in 2020 was captured and transferred to the Grizzly and Wolf Discovery Center in West Yellowstone after gaining access to food at campgrounds in the Rainbow Point area.

Grizzly bears in the lower 48 states are currently listed as threatened under the Endangered Species Act. Management authority for grizzlies rests with the U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service, working closely in Montana with FWP, Wildlife Services, the U.S. Forest Service and Tribal lands. This collaboration happens through the Interagency Grizzly Bear Committee.

Several grizzly bear recovery areas exist in or near Montana, including the Selkirk, Cabinet-Yaak, Northern Continental Divide, Bitterroot and Greater Yellowstone ecosystems.

Grizzly bear populations continue to become denser and more widespread in Montana, increasing the likelihood that residents and recreationists will encounter them in new places each year. Being prepared for such encounters is more important than ever, both to keep people and property safe and to cultivate healthy bear behavior.

For more information on avoiding negative encounters with bears, visit igbconline.org/bear-safety.

Southwest Montana Veteran's Home Update #60

By Mike Lawson

Greetings once again to you the Veterans/Communities/Counties of SW MT who are the chief organizers and supporters of the SW MT Veterans Home.

I have to say that I'm excited in watching the tempo of all that's being done, both inside the Cottages/Buildings and what's happening on the site outside. It is with a bit of sadness to report that two of the young apprentices on this SW MT Vet Home Construction Crew have tested positive for Covid-19 and are quarantined for 14 days. Being careful and following the Health Guidelines is imperative, especially in seeing our local Covid-19 numbers increasing daily. Moving on to the building of our Vet Home, I again can't thank Site Superintendent Mike Ascherman and Carpenter General Foreman John Kotka enough for their great briefings. It's also always a great finishing touch going with Liaison Mark Gollinger for our weekly walk-through on Friday.

Construction Update:

Cottage #1: - Interior: This building continues to be getting more and more finishing touches. As we walked through it, we could see most, if not all, of the painting is complete. The toilet partitions are completely installed and John's guys installed doors on the bathrooms. All the window trim is finished and it is presents a beautiful aspect to the eye, for each room. The HVAC trim-out is in progress. The by-fold doors in the Community Center big room are expected to be installed this week. The other thing coming up in the very near future, is the flooring. This is exciting as this is one of the last finishing pieces to the puzzle in making this building complete.

Cottage #1: - Interior: All the ceilings Metal T-Bar is framed in which enables the HVAC trim-out to continue. The FRD (Plastic Paneling) is being installed in the soil and mechanical rooms. John said the interior doors should all be installed this week and that the window trimming should get started.

Exterior; The cement guys poured and finished the Entry, Back Patio and Chiller Pad. We also saw that the Air Conditioning Unit was set on the Chiller Pad. Siders have some Roof Eave metal covering left to install.

Cottage #2: - Interior; The exterior doors were all installed
The Fire Sprinkler Hydro Test was passed. The suspended ceilings in the bedrooms are done. We visited with the Duct and Pipe Insulators who were doing the extensive insulation work required for all of the piping and ductwork. The Plumbers and Sheetmetal guys continue doing their Mechanical/Plumbing tuning rough-in.

Exterior; Entryway, Back Patio and Chiller Pad had the concrete poured and finished. The Air Conditioning Unit was set on the Chiller Pad. The Siding is getting close to being done.

Cottage #3: Interior; Some sheet rock hanging was going on but most of it is hung. Exterior: The Siders started the exterior trim. The cement guys poured the back patio and are expected to pour the Entryway this week.

Cottage #4: -Interior; The Sheet-Rockers were hard at it with their lively music going full-bore.

Cottage #5: Interior; This is a busy place for the Plumbers, Electricians and Sheetmetal guys, who are doing their continued rough-ins. Exterior; The soffit framing is complete and the roofer can now finish the roofing with the long awaited "Style D Flashing" finally getting here.

Maintenance Building: - Interior; This building is completely framed/dried in. The North side of roof is shingled and will see the complete roof shingled this week. All the interior and exterior door frames are installed.

Exterior; The 3M Vapor Barrier sheathing is complete with the foam Blue Board close to being done.

Elk Horn Electric: These Electricians have been busy standing the outside light poles and pulling wire to them.

Zemljak Excavating: Mike Zemljak his guys running hard. This is a guy who owns and operates his company, working from the seat of his excavator or back-hoe. He is an excellent operator and knows what he's doing. They installed the sewer line to the Maintenance Building. They're also continuing to work on the Retainer Walls, which are impressive.

In other happenings, we'll have had the Southwest Montana Veteran Home Foundation monthly meeting on August 3rd. At that meeting some of the "Eduro" Operating Contractor Reps., for our SW MT Veteran's Home, will be introduced.

In wrapping things up, it's easy to see that it now being August and that two of the Buildings, the Community Center/Cottage #1, are scheduled to be turned over to the state in September, that the reality of this project being completed by the Grand Opening on the November 10th is knocking at the door. This 2020 Veteran's Day Opening has seen the Veterans of SW MT work/anticipate this for over a decade. Markovich Construction and their sub-contractors are using safety standards and may need to use more in keeping their guys healthy. Let's all live, function and work safe and keep this terrible virus at bay.
