DO MORNING PEOPLE DESERVE TO LIVE?

Tyrades! by Danny Tyree

A 1986 Pantene commercial carried the tagline "Don't Hate Me Because I'm Beautiful."

Similarly, I must ask my readers, "Don't hate me because I've heard a rooster crow."

I tend to get up at the crack of dawn, even though I eventually encounter a lot of grumpy people who wish they had the energy to show dawn their…well, never mind.

Despite working the graveyard shift from age 23 to age 37, and despite an ongoing ability to burn the candle at both ends, I am basically one of those dreaded "morning people."

To my credit, I am never "in your face" with cheerfulness and positivity, but I confess to being one of those beings who can roll out of bed and become productive without the assistance of a snooze alarm.

I am part of a sizable group. According to research, 25 percent of people are early birds, 25 percent are night owls, 50 percent are somewhere in between and the other 37 percent took Common Core math.

My DNA helps me be a morning person, but my bladder in particular nudges me to go ahead and start my day without dillydallying. I am sometimes envious of the late-sleepers who can intimidate their bladders. ("You've seen how much damage I can do to an alarm clock. Now back off, bladder. I've got my eye on you, too, spleen.")

It's nice to have some stress-free time to converse with the cats, peruse my favorite online comic strips, and catch up on the laundry. I'm glad I can actually enjoy the taste and aroma of a cup of coffee without depending on caffeine as a crutch, lifesaver or defibrillator. It's more genteel to muse, "The richest, most aromatic kind" instead of "Clear! Clear!"

I make a point of trying to read the Wall Street Journal every morning. Of course, that gives a new meaning to "bright-eyed and bushy-tailed." By the time I get through reading about all the pandemics, bankruptcies and assassinations, I felt like a squirrel clobbered on the road.

If you regularly get up before the rest of your family, you carry the heavy burden of not slamming or clattering anything that will interrupt the others' well-deserved slumber. I'm still skeptical of charges that my shoelaces replicate the sound of Thor's enchanted hammer Mjolnir.

Being considerate can be a downer, especially when you speculate that the world's night owls have been playing Naughty Librarian while you're stuck with a game of "Tiptoe, tiptoe, quiet as a mouse."

If you get up at least two hours before the rest of the household, that first hour seems like you have all the "me time" in the world. But when the next hour arrives, it's like breaking a $100 bill. (Elon Musk: "What is this $100 bill of

Be true to your internal clock, however it's set.

As for me, I like to feel the dew, welcome wide-open possibilities and declare, "This is the day the LORD has made. I will rejoice in it."

Conversely, when night owls finally face the world, they tend to moan, "Holy cow! Is this what has already happened while I slept??? Hmph! Congress: we screw up more before 9 a.m. than Mother Nature does in an Ice Age."

WILDLIFE OFFICIALS, BLACKFOOT COMMUNITY WORK TOGETHER ON FATAL BEAR ATTACK DETAILS AND NEXT STEPS

Wildlife officials and the local Blackfoot Valley community are working together to wrap up details of the July 6 fatal grizzly bear attack of a camper in Ovando.

Soon the information will be sent on to the Board of Review, a group of wildlife staff from federal and state agencies assembled to look at the details of all human-bear attacks and record them in a final report. The board will release its final report, containing all details of this Ovando case sometime later this year. It will be available for review on the Interagency Grizzly Bear Committee website at igbconline.org/bear-safety/.

On July 14, DNA results confirmed that the bear killed by wildlife officials was the same bear that fatally attacked Leah Davis Lokan in her tent in the early morning hours of July 6. DNA samples from the bear, saliva samples at the scene of the attack and samples from two chicken coops in the area that the bear raided all matched up.

The tragic event brought community members and wildlife officials together to respond, collect information and discuss next steps.

"The local Blackfoot community came together from the first moments of this incident to do all it could to help," said Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks Director Hank Worsech. "This is a tight knit group of people with a long history of working together to do what they can to address the challenges of having bears in the watershed. Coming together to help and process the events of this incident has been no exception."

Wildlife officials from FWP, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (USFWS) and USDA Wildlife Services have put together more details from the case indicating the 417-pound male grizzly was 6 years old. It was a healthy weight but lean, which is typical of bears at this point in the summer season just before they begin heavily foraging in preparation for a long winter with minimal food. It had a wound on its shoulder that is often characteristic for male bears during their annual breeding season, which typically runs from May through July.

The bear had no history of conflicts but was likely drawn to town in search of food.

Ovando sits in the upper Blackfoot Valley, in an area with a long history of grizzly bears and of cooperative efforts between landowners, wildlife agency employees, and community members to develop ways to live with bears that reduce impacts to livestock operations and maximize human safety. Grizzly bears are common in the Blackfoot Valley, but events that result in human injury or death are extremely rare. The only other fatal attack by a grizzly bear in the Blackfoot Valley in the past 50 years was an elk hunter in 2001.

"Grizzly bear distribution in the area has continued to expand through the years," said Hilary Cooley, USFWS Montana-based Grizzly Bear Recovery Coordinator. "And as bears expand their range and the population grows in some places, there are a lot of people in the Blackfoot that consistently come together to figure out how to resolve issues and find creative solutions for working and living with bears. These efforts have been remarkable."

The area is part of the Northern Continental Divide Ecosystem, which is a biologically recovered population of grizzly bears. Because bears are listed as Threatened under the Endangered Species Act (ESA), special rules govern what landowners and others can do.

It is legal for people to kill bears in self-defense or in defense of others, if it is reported within five days to a state or federal agency. However, killing or wounding a bear for any other reason is not allowed under the ESA, except by a federal, state, or tribal agency. The USFWS has provided guidance (click here) on legal methods that livestock owners, homeowners and the public can use to deter bears from using areas near homes or property.

Human safety around bears is a relevant topic in the Blackfoot Valley and beyond. This time of year, when bears are just starting to be more active, foraging for food ahead of the winter, FWP works to remind residents, recreationists and hunters of bear safety tips such as:

Be aware of your surroundings and look for bear sign.

Read signs at trailheads and stay on trails. Be especially careful around creeks and in areas with dense brush.

Carry bear spray. Know how to use it and be prepared to deploy it immediately.

Travel in groups whenever possible and make casual noise, which can help alert bears to your presence.

Stay away from animal carcasses, which often attract bears.

Follow food storage orders from the applicable land management agency.

If you encounter a bear, never approach it. Back away slowly and leave the area.

Caverns Friday Summer Speakers Series: 'Flowery Language'

Lewis & Clark Caverns State Park will host a free talk entitled "Flowery Language" on Friday, Aug. 6, at 8 p.m. in the park's campground amphitheater.

When you think of Valentine's Day, does an image of red roses pop into your mind? Flower symbolism has been around for ages, and many of us speak "un peu du langage des fleurs," or a bit of the language of flowers. But how can you know for sure whether your wedding bouquet means "undying love" or "you repulse me"?

In this talk by AmeriCorps member Emily Dickerson, you'll learn the history of the language of flowers as well as some wildflower meanings to help you translate your thoughts into blooms.

This is the 11th presentation in Lewis & Clark Caverns State Park's annual Friday Summer Speakers Series.

About the speaker

Emily Dickerson is an AmeriCorps member at Lewis & Clark Caverns State Park. As a child, she received "A Little Book of Manners" by Emilie Barnes for her sixth birthday, and thus began a lifelong interest in etiquette and culture. After receiving her bachelor's degree in anthropology, she quickly found her way to Montana, where her interest in flowers truly began to bloom. After two years of giving wildflower walks and talks, she has decided to return to one of her favorite subjects with this prim and proper campground talk.

Montana Western Women's Basketball Signs First Recruit for 2022

University of Montana Western head women's basketball coach Lindsay Woolley has announced the signing of Missoula Hellgate High School's Keke Davis to an NAIA National Letter of Intent for the 2022-23 season.

Davis is a 5-8 power forward from Missoula, Mont. She averaged just north of seven points per game last season as a junior for the Knights, who fell in the Class AA state championship game to Helena Capital last season. As a freshman, she was named defensive player of the year and earned honorable mention all-conference honors as a sophomore. Davis also competes in softball as well as track and field for the Knights.

"Keke is a long explosive athlete with an exceptional work ethic," Woolley said. "We thought she was one of the most improved players in the 22 class over the last 3 years. She is excellent around the rim and has the ability to be an elite defender. We couldn't be more excited to have her join the Bulldog family after her senior season wraps up."

She has been named to the high honor roll three times and plans on majoring in psychology at Montana Western.

Veteran's Corner Update #14

By Mike Lawson

Greeting to all of you in SW MT who read this column about our Veterans and news concerning veterans. Some of this news is about our Southwest Montana Veteran's Home, the new Veteran Medical (CBOC) Center being built and other issues concerning veterans.

Some exciting news for many of us who have been following the building of the USS Montana SSN 794 attack submarine. This submarine, named after Montana, was christened on September 12, 2020. Rodger Knoell, a retired submariner, and his wife attended that special event. It's in the water and the finishing construction is pier side with it's crew preparing/training for sea trials. The news is that the USS Montana's "ships bell" is now touring Montana and will be in Butte on September 10th for the Butte unveiling. This ceremony will be at the Veteran's Memorial at Stodden Park,1950 Utah at 5:00. A dinner afterwards will be at the La Quenta Inn, in the Rocky Mountain Room (under the old Denny's Resturant). Due to the limited seating, reservations need to be made no later than Sept 6th. The cost is $20.00 per person. Ph# 491-6563. Should be a great event, especially for our Navy veterans.

Our SW MT Vet Home Foundation's President Dave Williamson, wrote a well written letter concerning the "Covered Walkways" between the Cottages. This is just another thing we fought for concerning the completion of our SWMVH. This letter went straight to the Governor's Office and Officials involved with this issue. It was very detailed about the reasons for the safety aspects for not only the Residents but also for the personal who are taking care of our resident veterans.

The SW MT Vet Home Foundation Meeting is the first Monday at 1:00 pm of every month in the meeting room in the Community Building. All are welcome.

Southwest Montana Veterans Home update.

I again thank the Markovich guys, Mike Ascheman and John Kotka, who keeping me so well informed as to the construction progress of our Vet Home, on a week to week basis. I was privileged to visit some of the Resident Veterans in Cottage #1 & #2 as well as do a walk-through of the other Cottages, with Eduro Chief of Staff Chris Cotton. It was very gratifying visiting with these vets. They were very talkative and seem very happy living there. I asked Chris about when we could begin visiting these resident vets. He said it's already starting. The requirement is to take a short class that Eduro puts on, which upon completion you're put on a visitor's list. The sequence to follow for all visitors will be to: 1) sign in at the Community Center, 2) they will then notify the specified Cottage and Resident Vet your going to visit, 3) the door will be opened at that cottage, the visitor will be greeted and taken to wherever the Vet is located in that cottage. It was fun visiting the vets, that I did. The natural light, in the central cottage area was abundant and created an enjoyable environment to visit in. These Cottages were spotless and peaceful. I

Construction Updates:

The State has taken possession of Community Building, Maintenance building and Cottages #1/#2/#3

Cottage #4: The mechanical systems start-up went well. The 360 Company has installed/placed all the furniture. Eric from Complete Communication is running/hooking-up low voltage wire concerning communications/security/card readers/etc..ARJO installed one bigger man-lift cage for each cottage which will address the extra large veteran's lifting needs.

Cottage #5: The Carpenters continue building door jams, hanging doors, trimming out doors and windows. The Tile guys have about a week left to completely have all the resident Vet bathrooms finished.

Zemljak Excavation: With the grading and spreading of the top soil on the future site of Cottage #6, there's only some clean-up work left on the eastern perimeter of the Vet Home site, along Continental Drive.

Becker Landscaping: They have all the sod laid around Cottages #1/#2/#3. Putting in the borders that divide the sod/bark/rock/scrubs/flowers from each other. Keep setting scrubs/trees/flowers/etc. Becker's crew are hard workers and very dependable.

Veteran CBOC Medical Center:

This building is looking better every day. The outside is seeing an awning type short-roof above the windows, being build completely around the outside of the building. It really is giving this building a different look. The Electricians and Sheetmetal are working on the inside. The VA is scheduled to make a site visit this week

Not sure how the other Counties are doing with this new Delta Variant of the Covid-19, but according to one County Health Official, Silver Bow County has about 12 people with it. With tourism being at an all time high, with folks from all over the country visiting us, the risk of any one of us getting it, especially if unvaccinated, is getting frightening. Please take extra precautions for yourself and your loved ones. Until next time, take care.
