BLM's Carbella Recreation Site temporarily closed for renovation

When visitors return to the Bureau of Land Management's Carbella Recreation Site at the start of next summer season, they will find a freshly-upgraded site where they can pitch a tent or launch a boat along the Yellowstone River.

In the meantime, the fishing access site 20 miles north of Yellowstone National Park will be closed for day use, camping and boat launching from Sept. 8 to Nov. 18 as crews begin the major renovation project which will put a hard surface of aggregate material on the site's road, parking areas and camp pads.

"The purpose of the renovation is to protect and enhance native vegetation and minimize weed infestation, reduce the risk of negative grizzly bear encounters, and improve the overall recreational experience at Carbella by creating well-defined driving, camping, and parking surfaces and installing bear-proof storage boxes at campsites," said Lindsey Babcock, Acting Butte Field Manager.

The heavy civil construction project will include hauling material to the campground along U.S. Highway 89, so nearby areas may experience increased noise due to heavy equipment.

For more information, call the Butte Field Office at (406) 533-7600.

Forest Service Urges Fire Prevention throughout Labor Day Holiday

Fire officials from the Beaverhead-Deerlodge National Forest urge visitors to help prevent wildfires. This year the Forest has had 23 human caused fires and most, if not all have been abandoned camp fires. Additionally there were two human caused fires on nearby BLM lands. Currently Fire Danger in all areas of the Forest are rated "Very High."

The wildland fire community of southwestern Montana noted that the Labor Day holiday brings many visitors onto public lands. Forest Service officials ask that all forest visitors be considerate and practice fire prevention: Know before you go on that camping trip; Fire restrictions may be in place; Target shooting and use of power equipment can spark a wildfire; If you do have a campfire, keep it small, never leave it unattended, and put it out completely before you leave; and finally, remember that fireworks and exploding targets are not allowed on national forest system lands, so leave them home.

Be sure to have maps with you to ensure you are on public land. Our Motor Vehicle Use Maps are a free resource that can help. They are available at district offices or online or through the AVENZA app. Learn more about maps at <https://www.fs.usda.gov/main/bdnf/maps-pubs>. Forest Visitor Maps are available online for a fee through the USGS Store and free electronically through the Avenza Maps mobile app.

For additional information, visit us online at <https://www.fs.usda.gov/home>, on Twitter @BvrhdDrldgeNF or on Facebook <https://www.facebook.com/usfsbnf>.

RMEF Bolsters Movement to Defeat Proposition 114

The Rocky Mountain Elk Foundation furthered its financial commitment to defeat a Colorado ballot proposal (formally known as Initiative 107) driven by environmentalists ignoring what is going on around them.

"We have said this from the beginning and nothing has changed. Using the ballot box to circumvent professional wildlife managers and create wildlife management policy is reckless. On top of that, now more than ever, it's fiscally irresponsible," said Kyle Weaver, RMEF president and CEO. "Proponents continue to push for millions in new public spending for a forced and totally unnecessary wolf introduction even though wolves are already confirmed on the ground and taxpayer money to fund it simply is not available."

The Colorado legislature recently made a series of drastic spending cuts to deal with a $3 billion budget shortfall triggered by the coronavirus. Those cuts included $448 million from K-12 education and $493 million from higher education. It also made other significant cuts and cancelled four planned tax breaks even as legislators say the outlook for the state's 2021 budget looks bleak.

"Dollars aside, a lot of people don't realize the impact this measure would have on wildlife. Of the state's 64 statewide elk and deer units that are already under population objective, 54 of those are west of the Continental Divide, ground zero for the proposed wolf introduction. Colorado's outdoor industry would absolutely see a significant negative financial impact. It currently generates $1.85 billion annually," added Weaver.

With 29 chapters and nearly 17,000 members, RMEF has a strong, active presence in Colorado. In 2019 alone, RMEF and its partners granted $2.57 million in funding to enhance wildlife habitat and research.

Since 1987, RMEF and its partners completed 790 conservation and hunting heritage outreach projects in the state with a combined value of more than $178.2 million. These projects protected or enhanced 469,886 acres of habitat for elk and a wide array of other wildlife species, and opened or improved public access to 122,107 acres.

New Zealand mudsnails found at FWP fish hatchery

New Zealand mudsnails were detected at Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks' Bluewater Fish Hatchery on Tuesday, Aug. 18. This is the first time FWP has detected mudsnails in a state fish hatchery.

The Bluewater Fish Hatchery, located near Bridger in southcentral Montana, is a trout hatchery and is the third largest production facility in the state. Its primary purpose is stocking sport fish into urban ponds, reservoirs and other public waters.

New Zealand mudsnails are an aquatic invasive species. It was first discovered in Montana in 1995 in the Madison River above Hebgen Lake Reservoir. Since then, New Zealand mudsnails have been detected in several major river drainages across the State.

All hatcheries in Montana are inspected annually for AIS and fish pathogens. The mudsnails at Bluewater Fish Hatchery were detected during the hatchery's annual inspection.

Because of the detection, no fish will leave or be received at the Bluewater hatchery until further analysis and an investigation is complete. FWP staff are working on a containment and mitigation strategy. Testing results will be available next week to help determine the full extent of the infestation.

FWP will be looking at where the hatchery's fish have been stocked this year and investigate whether the stocking has spread New Zealand mudsnails to any state waters.

The closest New Zealand mudsnail infestation to the hatchery is Bluewater Creek, which the hatchery drains into.
