STOLEN VEHICLE

On April 18, 2021 at approximately 12:30 AM, Dillon City Police Officers attempted a routine traffic stop for an equipment violation. The driver chose to not pull over and elude officers. The driver eventually pulled over, then once again sped away as officers approached the vehicle. One officer had to jump out of the way to avoid being hit. Officers were forced to give chase as the vehicle proceeded to the interstate at a high rate of speed. A deputy assisted at this point. The vehicle went through a fence and continued in to a field in their continuing effort to elude. The vehicle crashed in to a canal and three occupants took off on foot. Officers gave chase and apprehended two of the three, which are juveniles. The third occupant was later identified as 18 year old Hunter Bulltail.

The vehicle was later reported stolen and Bulltail was arrested on Felony theft, felony criminal endangerment, criminal mischief, eluding, minor in possession of alcohol, DUI and driving while suspended or revoked. The juveniles were cited for felony theft, minor in possession of alcohol, one with obstructing and released to their custodians. No serious injuries occurred.

Grizzly bear killed following West Yellowstone attack Safety closure remains in effect

A grizzly bear was shot and killed Friday while Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks staff investigated the scene of a bear attack that happened Thursday near West Yellowstone.

Thursday's attack involved a 40-year-old West Yellowstone man, who was mauled just south of the Baker's Hole campground, about three miles north of West Yellowstone. He was transported to Idaho Falls for treatment of severe injuries. He remained in serious condition Friday.

FWP staff have not yet been able to talk with the man, who was alone during the bear encounter. The man had bear spray with him, but it's unclear whether he was able to deploy it during the attack.

The U.S. Forest Service issued an emergency public-safety closure in the area that remains in effect.

A group of seven investigators, including FWP game wardens and bear specialists, as well as Forest Service personnel, revisited the site Friday to assess ongoing public safety risks and continue the investigation.

They yelled and made continuous noise as they walked toward the site to haze away any bears in the area. Before they reached the site, a bear began charging the group. Despite multiple attempts by all seven people to haze away the bear, it continued its charge. Due to this immediate safety risk, the bear was shot and died about 20 yards from the group. The bear was an older-age male grizzly.

Investigators later found a moose carcass cached within 50 yards of Thursday's attack. This indicates the bear was defending a food source during the attack.

Recreationists, residents and people who work outdoors can be prepared for a surprise bear encounter. Activities that are deliberately quiet or fast moving, such as hunting, mountain biking or trail running, put people at greater risk for surprising a bear. When you're outside, keep these precautions in mind:

- Be aware of your surroundings and look for bear sign.
- Read signs at trailheads and stay on trails. Be especially careful around creeks and in areas with dense brush.
- Carry bear spray. Know how to use it and be prepared to deploy it immediately.
- Travel in groups whenever possible and make casual noise, which can help alert bears to your presence.
- Stay away from animal carcasses, which attract bears.
- Follow food storage orders from the applicable land management agency.
- If you encounter a bear, never approach it. Back away slowly and leave the area.

Grizzly bears in the lower 48 states are listed as threatened under the Endangered Species Act. Management authority for grizzlies rests with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, working closely in Montana with FWP, the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Wildlife Services, the Forest Service and Tribal lands. This collaboration happens through the Interagency Grizzly Bear Committee.

Respect

Bryce Angell

My father taught me, "Show respect especially while you're young.
 'Cuz no one likes a little boy who has a nasty tongue."

Those words were planted in my brain and always on my mind.

But planted way so far in back, at times, they're hard to find.

I'd say I'm still respectful, but there's one thing I have learned.

It doesn't matter who you are, respect is always earned.

I've worked among the best of men, from CEOs to clerks.

And most were all respectable. Dang few of them were jerks.

I try to show each man respect. That usually is my plan.

But I'll always be respectful to a kind and humble man.

A few years back, while passing out the checks to all the crew.

One fellow said, "Thanks for the check and thanks for all you do."

That kind old man gained my respect, right from the very start.

I guess you'd say his humble way had deeply touched my heart.

Today I see too many men demanding some respect.

Yet some of them will never give. They'd rather just collect.

I'm not inclined to give advice. I don't have that degree.

But if you are respectful then you've earned respect from me.

My father's generation showed respect to everyone. And they didn't need attention for the good deeds they had done.

So, my father told me, "In the midst of negativity, that if you are respectful, there'll be someone who will see.

"And they will look to you; from your example comes respect. There are still good people out there. Teach 'em right and they'll connect.

"Then when you've learned to show respect, it'll help you bite y our tongue. Especially when society is shoveling its bull dung."

Deadwood Bridge, campground to close temporarily for repairs

A bridge and nearby campground managed by the Bureau of Land Management will temporarily close during upcoming repair work, following the recent release of a Montana bridge inspection report.

Deadwood Bridge and Deadwood Gulch Campground, six miles southwest of Dell along Big Sheep Creek, will close April 26 through May 7 as a work crew re-decks the bridge. The campground has five sites and provides for intermittent dispersed camping along Big Sheep Creek.

Senator Welborn's Weekly Review

HELENA

With the 2021 session of the Montana Legislature entering its final weeks, the clock is ticking for lawmakers to push bills on a variety of issues across their procedural finish lines. Even so, the Legislature's Republican leadership made time to confront the state Supreme Court over judicial emails, launching a full-fledged investigation into judicial conduct. The Governor's office released late on Friday, a list of 42 laws more the Governor has signed into law. Three more proposals, that I've sponsored have recently been signed into law by the Governor as well. Here's some other items of interest to people around Southwest Montana

WATER QUALITY

Senate Bill 164, which proposed to loosen nitrate standards the DEQ uses to regulate water quality, narrowly failed second reading in the House, 48-52, and is likely dead. An amended version of another proposal, by Carl Glimm, R-Columbia Falls, that would shift subdivision rulemaking from the DEQ to the Board of Environmental Review and change specific sanitation standards, passed out of the House and will return to the Senate. An amended version of Senate Bill 358, a measure sponsored by John Esp, R-Big Timber, to replace numeric water quality standards with narrative standards passed out of the Legislature Thursday. Environmental advocates opposed that measure out of concern it would lead to degradation of the state's waterways, while proponents say it will make it easier for water treatment facilities to stay in compliance with the law.

WILDLIFE MANAGEMENT & PUBLIC LAND

By a vote of 30-20, a bill sponsored by Josh Kassmier, R-Fort Benton, that would require county commissioners to sign off on wild bison relocations passed the House. It will head to the governor's desk in the coming weeks. Proponents of House Bill 302 said it will provide important brucellosis controls, while opponents said brucellosis concerns are overblown and the bill will interfere with tribes' ability to manage bison and the establishment of wild herds. Three major proposals pertaining to predator management passed out of the House Wednesday. Those include a bill that limits grizzly bear relocation to previously approved zones in the Greater Yellowstone, Cabinet-Yaak and Northern Continental Divide ecosystems, a measure establishing a black bear spring hound hunting season, and a proposal that lifts bag limits for wolves and legalizes hunting with bait and at night on private land. A bill sponsored by Rep. Steve Gunderson, R-Libby, was tabled in the committee which I serve as chair, Senate Natural Resources,

Friday afternoon. House Bill 320 would have prevented the state from selling federal public land transferred to the state. Gunderson said he pursued the measure in part to put public land under state, rather than federal, regulatory oversight. Opponents described it as a "red herring" measure designed to facilitate public land transfer.

ENERGY POLICY

House Bill 273, which seeks to remove restrictions on nuclear development, passed out of the Legislature Thursday, 30-20, largely along party lines with Republicans supporting and Democrats opposing. It strikes a requirement for voters to approve future nuclear energy projects, and takes those projects out of the purview of the DEQ-administered Major Facility Siting Act. Two bills pertaining to how and where disagreements between Colstrip owners are adjudicated passed out of the Legislature on Tuesday. Both measures are sponsored by Sen. Steve Fitzpatrick, R-Great Falls. Senate Bill 265 would allow the state's attorney general to fine Colstrip owners up to $100,000 per day if they fail to pay costs associated with the continued operation of the coal-fired power plant.

EDUCATION

House Bill 179, a proposal to streamline the local funding for new community college districts in Montana, cleared a final round of votes in the House and will now move to the governor's desk. It is sponsored by Rep. David Bedey, R-Hamilton. Another K-12 funding bill passed an initial Senate floor vote Thursday. House Bill 663 would direct state tax revenues from recreational marijuana to public schools in an effort to decrease school funding pressures placed on local property taxpayers.

BUDGETS

Montana's main state budget bill, House Bill 2, is headed to a conference committee for final tweaks after a procedural vote on the House floor Monday. Two bills allocating federal stimulus money, House Bill 630, and House Bill 632, cleared Senate floor votes this week but are likely headed for similar treatment. As of last Thursday, the funding local House Members, Representatives Welch and Walsh, and myself, have secured for Block Hall reconstruction, Full funding restoration for Youth Challenge, and additional funding for Virginia and Nevada City historic preservation is still in the current budget as it moves forward.

WEEKLY LEGISLATIVE UPDATE

BY REP TOM WELCH

Sunday, April 18, 2021

The 67th Montana Legislature has been put on hold for a few days due to a new COVID case involving an independent Government Affairs member who had contact with several Legislators and staffers in recent days. We expect to be back working normally by the middle of this week.

As of last Thursday, we had completed Day 72 of our scheduled 90 work days. It appears that once we get back to work and on track, we should complete our work around Day 85. Committees in both the House and the Senate have put in long hours in recent days as a number of Bills had remained to be addressed prior to the various deadlines facing us. Major tasks still needing to be fully completed before adjournment include those dealing with our State budget as well as those involving recreational marijuana. Much groundwork has been accomplished on both of these subjects.

Although we may ultimately finish our work and this Legislative Session a few days early, it is likely that we will need to return later this year to further deal with the ins and outs of the latest round of Federal COVID monies that we have and are receiving. Among areas that much of this money is expected to be directed towards include education, broadband, and infrastructure. HB 632 is the framework for much of this work.

I want to close this week's Report by recognizing the excellent staff that we work with at the Legislature. These folks work tirelessly, many behind the scenes, to ensure that we have the tools and information we need to accomplish our work. When unexpected happenings occur such as we have seen these past few days, it is our staff that gets us quickly and safely back on track. A special THANKS to all of them! Thank you for the opportunity to serve you and for your continued support!
