Directors, Jim served in several capacities. In May 2018 Jim received the NWPPA President's Award for his dedication and service to Vigilante Electric.

Guns, cars, snowmobiling, skiing, camping (in later life), and fine dining were some of his interests. He liked to drive around to check out the fields and Dillon developments. Highlights in his life were trips to Hawaii, especially those with all of his family.

Jim and his wife Janie were married in June 1967, and immediately joined the family operation, which grew and emerged as Grandview Ranch. They worked to prosper and become a respected farm/ranch business.

Jim was preceded in death by his mother and father (May and Elmer), a brother Bill, mother-in-law (Beth) and father-in-law (Glenn), brother-in-law Jim, and some close friends. He is survived by his wife (Janie), son Tod (Bozeman) and his wife Amber—their three children Kade, Kelli, Ashley; son Jed (Dillon) and wife Amy—four children Kyndall, Lauryn, Sydney, Jed, Jr. son Troy (Creswell, Oregon) and his wife Elizabeth—three children Jake, Kate, Luke.

Special thanks to Dr. McIntyre, the staff at Pioneer Care and Rehabilitation, Missy Westman who helped us all so much. Memorial suggestions are for Dillon Home Health Care, Barrett Hospital Foundation, or Grace Methodist Church.

A graveside service for family will be held at Mountain View Cemetery.

FWP maintains adjusted reporting requirements for black bear hunters

Consistent with adjustments made during spring, Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks will continue with the adjusted harvest reporting requirements for the fall black bear hunting season.

The archery-only season started Sept. 5 in most areas. The general fall season starts Sept. 15. All successful black bear hunters are required to report their harvest through the FWP Harvest Reporting Line 1-877-FWP-WILD (1-877-397-9453) within 48 hours of harvest. Unlike in years past, FWP will not require a mandatory carcass inspection, hide seal or tooth collection.

In place of mandatory tooth collection, FWP will be initiating a voluntary tooth collection process whereby a hunter may extract and submit a tooth to FWP to determine the age of the harvested black bear. FWP biologists use this age information, along with the sex of the bear, to manage bear populations in Montana. A submission form is available at fwp.mt.gov/hunting.

All reporting and inspection requirements remain in place for wolves, mountain lions, bighorn sheep, mountain goats, bobcats, and otter, as described in the printed 2020 hunting regulations for those species. For information about specific times and locations for tagging animals, contact regional FWP offices. The archery-only seasons for wolves, mountain lions, and bighorn sheep opened Sept. 5 in most areas.

FWP seeks information on Ackley Lake vandalism

Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks is seeking the public's help for information on vandalism at the Ackley Lake Fishing Access Site at the lake south of Hobson.

On the afternoon of Sunday, Sept. 6, FWP Game Warden Tylor Keeley received a TIP-MONT report of damage to a latrine at the site. He visited the lake and reported that latrine was damaged by breaking off the toilet seat and peeling a large area of paint from inside the roof. The damage occurred sometime between 3:30 and 5:30 p.m.

"It's a pretty senseless thing to damage a latrine like this, and it means that anglers' license dollars now must be spent repairing the damage to this fishing access site instead of upkeep and improvements for the people who use this area with their families," said Keeley.

Other incidents of vandalism have occurred over the summer at different fishing access sites and also at Giant Springs State Park in Great Falls.

Anyone with information on the vandalism is asked to call 1-800-TIPMONT or contact Game Warden Tylor Keeley at 406-590-0507. Tips are kept confidential and a reward is possible.

The University of Montana Western cross-country team looks to continue last season's success.

The Bulldog cross country team is hoping to build off of last season and is looking for even greater things heading into 2020.

A year ago, the Bulldog women's team qualified the NAIA national championship meet for the first time in program history. While the men, who ran with just three runners for a majority of the season, saw all three for qualify for the national meet.

"We return eight kids who ran at the national meet last year, including an All-American," head coach Dylan Zitzer said. "The amount of experience we have on this team is light years ahead of what we've ever had."

"Having that much leadership makes things really easy, even with all the adjustments we have to make with COVID," Zitzer continued. "There is a really clear understanding of what needs to get done to be really competitive and do well in our conference."

Even though the Bulldogs had to wait most of the summer to learn if they would have a fall season, they didn't let the uncertainty bother them or mess up their routine.

"This year came with a lot of uncertainty, which was difficult at first, but as it unfolded and we found out we get to have a season," senior Marley May said. "I think it's exciting and we have something to work towards. Everybody is ready to go and working hard."

In addition to the core returners, Zitzer has added a lot of young talent with six freshman and two transfers joining the squad that he expects them will have an immediate impact.

"In some respects, I couldn't be more optimistic," Zitzer said. "We grew a lot as a group last year, I think we have added to that growth and we have a young talented team."

"Our day-to-day has been really good and that's always indicative of good things to come," Zitzer said. "I'm looking for pretty positive results this season."

After this weekend's meet in Havre, Mont., the Bulldogs will be off for a week before racing in Helena, Mont. on Sept. 24.

The University of Montana Western Rodeo team is finally back in the saddle for the 2020-21 season.

To say the Bulldog rodeo team is chomping at the bit for the 2020-21 rodeo season to start would be an understatement. After a strong fall season a year ago, freshman Ryland Lufkin was leading the race for the women's all-around, Brody Smith and Brett Bartholomew were in the top-three in team roping and both men's and women's teams were within striking distance of the CNFR.

By early March the Bulldogs were ready to make a strong push in the spring portion of the Big Sky Region schedule. As the COVID-19 outbreak shut down one athletic event after another, the spring season disappeared and the Bulldogs had to wait out a long and uncertain summer.

With the fall season approved, the eagerness to get back into the arena is apparent, but even with the longer than normal break the Bulldogs are ready to hit the ground running.

"Everyone is handling it the best they can," head coach Kody Lahaye said. "It's not normal for anyone, everyone has been very appreciative that they even get to go this year. Everyone is following the rules and trying to do the best we can so we can actually have a fall season."

"We should be really thankful that we actually get to rodeo this year," senior Emmy Ilgen said.

The 2020-21 rodeo season kicks-off this weekend with two competitions in Cody, Wyo. The double rodeo means a lot of points are up for grabs early on.

"We hope to get a fast start to the season so we don't have to play catch-up later in the year," Lahaye said. "MSU always has a good team and we don't want to fall to far behind. We've got a strong team with a lot of talent, and I think we can give them a good run this year."

This year's team will be built on young talent with 21 freshman and 10 sophomores, and just 13 upperclassmen, Lahaye knows he'll be relying on rookies to carry a bulk of the weight.

As with every season, the team goal is to make it to Casper, Wyo. for the College National Finals, but the Bulldogs are also focusing on their individual successes as well.

After this weekend's competitions at Northwest College, the Bulldogs will return home to host a rodeo at the Beaverhead County Fairgrounds on Sept. 18-19.

Reclamation plans to replace the Barrett's Pedestrian Bridge for safety reasons

The Bureau of Reclamation will replace the aging suspension bridge located at Barrett's Diversion Dam, 8 miles south of Dillon, Montana in the fall of 2020.

Reclamation inspectors identified wood decay causing structural integrity problems during a recent bridge inspection. These findings led to the development of corrective actions and replacement of the bridge was determined to be the safest and most cost-effective option for continued long-term use.

"Public safety at our recreation facilities is very important to Reclamation," said Reclamation's Montana Area Manager Steve Davies. "Replacing the pedestrian bridge was the right choice for the public to continue to enjoy Barrett's Park in a safe manner."

The pedestrian bridge was built in the late 1970s by the Youth Conservation Corps under the direction of Reclamation. The bridge allows pedestrians to cross the Beaverhead River and increases access to additional recreation areas on the east side of the river. The bridge will be replaced in its entirety with a free span steel pedestrian bridge. Funding for the project is being cost shared by Reclamation and grant funding from the Federal Highway Administration under their Federal Lands Transportation Program.

Construction is planned to begin at the end of September and is expected to be completed in December or early spring 2021, depending on weather conditions. For safety reasons, access to the area will be limited during the construction process.
