UMW Professor Publishes Research on Snowpack Reconstruction for the Northern Rockies

Dr. Spruce W. Schoenemann from the University of Montana Western's Environmental Sciences Department recently published his work in the journal of Quaternary Science Advances for research on snowpack in the northern Rocky Mountains.

The research paper titled "2200-Year tree-ring and lake-sediment based snowpack reconstruction for the northern Rocky Mountains highlights the historic magnitude of recent snow drought" is a peer-reviewed article authored by Schoenemann with assistance from Justin T. Martin and Gregory T. Pederson of the Northern Rocky Mountain Science Center in Bozeman, and David B. McWethy from the Earth Sciences Department at Montana State University.

The publication details Schoenemann's work to extend records of April 1 Snow Water Equivalence (the amount of water contained within the snowpack) for the northern Rocky Mountains to evaluate the magnitude of recent snow drought over the last few decades.

To further tree-ring based reconstructions, Schoenemann used carbonate isotope lake sediment records from Foy Lake, Mont. to create a 2200-year preliminary reconstruction of the northern Rockies snowpack, providing important long-term context and understanding of drivers of snowpack variability over the Common Era (C.E.).

In an interview with Schoenemann, he explained that researchers had used snowpack sensitive tree-ring species throughout the northern Rockies to research snowpack in the past. When these trees, like the Douglas Fir, for example, experience a harsh long winter and get a later start to the growing season, it can be seen by a smaller ring width. On the contrary, ring widths will typically be larger during a mild winter and more extended growing season.

The tree-ring reconstruction used in Schoenemann's research was originally completed by Greg Pederson and published in Pederson's 2011 Science paper. The paper reconstructed snowpack, as Snow Water Equivalent (SWE), by taking tree ring records that are annually dated, and comparing them to the modern observations from the SNOTEL sites around the northern Rockies and noting the correlation. SNOTEL sites are automated stations that measure snow water content.

As explained in the article, "long-term records of snowpack prior to the installation of snowpack observation stations in the early and mid 20th century are limited." The earliest data on these snow observations began around the 1930s, but tree ring reconstruction can go back 800 years to around 1200 C.E.

Schoenemann then started looking at lake sediment records that should be sensitive to snowpack. The idea was to look at high alpine lakes or lakes that are in a snowpack dominated environment. When the snow melts and flows into the lake system as water or H₂O, it's possible to look at the oxygen, which has two isotopes, 16O and 18O. The water that comes from snowmelt and travels into the lake changes the lake-water's isotopic content for that year. If it's a winter with a lot of snow, the new water volume brings a new isotopic signal to the lake.

During the summer, the calcium carbonate (CaCO₃) incorporates the same oxygen isotopes from the water. That carbonate then precipitates out into the lake as a calcium carbonate sediment. When Schoenemann then measures the lake sediments' isotopic content, that same signal from the water gets imparted to the lake, which then gets imparted to the sediment.

The sediment records then can go back thousands of years (in this case 2,200 years), and that's when Schoenemann can take the tree-ring chronologies and overlap them with the lake records and note the correlation.

"The reason this approach is groundbreaking and novel is that we now have 800 years where we can statistically calibrate the two records. Normally, researchers take a lake record, and they look at the last 100 years, which may only give them 10 data points of overlap. Then they try to take those 10 data points and line them up with 100 years of historical data. Statistically, you can't get a good correlation. The 2200-year reconstruction of Northern Rocky Mountains Snow Water Equivalent (NRM-SWE) based on Foy Lake sediment.

with that limited set of data," Schoenemann said.

This addition of 1400 years of snowpack reconstruction highlights the severity of snow drought over recent decades. The publication states that "the most recent decades of the record are as dry as any in the last 2,200 years."

"The tree-ring records are the critical link to identify the long-term climate sensitivity of the lake system, which can be calibrated over the common period of overlap (~800 years in this case), producing a more robust assessment than current approaches. Additionally, the sediment core ages, which are typically interpolated between radiocarbon ages, can be adjusted to more closely match the absolutely dated tree-rings. The extended snowpack reconstruction is important, as it provides us with a long-term view of how northern Rocky Mountain snowpack has varied in the past, and how low the past century SWE has been in comparison to the long-term average. This has serious implications for water resources as snowpacks are projected to further decline in a warming world," Schoenemann said.

A family project! Love In a shoebox!

This is part of a national effort to help children across the country and around the world. Everyone can help!

If you would like to support this project, this is what it involves:

- 1) Put together a shoe box to send to a child, or
- 2) Make a Donation – every donation helps. Shipping costs $9 per box. You can make checks payable to Samaritan's Purse/Shoe box and drop off at Mary Bearden's house.

If you would like to be part of this amazing program and have questions or would like more information, contact Mary Bearden (925-2218 or 683-2037). It would be great to have boxes sooner, but the last day to drop off will be November 16th, 2020. Last minute drop off ok.

Shoebox details: NOTHING liquid, No food, No Candy, NO chocolate, No toothpaste, No war toys or guns, No breakable items. Simple rules, but please read....

1. Shoe Box: Use an empty shoebox or a small plastic container. You can wrap the box (lid separately), but wrapping is not required.
2. Choose: Boy or Girl: Determine whether your gift will be for a boy or a girl.

Choose child's age category: 2-4, 5-9, or 10-14.

Mary has extra labels you can use when you drop off your box or you can print out the appropriate boy/girl label by downloading the artwork from Operation Christmas Child website. Tape the label to the top of your box.

3. Fill the box with a variety of gifts that will bring delight to a child. Please include at least one item a child can immediately embrace such as a stuffed toy, doll, ball or toy truck. Other ideas: school supplies, toothbrush, crayons, coloring book, pencil/pencil sharpener, construction paper, comb, bar soap/wash rag, note pad, under garments, socks...depends on the age and gender of the child. There are more ideas on the Operation Christmas Child website. <https://www.samaritanspurse.org/what-we-do/operation-christmas-child/>

4. Please include $9 Donation for each shoebox you prepare to help cover shipping and other project costs.

5. Drop Off: Place a rubber band around the box (Mary has extras if you need one). Let's work together to brighten a child's life!

Thank you!

Frontier Conference Named Five-Star Conference

The National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA) released their 2019-2020 conference and school Champions of Character recipients with the Frontier Conference and five conference schools being recognized.

"The Frontier Conference institutions are led by their presidents, chancellors, athletic directors, coaches and instructors," commissioner Kent Paulson said. "And, are represented in the classroom and on the courts and playing fields by the student athletes, are to be congratulated on once again making the league very proud of who we are and what we stand for, Excellence In Academics And Athletics."

NAIA Conference Champions of Character criteria includes the conference have established a Champions of Character committee, have a conduct in competition committee composed of a minimum of three conference members and have at least 60 percent of member institutions receiving the NAIA Champions of Character Five-Star Institution Award.

Frontier Conference members earning the Five-Star Institution Award include Carroll College and Rocky Mountain College as Gold level members, and Montana Western, MSU-Northern and the University of Providence as Silver level members.

Institutions are measured on a demonstrated commitment to Champions of Character and earned points in character training, conduct in competition, academic focus, character recognition and character promotion. Institutions earned points based on exceptional student-athlete grade point averages and by having minimal to no ejections during competition throughout the course of the academic year.

Our institution's members have exhibited our commitment to being true Champions of Character," Paulson added. "This is demonstrated by our positive conduct while in competition, our character in giving back to our communities and schools and most importantly striving to grow into the best well rounded individual that we can become for the betterment of society as we go forward in life."

Beaverhead County Public Health Releases UMW Associated Case Statistics Online

As part of our collaborative COVID-19 mitigation efforts, the Beaverhead County Public Health Department (BCPHD) is now posting Montana Western associated cases on their website.

BCPHD is the only source of statistical reporting for our county and has the most current and accurate data on cases associated with the UMW community. BCPHD will be posting these statistics for the following indicators on their website (<https://beaverheadcounty.org/departments/public-health/>), every Monday after 4 p.m.:

Total historical cases associated with UMW (Since August 24th)

Current active cases associated with UMW

Total UMW recovered cases

We are extremely thankful for our continued partnership with the BCPHD team. Their hard work and essential data will ensure that our students, staff, and faculty are up to date on the latest developments related to COVID-19.

Big Sky Region Rodeo

The University of Montana Western will be hosting a home Big Sky Region Rodeo this weekend Sept. 18-19

For the safety of our student-athletes, we will be limiting fans to only guests of UMW Rodeo student-athletes and coaches.

The rodeo Friday and Saturday nights will be live-streamed on www.umwbulldogs.com/watch

We understand that this is not an ideal situation. But we are grateful for an opportunity to compete this weekend.

We appreciate the support that we receive from the community. We are doing our best to make it through this difficult year. We know how much everyone enjoys attending the college rodeo. We will make it through this year so can hopefully come back even stronger for the rodeo next fall. Thank you again for all your support and understanding, we could not continue through all this without you.
