FWP AND PARTNERS RELEASE BIGHORN SHEEP IN TENDOY MOUNTAINS

26 sheep translocated from Flathead Lake's Wild Horse Island Staff from Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks and partnering organizations recently released 26 bighorn sheep into the Tendoy Mountains as part of a new effort to re-establish a wild sheep herd there.

The sheep — 19 ewes, five rams and two lambs — were captured from Wild Horse Island on Flathead Lake, where sheep numbers have grown past management objectives. Each of the sheep had healthy body conditions when they were successfully released on Feb. 19.

During capture work, FWP staff outfitted the adult and yearling sheep with GPS collars. These collars will provide daily locations of the sheep that will help biologists monitor their movements, habitat use and survival in the Tendoy.

Between 2021 and 2022, biologists hope to release a total of 60 sheep in the Tendoy to establish a self-sustaining bighorn population there.

Bighorn sheep are native to the Tendoy Mountains and many other mountain ranges in southwest Montana. Native American pictographs in the Tendoy and Lima Peaks are evidence of historical sheep presence. By 1940, however, bighorn sheep were gone from the Tendoy, likely due to unrestricted hunting and disease.

In 1985 and 1986, FWP released 53 bighorn sheep into the Tendoy, and the herd grew to include more than 150 animals. In 1993, the herd began experiencing pneumonia-related die-offs and chronically low lamb recruitment.

In 2015, FWP initiated a plan to depopulate the Tendoy herd and restock it. This unique strategy involved removing sheep primarily via hunter harvest. Since then, there has been no evidence of bighorn sheep inhabiting the area, allowing the restocking effort to begin.

Since bighorn sheep were initially reintroduced in the Tendoy in 1985, the potential for commingling with domestic sheep has been reduced significantly. The GPS collars will play an important role as biologists evaluate the restoration effort's success, identify and respond to potential risks, and gain knowledge that will inform future reintroduction efforts.

Wildlife managers hope to see the herd grow to about 150 sheep. Hunters will continue to play an important role in maintaining the population at relatively low densities to reduce the potential for disease transmission.

Many organizations and agencies contributed to the success of this year's sheep restoration efforts in the Tendoy. Funding was donated by the National Wild Sheep Foundation, the Montana Wild Sheep Foundation, and the Bass Pro Shops and Cabela's Outdoor Fund. The project was also supported by the Bureau of Land Management, the Beaverhead-Deerlodge National Forest, sportsmen and private landowners.

"We're excited to once again have bighorn sheep in the Tendoy," said FWP's Dillon-area wildlife biologist Jesse Newby. "We're grateful to our many partners for their collaboration, financial support and volunteerism."

Letter to the Editor

President Biden wants another 1.9 Trillion dollars to help with the pandemic crisis. The national debt of the United States Government is over 28 Trillion dollars and getting bigger. I don't think anyone realizes what a Trillion dollars is. A Trillion dollars is 999 Billion dollars plus 1 Billion. Remember government has no money, it is our (the taxpayers) money. Congress has recently given Israel 3.3 Billion dollars, Egypt 1.3 Billion Dollars and on and on. The United States must get back on the gold standard. Someone recently told me the only difference between paper money and "wall Paper" is the color. Unless congress gets the will-power to reign in the national debt, I see a time when the dollar will be worthless. As long as the Democrats control congress it will only get worse.

WATERS ARE UNDER THE THREAT

Montana's waters are under the threat of invasive aquatic plants, animals, and diseases. These non-native species can flourish in new locations because there are no natural predators or environmental conditions to restrain them. Once established, AIS can harm our native plant and animal species and devastate aquatic habitats.

AIS can threaten boating and fishing opportunities, irrigation and ag production, hydropower, and water infrastructure systems. Recreational boats are the most common way AIS are spread.

All boat owners (both motorized and non-motorized) must stop at all watercraft inspection stations and always follow the steps of Drain. Dry.

Clean off all mud, plants, and animals from your boat and trailer.
Drain water from the bilge or anyplace that can hold water.
Dry your boat and gear to ensure AIS are eliminated.

Follow these steps every time you leave the water. Stop at all watercraft inspection stations you encounter. If a boat enters Montana from out of state, it must be inspected before launching. Prevention is our best defense against AIS.

Calf Creek Wildlife Management Area

Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks is seeking input on its proposal to thin trees to improve wildlife habitat on portions of Calf Creek Wildlife Management Area (WMA), just east of Hamilton.

The proposal calls for removing some conifer trees on approximately 1,100 acres of grass/shrublands and forested areas on the WMA. Thinning would improve deer and elk winter forage; restore more native grass and shrublands; promote aspen tree growth; and decrease wildfire risks.

Calf Creek WMA is important winter range for deer and elk and home to a variety of wildlife species including bears, mountain lions, birds, small mammals, and moose.

To review the draft EA and to comment online, go to FWP's website, fwp.mt.gov, under "News and Public Notices." Or, request information and comment: Region 2 FWP, Attn: Calf Creek Forest EA; 3201 Spurgin Rd., Missoula 59804; by phoning 406-542-5540; or by emailing shrose@mt.gov. Comments must be received by Monday, March 8, 2021.

If the project is approved by the Montana Fish and Wildlife Commission at their April meeting, the work could begin as early as December of 2021.

DAN IBEY MEMORIAL PARK

The City of Dillon Parks Committee is seeking input from people living in Mountain View Subdivision (Ibeyville), close to DAN IBEY MEMORIAL PARK- and all people living in Dillon who have an interest in our parks. If the Ibeyville Park is repaired and upgraded, what is your vision for the park in the future? Below is a link to a short survey. Please take a few moments to let us know your thoughts. We will be running the survey until March 15, 2021 and would greatly appreciate your ideas.

DAN IBEY MEMORIAL PARK (located at the corner of Sunrise St. & Noble Ave). Please go to the City Web Page www.dillonmt.org or copy & paste the link below to answer a few questions about the future planning and renovation of the Dan Ibey Memorial Park - informally known as Ibeyville Park.
