Women's Basketball Inks Glacier's Emma Anderson

University of Montana Western head women's basketball coach Lindsay Woolley has announced the signing of Glacier High School's Emma Anderson to a NAIA National Letter of Intent.

Anderson is a 6-2 forward from Kalispell, Mont. and an all-conference selection. As a junior she averaged eight points, seven rebounds and a steal per game helping lead the Wolfpack to fourth place finish at divisionals and an appearance in the consolation round before the state tournament was canceled. She also plays volleyball and softball where she earned all-conference honors.

"I am excited Emma chose to join our program," Woolley said. "She is an outstanding student with goals of becoming an educator. Emma has great athleticism, an excellent touch and a good skill set. Her best days are ahead of her and we are excited to watch her develop at Montana Western."

The academic all-state and Honor Roll student-athlete is the daughter of Jonathan and Lora Anderson. She plans on majoring in elementary education at Montana Western.

30 E. Bannack 683-3548Angus and the Turkey

Bryce Angell

Old Mose, the cook, got drunk and left the ranch without a trace.

Thanksgiving was a day away, so Angus took his place.

Angus knew his cooking skills were certainly no winner. But he made a promise to the men they'd have a turkey dinner.

For sure they had a turkey 'cuz it gobbled every day. But when Angus opened-up its pen, that gobbler ran away.

The turkey ran right through the cows. Then up, away it flew. The bird weren't never coming back. Now what would Angus do?

Angus yelled, "The doggone turkey flapped his wings in flight. Somebody must have warned him, and I tell you it ain't right!"

The cowboys all thought Angus had completely lost his mind. And now without a turkey, well they sure were in a bind.

The cowboys figured Angus prob'ly was a little slow. And just to have some fun each fessed they'd let the turkey know.

Well Angus wasn't fooled. He'd let them have their little joke. But, he couldn't buy a turkey, up till payday he was broke.

Hank, the oldest, spoke right up and said, "I'll make this brief. Don't care if there ain't turkey. Can't you see I got no teef?"

Thanksgiving without turkey is like pepper with no salt. Angus thought how could this be? This mess was all his fault.

He grabbed his double-barrel and set out to bag a bird. He had to find another one. He gave the boys his word.

Well Angus kept his promise, cooked his bird a golden-brown. He'd shot a big tom turkey. Took him hours to run it down.

Charlie took a drumstick, and he chomped down nice and tight. The lead BB he bit on broke his two front teeth outright.

Hank gobbled down the turkey even though he couldn't chew. But hoped the heavy shotgun lead would make its way on through.

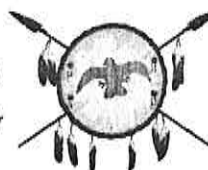

When the holiday was over, Charlie had a bad toothache. Hank muttered, "Was I gut shot? Your wild turkey, bad mistake!"

Did Angus keep his job as cook? He'd cooked his best and more. But I'll bet you next year's turkey is a Butterball for sure.

Rumors on the Street

By: MJ

Street talk about the City Council meeting Nov, 18 2020. Some of the rumors I have heard on the street are about the disrespect the council and Mayor Klakken displayed toward people that were in attendance or participating via Zoom. I watched the entire meeting and at no time did I see any disrespect by the Mayor or majority of council members. A leader is someone who oversees a meeting and is often the target of people's anger. It is true that the meeting became aggressive. It seems that some of the rumors on the streets are coming from several council members that had strong opinions on what the council should do. They were not supportive of their fellow council members, did not bring any factual or scientific information forward to be discussed amongst the council members. They reminded the council that the public speakers were professional and experts in the medical field. Public speakers included doctors, medical staff, members of the City/County Health Board and 12± business owners in the audience. The majority of the council including Mayor Klakken listened politely and attentively to all speakers including the 12± business owners.

It was sad to watch a few public speakers participating via Zoom sneering, exercising their eyebrows, facial and hand jesters when the opposite side was speaking. We all know that our minds can not endure any more then the buttock and sometimes speakers go beyond.

Let us remember the council represents the entire community and all the citizens and not just a special group. I don't believe the mayor or any council member wishes to make any person in this community suffer from Covid-19 as one of the council persons verbally indicated. This is so not true yet this is part of the street rumor being spread. Make sure you are getting the truth. Do your own checking of facts by getting copies of minutes. Don't take someone's word.

NOTE: Have you ever considered what a wonderful gift "speech" is? A voice and a language allow us a way to communicate. With our tongues we can express encouragement and kind thoughts of devotion. On the flip side of the coin we can use our tongue to attack others, spew out distasteful and other untrue words for what we think benefits us personally.

THANKFUL DESPITE CANCELLATION OF FAMILY FEAST

by Tom Purcell

My family canceled Thanksgiving this year – my favorite holiday since I was a kid.

Usually, 30 to 40 people gather at my parents' house and sit next to each other at three tables. But in this year of COVID-19 – aptly named, because I and everyone I know has put on about 19 pounds since March – the grand event has been canceled.

When I was a kid in the 1970s, my parents lived in a modest house. We packed people in for Thanksgiving nonetheless, with three tables taking up every inch of space in the dining room and living room. The tight circumstances made the event all the more fun and memorable.

When I taste turkey, mashed potatoes and cranberry sauce – the cheap kind in the ribbed can! – I taste the many years of camaraderie and happiness we've enjoyed around those tightly packed tables.

I knew as a boy, as I still do now, that the family members around the table were our primary blessings and sources of happiness. As sad as we are that wonderful aunts and uncles have left us over time, we are thankful for the many new souls whose joy has enriched our continually growing clan.

My parents have 17 grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren, and we all look forward to hearing stories about what they've said or done, often laughing out loud. Their joy fills us with joy.

But there will be no Thanksgiving gathering this year – no laughter around the dinner tables, no catching up as we talk about everything and nothing at all. That's somewhat troubling, because we don't know how many such gatherings we have left at my parents' home.

That's taking a toll on all of us this Thanksgiving, when everyone could use an enjoyable feast to take a respite from all the disruption in our lives and recharge our batteries a little bit.

If 2020 has given us one important lesson, it's that we shouldn't take for granted the blessings we still have in abundance. That lesson makes clear that the people who will NOT sit around the Thanksgiving table this year are what is most valuable to us. This year has reminded us to get back to the basics.

We don't need massive riches to fill ourselves with happiness. To the contrary, material wealth can cause unhappiness – particularly when markets crash and fortunes disappear. Truthfully, Kenny Rogers summarized well the three basic things we need in our lives to pursue happiness: someone to love, something to do and something to look forward to.

And, boy, am I looking forward to picking back up with my extended family's magical Thanksgiving gathering next year – to getting back to normal.

Perhaps it takes an especially disruptive year to bring us back to our senses. That's the spirit in which I'm taking 2020.

As far as the economy and our country's future goes, my family is as apprehensive about the coming months as anyone. We have experienced lost work and wage cuts, as millions of Americans have.

Though we won't sit around the Thanksgiving tables enjoying each other's company this year, we still will be thankful for the many blessings we've been given.
