FWP collecting upland game bird wings in southwest Montana

Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks biologists will be collecting wings from hunter-harvested sage-grouse, mountain grouse and Hungarian partridge in several areas of southwest Montana.

Biologists will use these wings to identify birds by species and age class — juvenile or adult. This helps biologists monitor juvenile recruitment among game bird populations.

Wing collection barrels will be in various locations during the sage-grouse hunting season, from Sept. 1 to 30. Hunters who come upon a wing collection barrel while traveling from a hunt are asked to put only one wing from each harvested bird into the barrel. Wings can also be turned into area wildlife biologists or game wardens.

Hunters in the Big Hole Valley may also encounter sage-grouse hens wearing GPS devices as part of an ongoing research study. If one of these grouse is harvested, please return the device to FWP's Butte-area wildlife biologist, Vanna Boccadori.

For more information, please call 406-577-7900 to contact wildlife biologists Dean Waltee in Sheridan, Jesse Newby in Dillon, or Vanna Boccadori in Butte.

Beavers Cross Country

The Beaverhead County Beavers cross country teams went to Deer Lodge and ran in the Grant Kohrs Ranch Run. The girls won the meet with Kelle Mosher, Hailey Powell and Faye Holland placing 1,2,3. Abbi Lemelin and Sam Anderson finished in 7th and 12th place.

The boys got 2nd with Ben Steadman winning the meet. Daniel Martin 4th, Joel Harvey 9th, Andy Egan 11th and Jacob Harvey 12th.

We go to the Belgrade Invitational in Bozeman on Thursday and then to the Bozeman Invitational on the 11th.

Dr. Tyler Seacrest Publishes Open Educational Resource

Montana Western Associate Professor of Mathematics, Dr. Tyler Seacrest, recently demonstrated his commitment to producing quality and affordable education by publishing his first Open Educational Resource (OER), Informal Calculus.

Seacrest created a textbook students and faculty can access and use for free. Embracing the Open Educational model, Seacrest states that, "Informal Calculus is an approachable textbook for a survey calculus course. This book is shared under the creative commons with attribution license, and anyone is welcome to use or modify anything from the book for free."

Working with a team of UMW faculty colleagues including Dr. Rebekah Levine, Dr. Debbie Seacrest, and Dr. Michelle Anderson, Seacrest's calculus textbook is unique and progressive. Serving Montana Western students in a new way, this textbook focuses calculus on applications in environmental and biological sciences.

One application in the book is designed for determining the volume of earth moved in the 1959 earthquake that created Quake Lake. Another application uses differential equations to model various biological examples, including moose and wolf populations at Isle Royale National Park, Rana virus in amphibians, and competing species of protozoa.

Earth science and biological science majors will find this text relevant, connecting the core concepts to the degree path they have chosen.

UMW appreciates the efforts of Dr. Seacrest and his colleagues to create high quality educational resources while prioritizing textbook affordability for Montana Western students.

"We're very excited about Dr. Seacrest's work and look forward to seeing more of our faculty develop OERs," said Interim Provost and Vice Chancellor for Academic and Student Affairs, Dr. Ashley Carlson.

The textbook, Informal Calculus, is immediately accessible at: <https://oer.pressbooks.pub/informalcalculus>

HOLY WATER

By "Swede" Troedsson

Some years ago I noticed that our local funeral home owner was limping. When I inquired as to what caused his limp, he responded that he had fallen into a grave. When I expressed some sympathy, he stated "That happens", and related the following incident that occurred at a funeral:

He was attending a gravesite funeral service at a nearby town. It had rained heavily the previous night. The coffin was placed on the lowering mechanism above the open grave. As the priest (not the funeral home owner) approached the coffin to sprinkle holy water on it, the rain soaked edge of the pit sloughed off and the priest slid into the grave.

There he was, under the coffin, peering up at the grieving and shocked family and guests, who were trying to keep their composure.

(GAMBLING ADS DURING) FOOTBALL?Tyrades! by Danny Tyree*

According to the Wall Street Journal, the fledgling online gambling industry is poised to explode in popularity.

This season, the NFL for the first time is permitting sports-gambling companies to advertise during games.

I don't envy the precarious position the league has placed itself in. Their balancing act involves delicately rationing the number of wagering commercials per game so they can rake in big bucks — while stopping just short of alienating the fuddy-duddy NONGAMBLERS in their fanbase.

If this exercise in fence-straddling succeeds, there will undoubtedly be more compromises by the NFL, NBA, MLB, NHL and the rest. ("Yes, we stand behind our decision to ban the offensive mascot — BUT there will be a permanent surcharge on tickets so he can live out his life happy and free on a farm upstate.")

I won't lose any sleep over the reception of the ads, because I am such a tightwad and "get high on life" person that betting on sports is a nonissue for me.

I know, I know, I'm "missing out." Brain scans show all the "pleasure centers" in the brain lighting up when a gambler takes a risk (win or lose). I'm more concerned about my brain's YBD centers. ("You Big Dummy! You could have renewed a magazine subscription with what you blew on that fantasy sports league!")

I suppose I'm just wired differently than most people. Yes, I have the standard "fight or flight" instinct common to mankind, but I don't add the "or flush your Roth IRA down the toilet" instinct.

I realize I'm obligated to PROVE something to myself or my compatriots by making expert wagers, but all I've proved is that I can't cram all those sports statistics into my head AND retain the ability to walk and chew gum at the same time.

Normal people have tried talking some sense into me. ("Hey, you gamble when you eat a sausage you could choke on. You gamble when you pull out of the driveway. You gamble when you show up at a workplace where someone could go postal.") Surprisingly, this "pep talk" does not make me feel like a reborn toxic male who should lay $20 down on the Bengals. It makes me feel more like a blue-haired little old lady tugging the slot machine handle.

I try to empathize with people who are adrenaline junkies, but it's not easy. Look at in-person gambling. You can have a bounty hunter, a decorated Vietnam veteran, a sex-reassignment surgeon and a fellow who claims to have died and spent 12 hours in heaven, all sitting around a poker table – but things don't "get interesting" until someone adds a little more money to the pot! Forest for the trees, people!

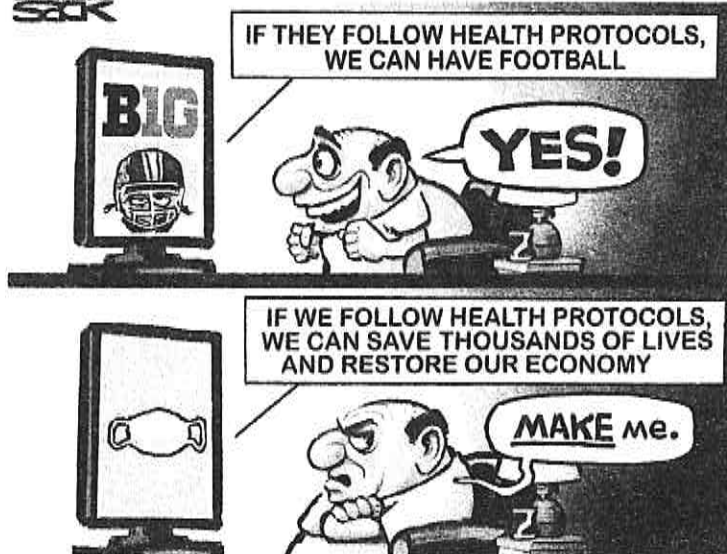

One article I studied said the quiet part out loud: many sports "enthusiasts" aren't particularly interested in the games UNLESS they have money on the line. Forget millionaires giving each other concussions and coaches improvising strategy. Forget supporting the home team. It's the wager.

Oooo-KAY. But if I lose interest in watching paint dry, I daresay I'll move on to more promising entertainment, instead of dreaming up some bells and whistles to add to the paint! But that's just me.

Remember: watch gambling ads responsibly. And if you drink, don't drive over blue-haired little old ladies.

Or I'm going upside your brain's pleasure centers.

Blacktail Dental to open soon

Blacktail Dental, a new dental practice owned and operated by the Southwest Montana Community Health Center, is slated to open in mid-September at 122 E. Glendale St. "It is our mission to provide access and quality care to the people of Southwest Montana," said Dr. Shawna Yates, executive director for the SWMTCHC. "We have been working diligently to remodel our building and hire staff, including two new dentists, in order to meet the dental needs of the area." The health center was forced to close its dental services in 2020 due to the Covid pandemic. The remodeled building was the site of a former law office and is located across the street from the Blacktail Pharmacy at 125 E. Glendale. The clinic plans to remodel that building in the next year in order to relocate its primary medical and behavioral health services there. "We are making significant investments in the Dillon community in order to meet community needs," Yates added. "We are thrilled to be creating a new home for medical, dental, pharmacy and behavioral health services for everyone who needs us." The new dental clinic will accept all insurances, including Medicaid, and offers a sliding fee scale to eligible patients.
