DUCK HUNT

By "Swede" Troedsson

Late one fall, in the 1980's, after the general hunting season, I invited Arlan Kohl, a Forest Service engineering technician, to go duck hunting on a Sunday on the Beaverhead River, Montana. It would be about a four hour float. The temperature was in the teens.

We dropped my canoe off at the Beaverhead Rock launch point, and drove down to our planned takeout at the Gien Lane river crossing, just south of Twin Bridges. We left my Bronco with the canoe rack there and drove back to Beaverhead Rock in Arlan's VW bug.

When we returned to the Beaverhead Rock, we noticed a pickup with Butte license plates had arrived and parked there while we were gone. It appeared to us that duck hunters had launched ahead of us.

We went ahead and launched our canoe. Arlan was in the bow to do the shooting. It wasn't long before we came upon two duck hunters from Butte in the slower John boat. We went around them and continued to hunt. This no doubt upset the Butte hunters because we had the good shooting ahead of them. After a while I told Arlan it was my turn to do some shooting from the bow. This was Arlan's first time in a canoe. We hadn't gone too far when he put us cross-wise to a fence, and we swamped. My shotgun and my pack containing my shotgun shells went to the bottom of the river. Arlan was able to hang on to his double-barreled shotgun.

After some wading back and forth, I was able to retrieve my shotgun in the shallow part of the river. The pack was a loss. We went to the shore to wring out our clothing. I was dressed in a wool "union suit", wool Malone trousers, a wool shirt, a wool jacket, and a wool Scotch cap. Arlan was dressed in cotton thermal knit underwear, blue jean trousers, a wool shirt, a soaked down vest, a cotton Levi jacket, and a cotton ball cap. Here was a candidate for hypothermia!

I told Arlan to get in the bow, that the best hunting was the last hour ahead of us. As we approached a bend in the river, I could see dozens of duck heads ahead of us. I told Arlan: "There they are! He was shivering so bad, that when he stuck his finger in the trigger guard, a barrel discharged straight up into the air. A cloud of ducks jumped up and flew off! Arlan never got a duck.

We finally arrived at our take out, loaded the canoe, and drove back to Beaverhead Rock. Upon our arrival, we noticed that the truck from Butte was gone. I asked Arlan if he was going to make it. He shook his head yes, got out of the Bronco, and walked to his VW. I left as he was getting into his car.

I saw Arlan Monday morning and asked him how it went. He told me that the Butte hunters had removed the rotor out of the VW distributor. He had to hitchhike about fifteen miles into Dillon, get a replacement rotor, and hitch a ride back to Beaverhead Rock.

He said he came home and sat in a hot tub of water for an hour. He told me he that he swore he would NEVER get into one of those damn "Indian boats" again!

30 E. Bannack 683-3548Lonely HalloweenBryce Angell*

The leaves had turned to red and brown. They'd lost their summer's green. The night was clear but, oh, so cold. We call it Halloween. I filled two bowls of candy for the goblins and the witches and maybe even Frankenstein, with his neatly painted stitches. I wondered if I'd recognize those young ones in disguise. I love to see their costumes, the excitement in their eyes. I flopped down in my comfy chair and waited for the flow. But no one knocked or rang my bell. A Halloween no-show? Then someone knocked at my back door. There stood my neighbor John. He said, "I hope you weren't asleep. Your car's dome light is on." I asked him in, and then we shared some pumpkin-spice hot tea. But deep inside I wish he'd hollered, "Trick or Treat," to me. 'Twas almost ten before I finally heard my doorbell ring. There stood two boys from just next door. Their sacks held not a thing! The oldest hollered, "Trick or Treat!" Then said, "We started late. We were waiting for our mother. I think she's on a date. "She called; said we should come right here. She said you'd be the one to brighten up our Halloween. You must be lots of fun." The oldest brother was in charge. The younger one held back. I told the boys to step right in and open-up each sack. I dumped a full bowl in each one. What really did they think? It brightened up my Halloween. Sure gave those boys a wink. The oldest boy yelled, "Thank you!" The youngest stood wide-eyed. I watched them till they got back home, then blinked and dang near cried. The story doesn't end right there. 'Cuz kids will spread the word. And now at Trick-or-Treating time, two have become a herd.

Fish Creek Road Rockslide

Approximately a half mile west of Pigeon Creek Campground, a rockslide is blocking travel on Fish Creek Road, (road number 668).

The size and location of the rockslide on Fish Creek Road currently makes the road impassible and crews are expecting to remedy the situation as soon as weather allows for the movement and operating of the required heavy equipment.

State Crime Lab Consortium Receives $2 Million Grant to Provide More Forensics Professionals, Education

Attorney General Tim Fox announced a consortium comprised of the Montana Department of Justice's Forensic Science Division, the University of Washington, George Mason University, the National Association of Attorneys General, and the American Society for Clinical Pathology received a $2 million National Institute of Justice (NIJ) Center on Forensics grant.

Grant funds will be used to establish the National Forensic Center, which will:

- Provide additional medical examiners/coroners in underserved rural areas, including Montana;

- Provide forensic science and legal training to district attorneys, judges, and law enforcement; and

- Develop opportunities to benefit current/future practitioners in the fields of forensic pathology, forensic science, law enforcement, and criminal justice.

"This grant award is a huge gain for Montana," Attorney General Tim Fox said. "In addition to creating greater medical examiner recruitment and training opportunities for pathology students and practicing physicians, we can increase the forensics workforce here in Montana. Fox went on to thank Forensic Science Division (FSD) Administrator Scott Larson for coordinating the grant request, as well as the Montana County Attorneys Association and Montana Coroners Association for their support.

Larson says he'll help the consortium develop nationally-available training for coroners, law enforcement, attorneys, and judges, focusing on pathology, forensic science, and legal requirements. FSD's medical examiners will help train future forensic pathologists.

Over the last several years, the Montana Department of Justice (DOJ) has steadily improved the state's medical examiner system: DOJ hired two additional medical examiners and secured a second laboratory location in eastern Montana. Its medical examiner system is working toward National Association of Medical Examiners accreditation, more training for county coroners, and implementing a death investigation database to facilitate tracking and communication among stakeholders.

FSD, better known as the State Crime Lab, is one of eight divisions within the Montana DOJ. It was established in Montana Code in 1977, and has facilities in Missoula and Billings. The Missoula facility houses two Deputy Chief Medical examiners, DNA/serology, toxicology, chemical analysis, latent prints, firearms/toolmarks, quality assurance, and evidence sections. The Billings facility, built in 2018, houses the Chief Medical Examiner and one Deputy Chief Medical Examiner, as well as chemical analysis and evidence sections.

In 2019, FSD performed 657 postmortem examinations; 359 in Missoula and 298 in Billings, a 7.3% increase over 2018.

Montana Department of Justice and Montana Office of Public Instruction Encourage State's Youth to Stay Drug-Free

Montana Attorney General Tim Fox and Montana Superintendent of Public Instruction Elsie Arntzen are kicking off Red Ribbon Week on October 23 by encouraging students across the state to demonstrate their commitment to living healthy, drug-free lifestyles. This year's Red Ribbon Week theme is: "Be happy. Be brave. Be drug free."™

Attorney General Fox and Superintendent Arntzen ask parents, educators, and students to watch the Drug Enforcement Agency (DEA) 2020 Virtual Red Ribbon Rally; to consider signing the Red Ribbon Week Pledge; and to be aware of the dangers of drug use and abuse.

"Substance abuse remains one of Montana's most serious and persistent problems," Attorney General Tim Fox said. "Coupled with the stress and isolation many have felt during the pandemic, it's vital, now more than ever, for each of us to recommit to living healthy and drug-free lifestyles. Red Ribbon Week is a good opportunity for adults to talk to the young people in their lives about how making good choices now will improve their odds of achieving bright futures."

"As a teacher and State Superintendent, I know first-hand how important it is for parents and schools to partner in guiding healthy choices for Montana students," said Superintendent Elsie Arntzen. "Now more than ever, students need social-emotional and mental health support to live healthy lifestyles. The OPI is committed to a whole-child approach to education. On Red Ribbon Week, let's make Montana proud and work towards a healthy future for our students."

The National Red Ribbon Week campaign was sparked by the 1985 murder of DEA Special Agent Enrique Camarena by drug traffickers. Today, Red Ribbon Week is nationally recognized and celebrated, helping preserve Special Agent Camarena's memory. The Red Ribbon Campaign also became a way for state, county, and local agencies as well as schools to get involved and reduce the demand for drugs through prevention and education programs. By wearing a red ribbon during the last week in October, Montanans can demonstrate their opposition to drugs and remember all the men and women who have made the ultimate sacrifice in support of America's fight against drugs.

VOTE TO RE-ELECT TOM WELCH

MONTANA HOUSE DISTRICT 72

A PROVEN LEADER...A DIFFERENCE MAKER

When presenting Tom with a MONTANA CHAMBER 'CHAMPION OF BUSINESS' AWARD in 2019, the following was noted:

"A pragmatic lawmaker with a long career in community banking, Rep. Welch began his legislative service in 2017 and hasn't shied away from making the tough votes since. He prioritizes job creation, free enterprise, and economic development for the benefit of all Montanans. In the 2019 Session, he served on the House Human Services and Taxation Committees, the latter of which was especially important to the Chamber as Rep. Welch prevented several bills that would have increased personal and business taxes from reaching the House floor." * (Emphasis added)
