Lee Gordon Richardson, 76

Lee Gordon Richardson, 76, passed away September 3 at Billings Clinic. Lee was the second of 7 children born to Gordon and Barbara Richardson. He spent his first 18 years on the family farm at Antelope, Montana. He played baseball and basketball, worked in the fields, and grew up doing farm chores. Lee graduated from Antelope High School, attended Glendive Community College on a basketball scholarship, and graduated from Western Montana College in Dillon with a teaching degree in Industrial Arts and PE. In Dillon he met and married Holliday (Holli) Johnson.

Lee taught Industrial Arts and PE at Utterback Middle School in Conrad, MT for 31 years. He coached wrestling, basketball, volleyball and track, managed the concession stand for athletic events, supervised the student council and ran the annual magazines sales. He and Holli coached three Odyssey of the Mind Teams to World Finals in Denver, Colorado; Ames, Iowa and Knoxville, Tennessee. Lee believed that young people should learn practical skills and have something tangible to show for their efforts. By eighth grade his shop students had the skills to build very advanced projects including cedar chests, picnic tables, entertainment centers, and other large items in addition to smaller decorative items like mirrors, turned candle holders, breadboards, home address signs and toys. They learned to wire lamps and recycle materials into art and practical objects. Lee and Holli taught across the hall from each other, giving their students the benefit of art and shop skills and equipment and the expertise of both teachers. In PE class, his students learned to dance, which many still enjoy today.

Lee and Holli taught adult education classes. A favorite in the community was upholstery and refinishing.

Upon retiring from public education, Lee and Holli moved to Whitehall and Lee taught Industrial Arts and was facilities manager at Riverside Correctional Facility for Girls in Boulder before becoming the Facilities Manager at U of M Western at Dillon. He managed the retrofit of Main Hall after it was heavily damaged by an earthquake and installation of the chip burning heating system.

Lee usually worked two and sometimes three jobs. He started driving Semi while in college for Bob Spoklie of Antelope and later drove for Dick Irvin Trucking in Shelby week-ends and summers for over 25 years. He drove buses on athletic trips. He obtained a pilot's license and flew in his younger days. He spent a number of summers working for Ron Prewett Construction operating a trencher, backhoe, and other big equipment. He farmed for Ray Bouma and finished concrete for Sanders Brothers. He sold fifth wheel trailers manufactured by his father-in-law, Everett Johnson. Lee was adept with machines, construction and woodworking. He loved railroads, restored a small railroad service car (Speeder), and purchased a second. He and Holli went on Speeder excursions in Montana, Idaho, Washington, and Oregon.

Above all, Lee loved his family. He and Holli have four children, who graduated from Conrad High School: David of Whitehall, Cory (Alyce) of Shepherd, Brett (Kara) of Butte, and Erin (Chris) Mustoe of Bozeman. His grandchildren were truly the light of his life: Patrick, Aaron and Avery Richardson; Case, Holland and Harris Richardson; and Sage, Kye and Teag Mustoe. He was a gifted listener, a quiet man who had a number of lifetime friends.

When Lee retired from his Dillon job, he and Holli spent winters in Florence, AZ. Lee drove truck in the summer until he was diagnosed with Stage 4 lung cancer in the fall of 2018. Lee was tough and optimistic. Against incredible odds, he achieved remission for the last 9 months but sadly, succumbed to an infection that became septic.

Lee was preceded in death by his parents, sister Judy, brother-in-law Jim, grandson McCormick and niece Tasha Johnson.

He is survived by his wife of 51 years; children and grandchildren; sisters Gale Richardson and brother Neal (Balaly) of Plentywood; sisters Beth (Roger) Rettke of La Port, Minnesota; Joyce (Terry) Meagher of Roseburg, Oregon; Robin Richardson of Helena and a large extended family.

To honor Lee, listen more than talk, give freely of your time and skills, and cherish your family and friends. Because of COVID, a memorial celebration will be held at a later time.

The Bureau of Land Management completes Upper Belmont acquisition with another 1,120 acres

Acquisition protects and expands access for world class hunting, fishing and outdoor recreation

The Bureau of Land Management's acquisition of 1,120 acres in the Lower Blackfoot River drainage secures permanent public access to the land. Using $868,000 from the Land and Water Conservation Fund, the transaction finalizes a series of recent acquisitions which help stitch together what had been a patchwork of interspersed public and private land.

"Expanding access to our public lands is an upmost priority of the Trump Administration and the Bureau of Land Management," said BLM Deputy Director for Policy and Programs William Perry Pendley. "In addition to increased recreational access, this acquisition will allow the BLM to prevent catastrophic wildfires within this important watershed by actively improving the health of the forest."

This acquisition is within the Upper Belmont Creek landscape, 25 miles northeast of Missoula and follows a similar transaction of 4,480 acres in June. Last November, another acquisition also added 7,268 acres of new public land in the Blackfoot drainage.

The acquisitions by the Missoula Field Office are aimed at securing access in the Blackfoot River Watershed on former industrial timber land. The goal is to maintain working lands including active forestry and fire-management projects that would reduce the threat of catastrophic wildfires and improve the health of the forest, consistent with the goals of Executive Order 13855 and Secretary's Order 3372. The area also offers high-quality hunting and fishing access and other close-to-home recreation opportunities in Missoula's backyard including cross-country skiing, snowmobiling, hiking, mountain biking, and more.

"Public access to recreation is critical to the social and economic well-being of our community, and we're certainly seeing an unprecedented number of visitors to public lands this summer," said Acting Missoula Field Manager Wendy Warren. "We appreciate partnerships which facilitate opportunities like this acquisition in the Belmont where the public can enjoy the great outdoors."

The Missoula Field Office sees about 222,000 recreation visits to its lands annually; the expenditures of local and non-local visitors would support approximately 78 jobs and $2.3 million in labor income each year.

The Belmont acquisition aligns with Secretary's Order 3356, which directs the BLM and other Department of the Interior Bureaus to identify ways to expand access for hunting, fishing, and outdoor recreation on agency-managed lands.

2 grizzly bears euthanized after conflicts in West Yellowstone

Two grizzly bears have been euthanized after multiple conflicts in campsites and at residences near West Yellowstone.

Conflicts with the two subadult grizzlies — a male and a female — began in 2019. Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks staff worked to haze the bears then, and at the time, the efforts to move them away from residential areas was thought to be successful.

Reports of problems with these bears started again on Aug. 5, and by the time the bears were last captured on Sept. 1, there were 15 reports of two bears being in campgrounds at night, inside porches and on steps, where they were able to access garbage and dog food.

FWP bear specialists set cameras and noise alarms at two sites where the bears gained access to garbage. When those hazing efforts were unsuccessful, the specialists set traps for the bears on Aug. 15, and both were captured a day later. FWP, the U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service (USFWS) and the U.S. Forest Service agreed to relocate and release the bears due to their young age and because this was their first time being captured. Both bears were fitted with ear tags and satellite collars.

The bears then returned to the area where the conflicts had occurred previously, and on Aug. 25, the problems resumed, including the bears getting into an occupied tent, as well as a storage compartment on an RV.

FWP captured both bears again on Sept. 1.

Due to the chronic conflicts and concerns for human safety, the bear were euthanized in consultation with the USFWS.

"When garbage and other attractants are left unsecured and available to bears, human safety becomes a huge concern, and bear mortalities are the unfortunate result. This is why we ask people to be so careful with food, garbage, and similar items. It really requires just a little effort," said Mark Deleray, FWP's regional supervisor in southwest Montana.

Grizzly bears in the lower-48 states are currently listed as threatened under the Endangered Species Act. Management authority for grizzlies rests with the USFWS, working closely with FWP, Wildlife Services, the Forest Service and Tribal governments. This collaboration happens through the Interagency Grizzly Bear Committee (IGBC).

Several grizzly bear recovery areas exist in or near Montana, including the Selkirk, Cabinet-Yaak, Northern Continental Divide, Bitterroot and Greater Yellowstone ecosystems.

Grizzly bear populations are becoming denser and more widespread in Montana, increasing the likelihood that residents and recreationists will encounter them in new places each year. Being prepared for such encounters and keeping attractants secured is more important than ever, both to keep people and property safe and to cultivate healthy bear behavior.

Forest Service food storage orders require all unattended food, garbage and attractants to be stored in at least one of the following ways:

- In hard-sided vehicles.
- In locked IGBC-approved bear-resistant products, which include certain electric fencing.
- Hung at least 10 feet above the ground and 4 feet away from a tree or pole, out of the reach of wildlife.

In addition to following food storage orders, hunters and other recreationists should take further precautions when in bear country:

- Be aware of your surroundings and look for bear sign.
- Carry and know how to use bear spray.
- Travel in groups and make noise whenever possible to avoid surprising a bear.
- Stay away from animal carcasses.
- Anyone moving quickly (i.e. mountain bikers, trail runners) is at a higher risk of surprising a bear.
- Where possible, avoid traveling at night, dawn or dusk.
- If you encounter a bear, never run away.

For more information on avoiding negative encounters with bears, visit igbconline.org/bear-safety.
