Jesse Goins Dead: 'Gold Rush' Star Died While Filming

Jesse Goins, best known for his appearance on Gold Rush: Dave Turin's Lost Mine, died on Tuesday night while he was on set filming the Discovery Channel show. Goins was 60 years old.

TMZ was first to break the news, reporting that Goins suffered a possible heart attack in the gold room where he works while filming. He was reportedly found unconscious in the room by a member of the crew, and on-set medics attempted to revive him, before EMTs arrived to transport him to a hospital. His cause of death was not confirmed at the time of publication, but Deadline reports he was pronounced dead at the hospital.

Goins' brother Larry confirmed the sad news, writing on Facebook, "Heaven will never be the same!! My brother Jesse went home to be with his Father, Lord and Savior. He will be missed dearly. Love you brother." Larry's Facebook post was quickly filled with comments from friends and fans offering their sympathies and sharing fond memories of Goins. One user wrote, "It is sad day indeed when I think of Jess the boy with a joke and smile alway[s] excited you couldn't help liking him and to know him was to love him so sorry he left us to soon love and hugs to all of you."

Heavy reached out to Larry to offer their condolences and request further comment in tribute to Goins. Goins is survived by his wife.

Goins' Brother Said He Was in 'Such a Good Place' Because of 'Gold Rush'

Goins joined the cast of Gold Rush: Dave Turin's Lost City last year, appearing in 15 episodes. Goins was a gold miner and gold room operator. He also appeared in two episodes of The Dirt, the Gold Rush after-show.

In a second Facebook post, Larry Goins shared a photo of his brother alongside his Gold Rush cast and co-workers. With the photo, he wrote, "Jesse loved his Gold Rush family. I could never find the words to express how grateful to Dave Turin and the guys for the love they showed him. And for sharing and making sure the Lord and the Gospel was a big part of his daily life. He was in such a good place because of this. Love you guys."

While Goins did not post publicly on his Facebook page often, it was clear from the photos and messages he did choose to share that his Gold Rush castmates were very important to him. In February 2019, he made a cast photo his profile picture, writing "looks like I just added a new family can't wait to get back to mineing" in the caption.

While that production is underway in Alaska, TMZ reports that Jesse was filming in Colorado when he passed.

Barrett Hospital & HealthCare Earns Five-Star Patient Experience Rating from the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services (CMS)

Barrett Hospital & HealthCare announced it earned a Five-Star Patient Experience Rating from the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services (CMS) which will be published on the Hospital Compare website in October 2020.

The federal administrator of the nation's major healthcare programs assigned a patient experience star rating to 3,478 hospitals in the nation based on the Hospital Consumer Assessment of Healthcare Providers and Systems scores collected from Jan. 1 through Dec. 31, 2019. From the scores collected, 266 hospitals earned a five-star rating from CMS, with Barrett Hospital & HealthCare being one of them. This is important because a positive patient experience is related to better health outcomes (including lower readmission rates).

"This recognition and continued feedback from our patients reinforce our main goal of providing excellent healthcare value to our community," said Ken Westman, CEO of Barrett Hospital & HealthCare. "The entire Barrett team provides skilled, compassionate, personalized care, and it shows on every level – in the good health outcomes for our patients, and the tremendously positive feedback we receive from patients, families and the community."

Apply now for FWP's Apprentice Hunter Program

It's never too early to plan ahead for Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks Apprentice Hunter Program. FWP encourages early mail-in certification for eligible Apprentice Hunters in order to avoid crowds and frustration prior to season openers and the youth hunt. COVID-19 safety protocols are in place at FWP offices and lobby occupancy is very limited, therefore wait times outside may be long.

The "Apprentice Hunter" law allows anyone 10 years of age or older to hunt two license years without completing hunter education. An apprentice hunter may not obtain a big horn sheep, black bear, mountain lion, or wolf license.

Can masks and face coverings reduce wildfire smoke exposure?

- Although N95 respirators provide protection from wildfire smoke, they might be in short supply as frontline healthcare workers use them during the pandemic.
- Cloth face coverings that are used to slow the spread of COVID-19 offer little protection against harmful air pollutants in wildfire smoke because these coverings do not capture most small particles in smoke.
- Members of the Greenwood CCC Badger Creek Camp Crew pose for a photo during the Ferguson Fire. (Forest Service photo by Kari Green)

What else can I do to stay healthy if it gets smoky this wildfire season?

Get prepared for the wildfire smoke season as you would do in any other summer.

- Give yourself more time than usual to prepare for wildfire events. Home delivery is the safest choice for buying disaster supplies; however, that may not be an option for everyone. If in-person shopping is your only choice, take steps to protect your and others' health when running essential errands.
- Talk to your healthcare provider. Plan how you will protect yourself against wildfire smoke.
- Stock up on medicine. Store a 7 to 10-day supply of prescription medicines in a waterproof, childproof container to take with you if you evacuate.
- In anticipation of a potential evacuation, consider developing a family disaster plan.

The Nation's Largest Food Drive Re-emerges This Week in Novel Fashion

As summer approaches, local food banks and church shelves normally would be well-stocked, benefiting from the 70 million-plus pounds of food recently received from the Letter Carriers' annual Stamp Out Hunger Food Drive, held in May for the past 27 years.

The food drive's timing is key, because winter holiday donations have dwindled from food pantries and home less shelters, and school meal-programs are not available in summer. The coronavirus pandemic, however, forced the postponement of the scheduled May 9 drive for safety reasons—even as the pandemic-related economic shutdown has worsened food insecurity.

To deal with this urgent situation, the National Association of Letter Carriers (NALC) has developed a new plan to address the problem of hunger that affects one in eight Americans, including millions of children, elderly and military veterans.

Starting this week, millions of generous Americans who normally leave food by their mailbox on the second Saturday in May for letter carriers to collect, as well as the legions of community volunteers who help sort and transport the food, can accomplish the same thing via different means.

Using the experience, contacts, presence in every zip code in the country and universal network that have made the Stamp Out Hunger Food Drive the country's largest single-day food collection, the NALC reached out to our numerous regional/state food coordinators, who in turn contacted our 1,900 branches in every corner of the country about finding a new approach for the times. The branches then spoke with food banks and pantries in their communities, and we identified ones those that are willing and able to take part in this effort.

The result: A novel donor drive approach to fit the current circumstances. Americans in big cities and suburbs, in small towns and rural areas, can go to a website set up just for this, select a food bank close to them, and donate funds to help the pantry purchase food. This has been set up in a manner that allows every dollar raised to go directly to purchasing food for the hungry.

As always, the food procured will stay in the community to help residents in need. And again, our wonderful national partners-the U.S. Postal Service, United Way Worldwide, United Food and Commercial Workers International Union (UFCW), Kellogg Co., National Rural Letter Carriers' Association, CVS Health, Valpak, AFL-CIO and Valassis-will be vital to its success.

This isn't our normal food drive, of course, but these aren't normal times. As letter carriers in every neighborhood in the country six and seven days a week, we see the needs and we cannot wait while food banks struggle, demand grows and people remain hungry. Once it is safe, we will return to the traditional food drive.

For the meantime, there may be a silver lining to this approach born of necessity. Rather than a one-day event, this effort will continue as needed. And, food banks can purchase more food than a resident could buy and donate with the same resources.

To be sure, this approach is different than before. But for individuals and families across the United States able to have-a meal because of the generosity of others, the nourishment-and gratitude-will be exactly the same as before.
