The State plans to use Court Action to get Businesses to Enforce Mask Mandate

A mask mandate, which was put in place in July to reduce the spread of COVID-19 by Gov. Steve Bullock is what health officials will use to crack down on businesses that aren't enforcing the mandate.

The Montana Department of Public Health and Human Services asked the court for approval to force four businesses in Flathead County to come into compliance with the mandate. The state is seeking temporary restraining orders against Sykes Diner and Mercantile in Kalispell, Remington Bar and Casino in Whitefish, Your Lucky Turn Tavern in Bigfork and Ferndale Market.

The governor's mask mandate requires mask to be worn in all indoor spaces open to the public in counties that have four or more current cases of COVID-19. It requires businesses to take "reasonable measures" to ensure customers, employees and others follow the mandate.

Bullock announced he is planning legal action against Flathead County businesses on Thursday, saying county commissioners and the Flathead City-County health board responded to the recent spike in cases "by publicly offering support to residents who ignore the governor's directives," the complaint said.

The state is seeking a temporary injunction and a restraining order to prevent the businesses from violating the emergency orders.

Sykes Diner and Ferndale Market — had been referred to County Attorney Travis Ahner, who said he did not take action against the businesses because no specific outbreak had been linked to those businesses.

Other counties are taking actions against businesses that aren't enforcing the mask mandate.

The news out of Missoula County is that several businesses have been ordered to comply with the COIVD-19 safety precautions or close down and it appears they have closed some that haven't enforced the mandate.

Zoning Board Hearing October 13, 2020

By: MJ

Proposed New Zoning Classification District Agriculture Bulk Storage:

There is an unzoned area where the bulk petroleum, grain storage, and old potato cellars are located. The zoning board is looking to create a zone for this area that would be compatible with the entire town of Dillon. A public hearing was held to reach out to citizens for direction and ideas that would enable them to go back to the draft document and begin the evaluation process.

A council person questioned the genesis for the proposal. Other questions asked; what affects will these businesses have on Blacktail Creek, explosions, fumes, dust particles, other long term hazards to the community, can the existing businesses expand, are streets built for truck traffic… Many of the local residents in the surrounding neighborhood stated that the area is sullied and personal property is being devalued. There were a couple comments about planning for the future of Dillon, the need to add or delete language, making sure the document is compatible with other districts and is this "spot zoning?

Another council person read individual letters that appeared to resemble a canned type letter that was redundant and lacking originality or customization. These letters read by council person were all against the Classification District. The majority of the letters read were from the residential property owners in the immediate area. Note: Letters that have been drafted with the same points of view don't give the board a broad spectrum of information.*

Questions: How many of the property owners that wrote letters, have purchased property in the area since the businesses were established? It is good to take care of yourself by looking at your side of the coin however it is not okay to ignore the other side of coin which would be the businesses?

No actual facts, figures, maps or other documentation were included in any of the information presented to the zoning board at the hearing. Note: The board has just taken the first steps in a zoning process. Development requires broad-based planning and community engagement.

It appears money is the driving force for many of the complaints that were presented. Mayor Klakken, all committee and board representatives for the city, must take into consideration the finances, safety and welfare of the entire city. For the city it is never about just one person or a select group of people.

Note: Dillon did have one of those catastrophes. In 1979 an F-106 jet plane, doing a Fly-over, hit a grain elevator at the corner of Helena and Montana street. Plane parts landed at a working gas station, next to bulk gas tanks, on lawns, in yards of occupied homes... A 1,000± people were watching the parade and preparing to enjoy the Labor Day rodeo. The trained local authorities with help of other leaders and citizens managed the catastrophe and kept the crowd under control.

Western Montana BLM seeks nominations for Resource Advisory Council

The Bureau of Land Management's Western Montana District is seeking public nominations for positions on its Resource Advisory Council. RACs are citizen-based councils which assist in the development of recommendations that address public land management issues.

The BLM maintains RACs chartered under the Federal Advisory Committee Act and the Federal Policy and Land Management Act across the West. Each RAC consists of 10 to 15 members from interests in local communities.

The Western Montana BLM RAC currently has 12 vacancies across all three of its categories:

* Category One – Representatives of organizations associated with energy/mineral development; Federal grazing permit holders; the timber industry; transportation or rights-of-way; off-highway vehicles users; and commercial and developed outdoor recreation.
* Category Two – Representatives of archeological and historic organizations; dispersed recreation users; wild horse and burros organizations; and nationally or regionally-recognized environmental organizations.
* Category Three – Representatives of state, county, or local elected office; Indian tribes located within or adjacent to the area for which the RAC is organized; academicians employed in natural resource management or natural sciences; employees of a state agency responsible for management of natural resources; and the public at large.

Individuals may nominate themselves or others to serve on a RAC. Nominees for the Western Montana BLM RAC, who must be Montana residents, will be reviewed based on their training, education, and knowledge of the RAC's geographic area. Nominees should also demonstrate a commitment to consensus building and collaborative decision-making. Letters of reference must accompany all nominations from any represented interests or organizations, a completed RAC application, and any other information that speaks to the nominee's qualifications.

The BLM maintains RACs as a means of gaining expert advice, ideas, and diverse opinions on issues including land use planning, fire management, off-highway vehicle use, recreation, oil and gas exploration, noxious weed management, grazing issues, and wild horse and burro herd management issues. The RACs support the Bureau's commitment to building a shared conservation stewardship legacy in the communities it serves.

As published in a notice in the Federal Register, the BLM will consider nominations for 30 days until November 13, 2020. For more information, please contact David Abrams at dabrams@blm.gov or (406) 533-7617.
