New K9s to Crack Down on Illegal Drugs in Montana

Attorney General Austin Knudsen announced a new $300,000 grant program today to help Montana law enforcement agencies obtain and train new canine units to crack down on the illegal drugs being trafficked into our state. The program reflects Attorney General Knudsen's commitment to moving resources out of Helena and into the hands of local first responders and law enforcement.

During the 2021 Legislative Session, Knudsen secured funds in House Bill 701 for the Montana Department of Justice to administer a grant program helping law enforcement agencies purchase and train new drug-detecting K9s to replace those that were trained to detect marijuana after voters last year passed an initiative legalizing the drug. Representative Mike Hopkins carried the legislation implementing the initiative, while Representative Barry Usher sponsored the amendment containing the funds.

"Methamphetamine trafficked across the southern border and up to our state continues to be the number one public safety threat to Montanans. The dogs and training law enforcement agencies obtain through this program will play an integral role in helping us keep drugs out of our communities and improving public safety statewide," Attorney General Knudsen said. "I appreciate the efforts of Representatives Barry Usher and Mike Hopkins in getting funding for this important program included in House Bill 701."

"The marijuana K9 replacement program will play a crucial role in continuing efforts for public safety in Montana. It is my hope that law enforcement organizations will find a way to repurpose the current K9 units at schools, prisons, and highway scales rather than retiring them," Representative Usher said.

Law enforcement agencies may apply for a grant of up to $10,000 to go towards the cost of replacing or obtaining new dogs and training the animal and the handler. It costs about $20,000 to obtain a dog and train it and its handler. Because many current police canines are trained to detect marijuana, which is now legal in certain quantities in Montana, they have lost much of their effectiveness as a drug interdiction tool.

The deadline for agencies to apply for the initial grant is Sept. 15, 2021. Applications will be reviewed by a committee of city, county, and state law enforcement officials. Agencies will be able to apply for an additional grant if there are funds left over.

"On behalf of local law enforcement, we are excited to see the inception and roll out of the grant process to replace drug dogs. Agencies rely on our dogs on a daily basis and we want to ensure all dogs are properly trained and able to comply with the drug laws in our state," Cascade County Sheriff's Office Captain Scott Van Dyken, president of the Montana Sheriffs and Peace Officers Association, said.

Methamphetamine trafficked into Montana has led to a 91 percent increase in violent crime from 2013 to 2020, Montana Board of Crime Control statistics show. Austin Knudsen is committed to reversing this trend and putting the focus of the Attorney General's Office on public safety.

UPLAND GAME BIRD ENHANCEMENT PROGRAM
PROJECTS ACCESS GUIDE AVAILABLE ONLINE
STARTING AUG. 11

Today hunters can view and download the new guide and maps online at fwp.mt.gov. Click UGBEP Projects Access Guide.

The UGBEP Projects Access Guide may also be ordered online.

The guide contains all active projects administered through the UGBEP including Open Fields, habitat management leases, food and cover plots, CRP enhancements, shelterbelts, and grazing systems. These project types are located in all FWP regions and designed to enhance upland game bird habitats on lands open to free upland game bird hunting when permission to hunt is secured.

The guide includes tables listing all habitat projects and maps that depict locations of private and public land projects enrolled in the UGBEP. Tables provide hunters with project-specific information such as project location, acres, and the method to contact landowners for permission. FWP reminds hunters to obtain landowner permission before hunting private lands in Montana.

Printed access guides will be available at FWP headquarters and regional offices late August. Hunters can also request a copy of the access guide via FWP's website. FWP will begin mailing guides to hunters the week of Aug. 16.

Due to current dry conditions and high fire danger throughout Montana, hunters may encounter UGBEP project closures or restrictions. Hunters can check the Projects Access Guide online for current information.

FWP extends its thanks to all partners who collaborate on habitat conservation and access opportunities that benefit wildlife and hunters. Through partnerships formed with private landowners, government agencies or conservation organizations, UGBEP enhanced nearly 330,000 acres of habitat while providing close to 700,000 acres of access to upland game bird hunters.

For more information, contact Debbie Hohler, UGBEP Coordinator, at: 406-444-5674, or by email: dhohler@mt.gov.

Caverns Friday Summer Speakers Series: 'Cave Science: What & Why?'

How do we find out the secrets a cave is hiding?

Lewis & Clark Caverns State Park will host a free talk entitled "Cave Science: What & Why?" on Friday, August 20, at 8 p.m. in the park's campground amphitheater.

Cavers are on the front lines of a new branch of geology, biology, physics and general science. In this talk from geologist Ethan Oleson, you will discover some state-of-the-art cave science, its future and who exactly is a cave scientist.

This is the 13th presentation in Lewis & Clark Caverns State Park's annual Friday Summer Speakers Series, which introduces a new speaker each Friday at 8 p.m. throughout the summer.

About the speaker

Ethan Oleson is a geologist studying at Montana State University in Bozeman. He began caving in South Dakota at age 16 and has been an avid caver ever since. He studies cave paleoclimate, minerals and formation.

Attorney General Knudsen Takes Action to Combat Illegal Robocalls in Montana

Urges the FCC to Accelerate Deadline for Anti-Robocall Technology

Attorney General Austin Knudsen called on the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) to combat the scourge of illegal phone calls pouring into our state and help prevent Montanans from becoming victims of scams. In a comment filed with the FCC, Knudsen and 50 other attorneys general urged the FCC to move up the deadline for all telephone companies to implement anti-robocall ID technology.

A subset of small voice service providers is more often responsible for illegal robocalls, with a high and increasing share of these illegal robocalls relative to their subscriber bases.

"In addition to the daily annoyance and inconvenience, Montanans are also at risk of devastating loss because of deceptive scams coming from illegal robocalls. The Montana Department of Justice is committed to cracking down on anyone trying to take advantage of Montanans," Attorney General Knudsen said.

Under the Pallone-Thune Telephone Robocall Abuse Criminal Enforcement and Deterrence Act (TRACED Act), which became law in 2019, phone companies are required to implement STIR/SHAKEN technology on their networks. This caller ID authentication technology helps ensure that telephone calls are originating from verified numbers, not spoofed sources. Large companies were required to implement the technology by June 2021, and smaller phone companies were given an extension until June 2023.

However, some of the same smaller phone companies that are benefitting from this extension are also responsible for originating or facilitating high volumes of illegal robocalls that spam Americans and lead to financial or personal data loss. And without the STIR/SHAKEN technology in place, these smaller companies are failing to take a necessary step to minimize the continued onslaught of illegally spoofed robocalls that harm residents.

The coalition of attorneys general are asking the FCC to require these companies to implement the STIR/SHAKEN technology as soon as possible and no later than June 30, 2022.

Earlier this year, the department also joined the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) in stopping a massive telefunding operation that had made 1.3 billion deceptive charitable fundraising calls.

Pretty Flower? Think Again!

This flowering plant, found in and around the city of Dillon is no garden flower. Field Bindweed is actually considered to be a noxious weed, or a nonnative plant species that can harm native environments.

How to Identify!

This plant can be easily identified by its distinct trumpet shaped flower, that can appear in either white or pink.

If it is not flowering, look closely at the shape of the leaves. Bindweed has arrow shaped leaves that have lobes at the base and end in a rounded point.

Ways to Help!

There are a few ways you can help manage the bindweed population around your home or business.

One option is the use of herbicides to control bindweed. Repeated applications of glyphosate based herbicides during bloom stages can be very effective, this may need to continue for a few years due to the extensive root system.

If you're not wanting to use herbicides, regularly tilling or pulling out the bindweed depletes the root system over time, just be sure to get as much of the roots as possible to avoid regrowth; tilling during bloom stage will be the most effective. Bindweed is also relatively shade intolerant, if younger than a year, so putting shading plants in the area can slow its growth enough to then remove it manually.
