AG Knudsen slams White House's call for OPEC+ countries to produce more oil

Montana Attorney General Austin Knudsen slammed the White House's call for OPEC+ (Organization of the Petroleum Exporting Countries and others) to increase its oil output, following the Biden administration's lawless actions that restrict American energy production.

"President Biden has made clear that he wants Americans to have access to affordable and reliable energy, including at the pump," National Security Advisor Jake Sullivan said in a duplicitous statement today.

In response, Attorney General Knudsen issued the following remarks:

President Biden's lawless actions restricting domestic energy production began on his first day in office and now that the chickens are coming home to roost, he's asking countries like Russia, Iran, and Venezuela to bail him out and pump more oil.

This is an insult to Americans in rural communities who would have benefited from the Keystone XL pipeline and the energy workers in states like mine who are suffering from the effects of the Biden administration's ongoing federal lease ban. Montana consumers are also hurting, paying almost 50 percent more for gas than they were a year ago.

If President Biden truly wants 'affordable and reliable energy' like he claims, his administration needs to encourage more energy development and infrastructure in America, not continue to illegally restrict it. Until he changes course, we will all continue to pay the price.

According to AAA, the average price for a regular gallon of gas in Montana today is $3.29. This is an increase of 46 percent from the $2.24 per gallon price consumers were paying just one year ago.

RMEF, Partners Seek to Protect, Open Access to 15,573 Acres of Oregon Elk Habitat

In partnership with Hancock Natural Resources Group and the Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife (ODFW), the Rocky Mountain Elk Foundation is actively working to conserve 15,573 acres of wildlife habitat in northeast Oregon.

"Wildlife officials targeted the importance of conserving this landscape, the Gateway to the Wallowa Mountains, dating back to the 1960s. And now we are knocking on the door of a great conservation victory for elk, other wildlife and public access," said Kyle Weaver, RMEF president and CEO.

The Minam River Acquisition project, as it's called, is located in Wallowa and Union Counties. The property links the Eagle Cap Wilderness, Minam Wild and Scenic River and the Wallowa Wild and Scenic River while also providing connectivity to Oregon's Minam River Wildlife Area and Minam State Recreation Area. Additionally, it improves hunting and recreational access to more than 6,000 acres of nearby U.S. Forest Service and Bureau of Land Management public lands.

The landscape features timbered draws and open bunchgrass meadows that provide critical winter range for 400 to 500 elk and sometimes up to 1,200 elk while also serving as transitional and migration range for both elk and mule deer as well as habitat for many other species of birds and wildlife. It also features 114 miles of riparian habitat in the form of perennial and intermittent streams that are so important for salmon, bull and steelhead trout.

Easily accessible off State Highway 82 and the Hells Canyon Scenic Byway, the Minam project will trigger positive economic impact within rural economies due to long-term active management and outdoor recreation.

ODFW will manage the property as a state wildlife management area.

Funding is nearly achieved for phase 1 of the project covering 4,610 acres with an intended closing date of December 2021. Fundraising continues for phase 2 featuring 10,964 acres with a tentative closing date of December 2023.

The Oregon Fish and Wildlife Commission voted unanimously in favor of the project at its August 6th meeting.

NO SMOKES

By "Swede" Troedsson

In the summer of 1953 I accepted a job as a fire lookout on the Superior Ranger District, on the Lolo National Forest, MT. I was packed into the Marble Mountain Lookout, situated south of the Clark Fork River, between Superior and St. Regis, MT.

I was on the lookout for six weeks, and although 1953 was a busy fire season, I never spotted a fire. One day, Hank Vische, the District Fire Dispatcher, called me on the phone and after giving the direction to a fire, asked me if I could see the smoke. I was not provided binoculars, and told him I could not see the smoke. He sounded agitated as to the fact I could not see the smoke. He kept asking me if I was sure I could not see the smoke. I kept replying, "NO, I CAN'T SEE THE SMOKE!"

A couple of years later, I was finishing my tour in the Marines. At Camp Pendleton, CA, a buddy of mine and I were watching a hawk hovering above us (looking for a mouse or vole, I suppose).

My buddy's glasses fell off. I picked them up, and out of curiosity, put them on and looked up at the hawk. WOW!! I realized then and there I must be near sighted. The corpsman at sick bay confirmed my suspicions. He said: Private, you are DEFINITELY near sighted! A Navy optometrist prescribed corrective lenses.

Now I know why at the rifle range the 500 yard target appeared fuzzy. In spite of that I did qualify as a Sharpshooter, sending rounds downrange in the general direction. I think with corrective lenses I may have qualified as Expert.

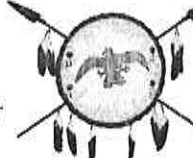

This also may explain why I never spotted a fire while on lookout. A nearsighted lookout with no binoculars! SHEESH!

However, I had a great time on lookout! I sunned myself on the shutters, baked pies, tried other recipes listed in the great Lookout Cookbook, watched a bull elk and a black bear who routinely wandered around my lookout, and gossiped on the phone in the evening with other lookouts.

Thank You!

A big thank you to Coach Ryan Nourse and the University of Montana Western football team for their community service yesterday, August 12th. The City of Dillon greatly appreciates their help in various projects throughout our community. The City greatly appreciates the athletic department reaching out to the City to help with community projects. Go Dawgs!

Grizzly bear injures two people in Madison Range

Two people were injured Tuesday in an encounter with a grizzly bear southeast of Ennis.

Around 8:30 p.m., two men were hiking with a dog off trail in the Bear Creek area when they encountered a sow grizzly bear with cubs at close range. During the encounter, the two hikers were injured by the bear. However, they were able to use bear spray to defend themselves. Fortunately, both hikers were able to leave the attack site without assistance and received treatment for relatively minor injuries.

Sows with cubs can be especially defensive in close encounters with people. It's likely this attack was defensive in nature.

A game warden with Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks investigated the scene of the attack on Wednesday with law enforcement staff from the U.S. Forest Service. The trail nearest the incident has been closed and signed temporarily as a precaution. Other trails in this area have also been signed, advising visitors of the incident. No further management action is planned at this time.

Recreationists, residents and people who work outdoors can be prepared for a surprise bear encounter. Activities that are deliberately quiet or fast moving, such as hunting, mountain biking or trail running, put people at greater risk for surprising a bear. When you're spending time in Montana's outdoors, keep these precautions in mind:

- Be aware of your surroundings and look for bear sign.
- Read signs at trailheads and stay on trails. Be especially careful around creeks and in areas with dense brush.
- Carry bear spray. Know how to use it and be prepared to deploy it immediately.
- Travel in groups whenever possible and make casual noise, which can help alert bears to your presence.
- Stay away from animal carcasses, which often attract bears.
- Follow food storage orders from the applicable land management agency.

If you encounter a bear, never approach it. Leave the area when it is safe to do so.

Grizzly bears in the lower 48 states are listed as threatened under the Endangered Species Act. Management authority for grizzlies rests with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, working closely in Montana with FWP, the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Wildlife Services, the Forest Service and Tribal lands. This collaboration happens through the Interagency Grizzly Bear Committee.

Pretty Flower? Think Again!

This flowering plant, found in and around the city of Dillon is no garden flower. Field Bindweed is actually considered to be a noxious weed, or a nonnative plant species that can harm native environments.

How to Identify!

This plant can be easily identified by its distinct trumpet shaped flower, that can appear in either white or pink.

If it is not flowering, look closely at the shape of the leaves. Bindweed has arrow shaped leaves that have lobes at the base and end in a rounded point.

Ways to Help!

There are a few ways you can help manage the bindweed population around your home or business.

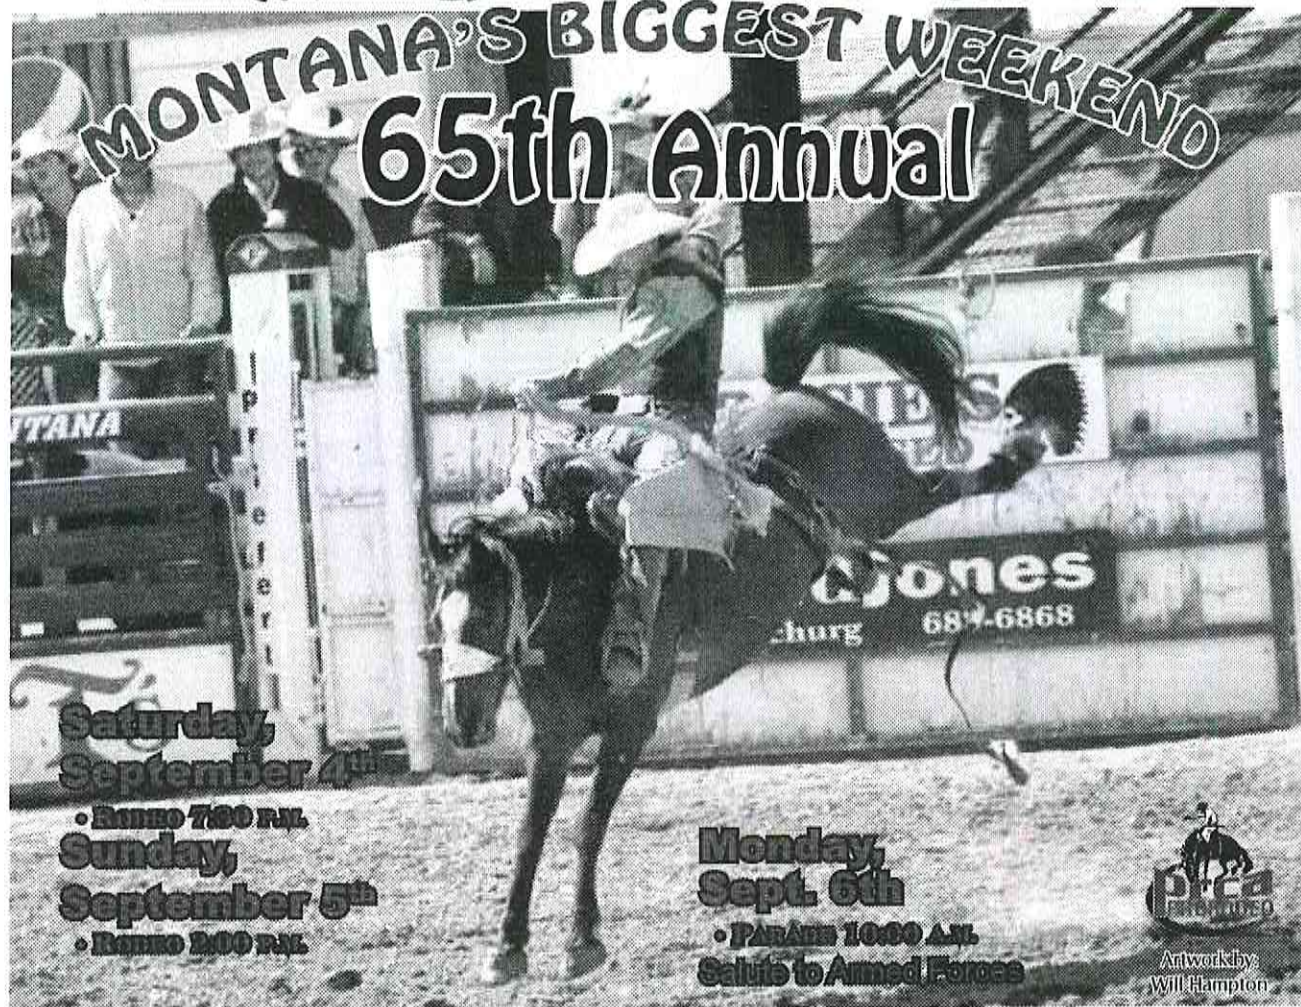

One option is the use of herbicides to control bindweed. Repeated applications of glyphosate based herbicides during bloom stages can be very effective, this may need to continue for a few years due to the extensive root system.

If you're not wanting to use herbicides, regularly tilling or pulling out the bindweed depletes the root system over time, just be sure to get as much of the roots as possible to avoid regrowth; tilling during bloom stage will be the most effective. Bindweed is also relatively shade intolerant, if younger than a year, so putting shading plants in the area can slow its growth enough to then remove it manually.
